F. H. HESSE, LEIPSIG,

Schl. 6 (Germany), 35, Brockhausstr., breeder and exporter of Hartz Mountain Canaries. Delivery of all quantities and sorts.

THERE ARE TWO WAYS

of buying Canaries, one is by sending your cash blindly, and putting up with whatever is sent you, and the other is my way, viz., deposit your money with the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, and having bird on approval for a full week before you ultimately decide to purchase. All Canaries sold by me are sent out on the distinct understanding that you keep them one full week on approval, and if bird fails to prove in every way satisfactory, you return bird and the whole of your money is promptly returned to you. I take all risks during the whole time, so you cannot possibly lose a pennypiece by giving me a trial. I have an enormous stock of pure St. Andreasberg Rollers, all direct from Leipzig, in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trill, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or other objectionable notes, price, 6/6 and 7/6 each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass, and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of everflowing melody, 10/- and 12/6 each; ordinary, loud, free Hartz cocks, in full vigorous song, 4/6 each, 28/- for seven; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple, 12/- dozen. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole importer of these birds, no other dealer can get one feather of this strain unless he purchases from me. See following few letters, full name and address given with each, so that any sceptical person can make any enquiries he likes:—"29, Clifford-road, West Stanley, November 10th, Sir,—Roller received in splendid condition, I am delighted with it, and for song I never had its equal. Please send another soon as possible. Yours, Wm. Roe." On November 14th Mr. Roe again writes, "Sir,—Received the other Roller, it is just what I wanted, splendid songster. I had a friend down, and he wants one the same, so please send on another, I will not be long getting you more orders." "1, Tweedale-place, Fort William, November 13th,—Sir, many thanks for sending me such a fine bird, it started singing morning after I got it. You will hear from me again. Yours, G. Kay." "107, Wheldon-lane, Castleford, November 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe, and a champion songster, he is too, I am more than satisfied with it. It started singing before I got it out of cage. Yours, H. Wilson." "Sunny Bank, Elkington-road, Bury Port, November 7th. Sir.—Please send me Roller at 7/6. I have been recommended by friends to whom you have supplied songsters that give every satisfaction, so hope the one you send will not be a disappointment, same as some I have had from other dealers. Yours, J. Williams." On November 11th Mr. Williams writes: "Sir, I have pleasure in advising you that Roller arrived yesterday. He is singing very nicely, and so far, I am quite satisfied." "Broom, Newton Mearns, Glasgow, November 6th. Sir,—Two Rollers arrived safe, and are singing nicely; many thanks for promptness. Yours, W. Wootton." "Dowlais, November 5th. Sir,—Received Roller safe, and healthy. This is the fourth bird I have had from you, and been satisfied every time. Yours, E. Jones." "88, Trafalgar-street, Sheffield, November 1st. Sir, —I appreciate your prompt attention to my order, and am very pleased with Roller, he started singing directly unpacked, and is a champion. Yours A. Hickin." "28, Upper-row, Penywern, Dowlais, October 20th. Sir.—Received Roller in pink of condition and he commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am quite satisfied with him. Yours, Wm. Jones." Kindly note that these Leipzig Rollers are far better birds than can be obtained elsewhere at much higher prices, and I cordially invite all intending purchasers to test them side by side with those obtained elsewhere at higher prices, and if mine is not by far the best, return it to me, and tell everyone you know that my Rollers are not as represented. Could I afford to do this unless I was convinced that what I say is correct? I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merit of the birds, not by any lying boasts. Fresh arrivals twice weekly. Genuine dealers and clubs send for wholesale prices, lowest in the trade. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

Of Pure Seifert & Trute

HARTZ

Mountain Rollers

Try elsewhere if you will, but try one from me and compare. Such appreciation for these birds at my prices has never before been known.

Don't be deluded into having the cheap common Belgians for Hartz; nor get interior quality at high prices under senseless names. Being a visitor at the Poplar and Dis. Cage Bird Society's Show, writes Mr. G. Livermore (Plaistow), on November 14th. I was surprised to see such a splendid turn-out. The exhibits were a good, all-round lot. Some very nice birds were seen in the Yorkshire and Norwich classes. I also saw some grand birds in the British section. The place was packed with people, which speaks well for the society and the management of the show.

THE SHOWS.

MORLEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First old bird show held November 7th, at the Sycamore Hotel. There were about 46 birds staged. There was a good attendance of the public, which speaks well for the future of the new society. We made five new members. The birds were good both in quality and leather. Mr. W. Spence won special for best bird in show with a good yell., and Mr. Smith special in the Novice Class. Mr. W. Cruise judged, and gave every satisfaction.

ALNWICK AND DISTRICT H.S.

The Alnwick and District H.S. held their annual show in the Town Hall, Nov. 7, when, as usual, a few classes were put on for cage birds. But the entries fell short of former years, no doubt owing to the show held only a week before. Unfortunately we could not follow the judge's awards, he apparently never having obtained open cage birds before. Most of the best birds stood down, while an unevenly marked Border Fancy won in the clear or ticked buff class. That the judge placed the cards to the best of his ability we have no doubt, but we never heard more adverse comments. It was very hard for the committee, who are a hard-working lot and deserve success, while the secretary is an excellent official and the hall a nice one. Mr. Gardner (Berwick) judged.

CHELMSFORD.

The Chelmsford O.S. held its 23rd annual show in the Corn Exchange, Nov. 17 and 18th, and as is usual at this fixture (although limited to a 12-mile radius), the number and quality of the exhibits were excellent. The competition consequently was well sustained. The Corn Exchange is an ideal place for a show, having top light, and indeed all round light. The staging was conveniently arranged, and the stewarding well done. Messrs. Baldrey and Rippon, the joint hon. secretaries, had things well in hand; judging was commenced early, the awards up promptly, and everything ready for the public in good time. Mr. C. Richell is chairman of committee, and is well backed by Messrs. Youngs, Pannell, Bragg, Clover, Clift, French, P. Linn, H. Linn, Archer, Frith, Wheeler and Harris. There was a fine display of Norwich, special for best bird in show going here to a topping buff hen, shown by Mr. Rippon. Yorkshires, Crests and C.B.'s were nice, and British were good, especially in the large section. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction. Cup for best members bird was won by Messrs Outten and Welham with a grand ticked unflig. yellow Norwich.

YORK C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held in All Saints' School, North Street, on Nov 9th. The chairman, Mr. T. Wright, presided, and there was a large number of members present. The secretary reported that all prize money and specials had been paid to successful exhibitors at the open show, and also read a batch of letters, congratulating the society on their prompt payment of prize money, and despatch of birds. According to notice given, the meeting was then made special for the purpose of considering the advisability of continuing or otherwise our membership of the Cage Bird Union. After nearly an hour discussing the pros and cons for and against the advantages that accrue from belonging to the C.B.U. it was unanimously decided to withdraw our membership from this date, Nov. 9th, so as to allow the whole of our members to show when and where they choose. A. WADE, Sec.

WALLSEND-ON-TYNE.

Fourth annual exhibition held in the Co-operative Hall, on Nov. 13th and 14th. Although there was a slight decrease in entries, the decrease in and around the town, caused by the shipbuilding and engineers' dispute would account for this, but the quality of the exhibits was far in excess of that of any show previously held in Wallsend. The total number of birds was 700 in the 85 classes, which included members. The society can be congratulated in having such a number as the Mayoress, Mrs. R. Irwin Dees, a most courteous lady. Her favourite variety is the Yorkshire, and she had some very choice specimens on the bench, some of them being in the money, and also winning honours. She has only been an exhibitor for two years. Their president, Alderman Matthew Murray, although not a practical fancier, was interested in the show, inspecting the various breeds in the different sections. Mr. Johnston, the secretary, and his assistant, Mr J. R. Cox, with their willing band of workers had the birds staged in good time, and the judging commenced quite early; the tickets were on the cages at the opening of the show. We saw several fresh faces, but a better working staff it would be difficult to find, such as Messrs. Wm. Ronald (chairman), Cockburn, Langlands, Hackney, Simpson, McGinn, McDonald, McQuillan, Appleby, Hopkinson, Heddon, Reeves, and Ronald, who all did their best to make the show a success. The judges were Messrs. W. P. Barnes, J. F. Dewar and W. A. Cowgill.

WAKEFIELD.

Wakefield Roller C.C. held their sixth annual contest at the Co-operative Hall on Nov. 13th and 14th, and was in every way successful. Five classes were provided and 103 birds competed. Great honour is due to Mr. Netherwood, and his committee for the very able manner in which all the birds were staged. Visitors turned up from Leeds, Manchester, Bolton, Blackburn, Bury, and in fact nearly every town saw some of the fanciers off to Wakefield from as far out as Nottingham. Messrs. F. A. Lester and T. EVESHAM.

A nice show was held in conjunction with the annual flower show in the Town Hall on Nov. 11, about 40 birds being entered in the five classes provided. This society is fortunate in being always able to rely on a good gate, and the cage birds are without doubt one of the greatest attractions to the many visitors. Mr. G. Witts is the secretary, and right well does he perform his duties. It is a pity that the room at the committee's disposal will not allow of the cage bird section being more liberally catered for in the way of extra classes, but perhaps another year this may be remedied. Mr. G. H. Billett judged.

Monthly meeting held in rooms 142, High Street, on November 5th, Mr. Dunlop presiding. The final arrangements for show to be held on November 21st, were gone into. The cup having been won outright in the Nor. section, the members subscribed for a handsome rose bowl which was on view and was much admired. The bowl bears a suitable inscription and can be won outright by a member in three years, not necessarily in succession.—JOHN WELSH, Sec.

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Usual meeting held on November 7th, at the club room, Fawcett Street Cafe. There was a good attendance, presided over by the chairman, Mr. J. Farrar. The arrangements for the open show, November 20th and 21st, were proceeded with, and the various officials, stewards, etc, at the show were elected. The full list of specials for the members' classes was also forthcoming, there being now specials for every class. Arrangements were also made for taking every possible care of exhibits. REID AND MADDISON, Hon. Secretaries.

POPLAR AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held October 29th. The chairman then called on Mr. Allen Silver to read his paper, which proved of a very interesting and instructive nature. He went at great length from A to Z in considering the different species of British birds, and to make the paper more interesting he exhibited about 100 illustrations of the different birds under discussion. Members were thirsting for knowledge, and kept the lecturer well plied with questions, which were very ably answered. The evening was a very pleasant and instructive one. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded the lecturer.—H. W. COOK, Hon. Sec.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

Meeting held at Rochdale Good Intent Show, when a large number turned up, Mr. J. Naden in the chair. Two new members were nominated, namely, Dr Conaghey (Macclesfield) and Mr. Beattie (Newbey). It was decided that a member commencing the season as a novice should go through the season as such. We had our medals on view at this meeting. Our next meeting will be held in connection with Littleborough Show on November 28th; time and place to be stated later. A hearty vote of thanks to our chairman for presiding brought the meeting to a close. Points gained at Rochdale Good Intent Show:—Champion Section: Adams 17, Lowe 17, Oldham 9, and Laycock 10. Novice Section: Crossley 4, and Brooks 7.—WM. ADAMS, Hon. Sec.

CINNAMON MARKED Y.C.C.

A committee meeting was held November 7th, Mr Gledhill in the chair. The secretary opened discussion on novice classes for cinnamon-marked Yorkshire Canaries, and it was the feeling of the meeting that something should be done for our novice members in the direction shown. But we should want the support of novices more than we have had in the past; as the secretary pointed out, we gave more in competition alone than we received in subscriptions from novice members, and unless more joined our club we should scarcely be justified in asking those societies who have our patronage to provide novice classes. Now, novices, let us see if you are prepared to help yourselves. It was decided that we have a whist drive and dance in the Windhill Carnegie Library Hall on December 1st next, and we ask fanciers to help by attending. Tickets are 1s. 3d., including refreshments, and may be had from any member of the committee or from the secretary.—R. GARNETT, Hon. Sec., 17, Woodville-terrace, Windhill, Shipley.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD AND DISTRICT C.B.A.

Usual meeting held at headquarters, the Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park, on October 30th, when Mr. W. Ward presided. About 60 members and friends were present. The secretary stated that no doubt most present were aware we had lost one of our members through death in W. Ward, jun., and as this was the first meeting since the occurrence he proposed that those present should show their sympathy for our vice-chairman and family. A handsome marble clock was on view, which was ready to be forwarded to our late secretary, Mr. W. Reynolds, as a mark of appreciation of his services as secretary. A brass plate denoting same is to be attached. Four new members were nominated and elected, after which a washing competition took place, Mr. W. Shakespeare judging. Only a small number took part in the novice section, and Mr. W. Cooper came out on top, with Mr. Turner a good second, and Mr. G. H. Neal third. During the time the birds were drying, the secretary was adding show specials to the already long lists. Mr. W. Rawlinson was elected assistant sec. A vote of thanks to Messrs. Shakespeare and Ward brought the meeting to a close. There must be three competitors in each class at our annual show, or points will not count for the £5 5s. cup.—G. H. NEAL, Hon. Secretary.

MORPETH AND DISTRICT C.B.S

The annual meeting was held on October 30th, when the reports were given and the society set a-going for the ensuing year. Our worthy chairman, Mr. Alf. Grey, presided. In an able manner he gave all due praise to the members who so ably carried our exhibition to a successful issue. In the absence of the secretary, Mr. E. Cowling, the treasurer and auditor, Messrs. Marshall and Willis respectively, guided the affairs of the evening. The treasurer read the financial statement covering the past twelve months, including the show accounts. The members' prizes were then paid out. We have a balance in hand of £5 14s. 9d., with which to start our new year. Our assets at the beginning of our year, it may be pointed out, were nil. The election of officers was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—President, Abl. G. B. Grey Esq., J.P., C.C.; vice-presidents, Mrs. Farquhar Bowlar, and E. B. Atkinson, Esq., who were re-elected all with also the chairman (Mr. Alf Grey), the secretary (Mr. E. Cowling), and the treasurer (Mr. A. Marshall). The new appointments were Mr. C. B. Willis, assistant-secretary, and Mr. S. P. Lacey, auditor. It was decided that the yearly subscription for members remain at 2s., and that new members pay an extra 1s. for enrolment. We trust that our financial position and the record we made for Morpeth will regard to our show will bring us a good influx of new members. All wishing to join should send to Mr E. Cowling, sec., Fulbeck Cottage, Morpeth.

Will fanciers who received schedules of the Perth Show on or before November 14th kindly destroy them, writes Mr. R. G. Challenger, the secretary, as, owing to several errors on our printer's part, we are compelled to have them reprinted. Having mislaid these fanciers' names and addresses, I cannot advise them personally.

Illustrated Ideas, No. 247 (the tin cover for water vessels) has long been used by catchers, writes Mr. J. H. Verrall (Hove). It was originally made, not for keeping the water clean, but so that birds when putting their heads through the fountain hole cannot see what the adjoining birds are doing. I have often used them when breeding Canaries; as when a "row" occurs in another cage, out pops the head of some inquisitive Canary.

I was delighted to see my Yellow-Marked hen depicted on the front page of CAGE BIRDS recently. It was a very fine drawing of Mr. Norman's I think she was the best hen I ever bred—she had such lovely feathers, and the markings were such that they showed well on a pale yellow. Her winnings were mostly in cock classes, only once I showed her in hen class when she stood first at the City and Suburban Show. Like most good birds she has gone over to the great majority; still I have the satisfaction of knowing that she left a cock and a hen, both yellows, which I hope to be successful with after their moult. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success, at the same time thanking you for the honour you have conferred upon me.—F. EASTERLING (Battersea).

I wish to thank Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), for the knowledge I have gained by reading the many articles of his upon the Norwich Canary, published in our old favourite, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. A. H. C. Legg (Perth). I also remember reading an article written by Mr. Alfred Grey (Morpeth), and Mr. Grey urged upon the novice to take one variety, and one variety only. I have taken Mr. Grey's "tip," and studied one variety, and I thank him for the hints I picked up from his article in your January supplement. I may say that I have followed Mr. J. C. Barnes' instructions upon colour-feeding, and my birds have almost completed their moult and have come out a beautiful colour. Mr. Barnes may rest assured that he has helped someone in the Fancy, if only myself.

I must thank you sincerely for the reproduction of the picture of my Goldfinch-Greenfinch Hybrid in your 1908 CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL. I was highly pleased at the honour, and must congratulate your artist, Mr. H. Norman upon the drawing, as it is a true likeness of the birds. I regret to say that most of my birds dropped into the moult at a critical time—during my confinement to the house through my having met with a very severe accident on the town cricket field. Whilst batting, the ball hit me full in the face, smashing my nose, etc. I am glad to say, however, that I am now much better, and am hoping that very little trace of the accident will be left eventually. Through this, of course, the birds had insufficient attention; however, I am hoping to get a few ready for the coming show season. CAGE BIRDS has been my favourite periodical ever since its inception. I always look forward to it on Fridays.—JAS. A. TONKS (Wednesbury).

The 1908 balance sheet of the Arbroath Scotch Fancy C.B.S. shows well with a surplus of £4 7s. 5d., which reflects great credit on the officials of the society.

The Blackburn Show report in class 27, Cinnamon Unlighted Yellow or Buff should have read: 4th, Birtwistle, instead of Walsh, writes Mr. J. Birtwistle (Rishton).

Exhibitors in the 20s. selling class at Preston Show are asked to note that the awards as given in the catalogue were a printer's error. The correct placings are given in our report.

Bristol Show report credits Messrs. Gill and Pothick with fifth in class for birds bred 1908, writes Mr. C. Garland (Plymouth). This should have been C. Garland, this being my variegated buff.

The report of Stockton Show omitted to mention that I won Hyde's sp. with a Norwich buff cock for best bird moulted on Hyde's Mountain Bread, writes Mr. T. Acheson (Thornaby-on-Tees).

Coventry C.B.S. schedule, rule 6, should read: "Any exhibitor not receiving his labels by November 26th, write Secretary at once"; not the 28th as stated, writes Mr. W. H. Bray, the hon. secretary.

I think "Canary Breeding for Beginners" is a great treat for all bird lovers. I have not had a single bird die this season, and this is the result of following the instructions there given.—A. BAILEY (Earl Shilton).

Kindly thank all who replied to my advertisement, re Budgerigars, writes Mr. John Hill, (Swineflect), as I have had several replies from all parts. May CAGE BIRDS still continue to have the ever increasing success it deserves.

Will the person who took by mistake a case for one cage from Stockton-on Tees and Dis. C.B.S. Show on November 7th, please return same to me, writes Mr. J. W. Lowes, the secretary, at 17, Canning Street, Stockton-on-Tees.

Will exhibitors kindly note that a printer's error occurs in the St. Helen's O.S. Show schedule, writes Mr. A. Goodall, the hon. secretary. Mr. H. W. Battye judges Canaries and Mr. J. F. Hills the Hybrids, British and Foreign birds.

There is a printer's error in class 9 in our catalogue, writes Mr. J. Emmett, secretary of the Warrington Show. The following is correct: 1, h.c., H. Waters; 2, J. Mottram; 3 and v.h.c., Barker and Abbott; and 4 and c., A. Hirst.

Mr. A. H. Roosmalecocq, president of the Civil Service F.A., is offering a cup, value one guinea, for the member making most points at the Grand United Metropolitan Show, writes Mr. A. Watson, the show secretary and treasurer.

Kindly notify that the paragraph referring to the Crested Canary Clubs specials was included in Bournemouth Show schedule through a printer's error, writes Mr. G. W. Jones the hon. secretary. The C.C.C. are not offering any specials at Bournemouth Show.

Specials in our schedule should read: Nos. 98, 99, 100, confined to members' children, writes Mr. R. Conely, secretary of the Vale of Leven and Dunbartonshire O.S. Rule 17: Points to count—1st 6, 2nd 5, 3rd 4, v.h.c. 3, h.c. 2, and c 1.

We hope to receive a good entry at Southall Show on November 26th, writes the secretary, Mr. A. Smith. We pay out all prize money, and send out clean prize-cards within a week or so of the close of the show, and every attention is given exhibits.

Thanks for the splendid report of the Ayr and Dis. C.B.C.'s first show, writes Mr. C. C. Irvine, the secretary. Pleased to say it was a great success, and I would thank all exhibitors. All prize money has been paid, and we have still a few pounds in hand.

Up to time of posting this we have a grand total of 428 birds, writes Mr. W. Wynn, hon. secretary City and Suburban Show, comprising 225 Canaries, 17 Hybrids, 155 British, and 31 Foreign. We have a class of 7 Albinos, which, I believe, has no parallel in a club show.

Readers should not fail to note that our next number will be and give definite instructions at once to their newsagent to reserve them their copy. This particular Special will be distinguished by the number of strikingly interesting and helpful contributions it will contain from the pens of well-known fanciers, and in addition will bring with it a triumph of the colour-printer's art; and one of the best, we venture to think, our artist, Mr. Norman, has yet produced from his brush.

A Magnificent Coloured Plate

Do not miss this Treat!

ADVERTISERS will know from past experience the remarkably ready way in which every description of birds and appliances find purchasers when offered for sale in CAGE BIRDS Double Numbers. We would only remind them that they should send along their announcements early to ensure their appearance in this splendid Special.

The Closing Date is Tuesday, November 24.

Post all advertisements early to reach us on Tuesday certain, or we cannot guarantee insertion in this great Double Number.

Who, asks a Leyton correspondent, was the judge at a certain suburban society's show last Saturday, who was not satisfied with judging the birds, but was seen in the evening at the same show nursing and judging the babies? Could Mr. J. S. Clarke supply me with the solution?

All roads lead to the Imperial Hall, Dulwich, on November 24th and 25th. Trains every few minutes from London Bridge. Electric cars pass the doors. On no account forget to pay a visit; admission first day, 2 to 5 p.m., 1s; after 5 p.m. and all second day, sixpence.—(ADVT.)

There promises to be an interesting evening at the City and Suburban A.C.B.'s meeting on Monday next, November 23rd, at the Church Institute, 60, Paddington, Street W., when that well-known British bird exhibitor and enthusiast, Mr. C. Prior, is due to give a lecture on the subject: "Is it Necessary to Colour-Feed British Birds?"

Report of Swansea Show, write Messrs. Hammacott and Card (Swansea), gives Connell as 2nd in the Border Fancy Clear, etc., buff cock class; it should read: 1 and 2, Hammacott and Card, and not 1 and 3. You have given us another good plate this week. We are constant readers of CAGE BIRDS, and take two copies each week; and the information we find in it is very useful.

The well-known firm of Liverino, Limited, (Grimsby), has met with extraordinary success with poultry foods, Health Grit for pigeons and medicines for all classes of birds and this augurs well for their specialities for cage birds. They are very large importers and producers and their seeds are clean, well-grown, harvested and packed, and we can recommend readers to give their goods for cage birds (as advertised in our columns this week) a trial.

We notice that a defence fund has been started by the Editor of "Lloyd's News" (London) for the poor unfortunate woman who has been arrested for the murder of her crippled son at Salisbury. It may interest many of our own readers to know that she is the sister of an East Dulwich fancier of British birds, who has received many expressions of kindly sympathy in this great trouble. With a good counsel to undertake the defence, it is hoped to prove the woman's perfect innocence, in which all her brothers firmly believe.

We have omitted the entry fee in our schedule, writes Mr. W. Minty, secretary Frome Show; it should read 1s. 6d. per cage.

I recommend CAGE BIRDS to all who speak about birds, and I shall continue to do so. I look forward to Friday, and my children are quite in love with the beautiful plates that are sent out with CAGE BIRDS. Last week's was charming.—F. J. CHILD (Leeds).

The Metropolitan C.B.A. Open Show cup winners, writes Mr. F. J. Martin, the secretary, are: Norwich, Mr. E. Baker (Cowes); Yorks., Mr. C. Mabey; British and Foreign (two). Mr. C. T. Maxwell; Border, Mr. R. Brownlie, to whom the cups have been sent, duly engraved.

The Liverpool Show report in the Norwich Green cocks class credits Ridgley with third; this should read Isaac. I have found your admirable paper, CAGE BIRDS, of great assistance, and I think the last week's issue and the splendid plate do you great credit.—I. H. ISAACS (Liverpool).

Your correspondent "Scotch Fancy" gave the name of the wrong person as the purchaser of the pair of birds that won first in Scotch Fancy pairs for Mr. Renwick at the City of Glasgow Show, writes a correspondent. It was Mr. John Neill, of Belfast, who claimed them at £20, and not Mr. Ronaldson.

Darlington Show cannot extend entries beyond the advertised date, November 24th, writes Mr. E. Brunskill, the secretary, and it is an absolute fact that at the present time we have not a single entry on hand. We have the reputation of being one the best managed shows in the north, so, fanciers, please hurry up.

Entries are very slack at Penzance and Dis. Show writes Mr. J. Pearce Sampson, the hon. secretary, and I am compelled to extend to Monday morning's post, November 23rd. We are affiliated to C.B.U., and I appeal to exhibitors to help the first and last show in England. We guarantee that all exhibits from a distance will be sent off on Friday night.

All prize money and cash specials won at the late Dulwich and Peckham Show have been paid, writes Mr. W. Hodson, the hon. secretary. I thank you for the splendid report you gave of our show, also for the many notes published before the show, which were the means of bringing us a large number of entries. I would also thank you for this week's splendid double issue of CAGE BIRDS; the plate is grand. I wish CAGE BIRDS continued success.

A slight error has crept into Dulwich Show rule No. 11, write Messrs. Rogers and Mazzoni, hon. secretaries. Birds should be delivered Monday, November 23rd, and up to 9 a.m. Tuesday, November 24th, and not the 22nd and 23rd as stated therein. Arrangements have been made for teas and light refreshments to be served in the hall. Special railway arrangements have been made for quick delivery.

I inserted an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS recently for the sale of some birds, etc., and I could have sold them many times over, and consequently I had to return many remittances, etc. But one letter I have unfortunately mislaid which came from Lowestoft, and a P.O. was enclosed in it, so that I am unable to find the address of the sender to return him his P.O. Up to the present he has not written me again.—HAROLD E. FAWELL (Thetford).

I must thank you very much for the excellent frontispiece of my Mules and Hybrid on last week's CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. F. Collins (Camborne). The Greenie Bullie was bred in 1907, and has won 9 first prizes, 3 seconds. 8 specials, and 3 championships. The six pointed Mule was bred in 1905, and has won 14 firsts, 8 seconds, 10 thirds, 11 specials and 5 championships, while the light Linnet Mule was bred in 1906, and has won 5 firsts, 4 seconds, 6 thirds, 5 specials, and one championship.

Visit the City and Suburban 13th Annual Show at the Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street, Marylebone, W., to-day and to-morrow (Friday and Saturday) or you will surely regret it. Unique collection of Hybrids, British and Foreign birds, with almost every variety of Canary represented. The case glittering with the silversmith's art (13 silver and plated cups, shield, besides gold, silver, and bronze medals), is quite a feature. Four minutes walk from Baker Street (Metropolitan) and Regent's Park (Bakerloo) Stations—(ADVT.)

The Palace "Jubilee" Show.

To celebrate the jubilee of the Palace Show, the committee of the L. and P.O.S. have decided to give an extra cash prize in every class. Eight extra classes have been added to the classification, including one for frills. Forty cash specials of 5s. each have been allotted to members of the L. and P.O.S.—J. W. RAMSDEN, show manager.

The Cage Bird Union.

Some one signing himself "Novice," but giving no name or address has written me to know whether Grimsby Show, November 28th, is under C.B.U. rules. The writer will think it discourteous on my part if he gets no reply. Would you therefore announce that this is a C.B.U. Show? Correspondents should give their address; I receive quite a number of anonymous epistles.—GEO. W. F. LYTHGOE.

No Doubt Had a Cold.

It may interest readers to know the Cuckoo was heard in the Mansion House gardens, Roundhay Park, Leeds, on November 9th, at a quarter to four, writes "C.S." to the "Yorkshire Daily Post." Its note sounded like "cuckroo" as if the bird had a cold. I was under the tree where the bird was hopping from bough to bough, and had not I actually seen it, I should have concluded some one was imitating it, as I at first thought was the case.

A Record at Sunderland.

Just as we go to press this brief but satisfactory message comes to hand: "Record entry, Cinnamons grand.—REID AND MADDISON, hon. secretaries, Sunderland Show."

Yorkshire C.C. of Ireland.

At committee meeting of the Y.C.C. of Ireland, held November 9th, the following resolution was adopted: "That gaining a first prize in selling classes would in no way debar a novice competing for novice cup, etc."—W. J. BIRSE, hon. secretary.

Presentation at Leicester Show.

Advantage was taken of the visit of Mr. A. H. Jones, of Abbey Road, Bearwood, Birmingham (who recently left Leicester), to the Leicester Hand-in-Hand Society's show, to present him with a memento of his long and successful career as a member of this Society. The president, Mr. Gibbons, in handing him a handsome smoking cabinet, subscribed for by the members, referred to his connection with us and expressed our wish that Mr. Jones might have a continuance of success in his new sphere. At the same time he handed Mr. Jones the special for best bird in the show, won by him with a grand buff Norwich. Mr. Jones suitably replied.—C. DRAPER, secretary.

Mr. A. R. LANGLANDS (Montrose).

The death of Mr. A. R. Langlands, the well-known Scottish fancier, of Montrose, took place very suddenly on November 8th, from heart-failure, writes a Scottish correspondent. He has left a widow, two sons, and two daughters to mourn his loss. About two years ago Mr. Langlands was one of a pleasure party who undertook a journey to Brechin in a brake. For some unaccountable reason one of the horses took fright on the return journey, bolted, and the occupants were thrown out on the road. Mr. Langlands never seemed to have got over this shock. He was a native of Montrose, a master baker and confectioner by trade, and fifty-four years of age. From his youth he was an ardent lover of animals; his first success in the show line was with lop rabbits. A little later he appeared as an exhibitor of poultry. But early manhood saw him set for life as a lover of cage-birds, and as such he has been known in the Fancy for over thirty-five years. His knowledge of birds, domestic and otherwise, was very wide, and he possessed more than ordinarily fine judgment regarding the points that go to determine an ideal specimen. This ability brought him in much request as a judge, and his services were much sought after. Mr. Langlands was a man of social disposition, helpful and complaisant in his way—truly one who, intimately known, could be called a kindly soul. Peace to his ashes, and our sympathy to his widow and family in their loss.

Mr. J. S. Napier, secretary Arbroath S.F.C., also writes in sympathetic terms.

Mr. H. GRICE (Bristol).

I am sorry to inform you of the death of Mr. H. Grice, late secretary of the Bristol Fanciers' Society, writes Mr. W. G. Ball (Bristol). He held the office for some 11 or 12 years. Mr. Grice passed away suddenly this morning (Tuesday). Much sympathy is felt by local fanciers, among whom he was respected and loved.

Cinnamon Marked Yorks. C.C.

Owing to having to work away from home, writes Mr. R. Garnett, I am resigning my offices of secretary and treasurer to the C.M.Y.C.C. Mr. H. H. Towers, Heaton View, Cragg Road, Windhill, has consented to take the offices, and all club communications should be addressed to him. Our whist drive arrangements for the first of next month have been made, and it only means that all the members of the committee must do their best to make it a success. Anyone wanting tickets can have them from Mr. F. Hammond, 70, St. Margarets Road, Bradford; Mr. W. Crabtree, 12, Lytton Road, Girlington; or Mr. Towers, or any member of the committee. I hope they will help Mr. Towers to make this year one of the best the C.M.Y.C.C. has ever had. My address will now be R. Garnett, c/o A. Parker, builder and contractor, Mersbrook Tannery, Healey, Sheffield. I should be pleased to get into company with the Sheffield fanciers, as I shall be in a strange place, and no doubt time will hang heavy on my hands for a while.

The Clear and Ticked Question.

Last week we closed the "When Is a Clear Not a Clear?" question, so far as our correspondence columns are concerned. But Mr. W. Reid asks to have "the last word," seeing that Mr. Woollard opened the discussion. We have not the space to give in full the letter he sends us, but take from it the following points:—

"Mr. Woollard absolutely refuses to reply to the questions put to him, but contents himself with continuing to misconstrue my statements to suit his own purpose. Mr. Woollard says that I have been 'running away from the point.' I can only say that if I have done so, it has amply been in an effort to follow Mr. Woollard, and bring him back to the point which he has to constantly tried to avoid. Should Mr. Woollard decide to reopen a friendly discussion upon this question on some future occasion, I shall be only too pleased, if I am allowed, to accommodate him. In conclusion, I am very pleased to know that some of the leading specialist clubs are taking the matter up, and I venture to think that when a body of men who understand the subject, put their heads together, and discuss it in an unbiassed manner Mr. Woollard will find that my suggestions are not so detrimental to the Fancy as he seems to think."

AIRDRIE AND COATBRIDGE

Airdrie, Coatbridge and Dist. Amalgamated Show and Competition was held on Nov. 7, in the Trades Hall, Airdrie. A very suitable hall, having plenty of floor space, and being well lighted, and free from draught. All the arrangements were well carried out, the show proving a most successful one in every respect. Office bearers: President—John Purlie, Esq., secretary, Mr. A. Murdoch; treasurer, Mr. A. Russell; committee, Messrs. Reid, Fletcher, Hamilton, Murdoch, Simpson, and Clark. There were 25 classes for Scotch Fancy and Norwich, which were nicely staged round the hall. The entries this year showed a considerable increase on those of last year. The Scotch Fancies were a grand lot, both in quality and merit. Crests, C.B. and Plainheads, were a treat, quality being well to the front. The cup winner in the Scotch Fancy section was a surprise to many, the winner being the buff Piebald cock, belonging to Mr. J. Main. It was third in its class at Coatbridge the previous Saturday, and was looking well to-day, and fully earned its place. The runner-up was a buff cock belonging to Mr. J. Wyness, cup winner at Coatbridge. Mr. Main's buff Piebald hen won the cup for the best hen. The runner-up was a yellow Piebald hen belonging to Mr. J. Wyness; this was a close run, and must have given the judges some trouble. In the Norwich section, the cup winner was a buff Plainhead hen, belonging to Mr. Simpson. There was a splendid turn-out of visitors, and breeders. Secretary Murdoch, who is obliging and courteous, had all his arrangements well carried out, and was ably assisted by a hard-working committee. The judges for Scotch Fancy were Mr. McDougall (Larbert), and Mr. Hunter (Wishaw),and for the Norwich section, Mr. Adamson (Kilmarnock) The awards appeared to give general satisfaction.

WEYBRIDGE.

The 11th annual show of the Weybridge and Dist. F.S. was held on November 11th and 12th in the Holstein Hall, which is an exceptionally fine building for exhibitions of this character. An entry of about 300 cage birds was received. The show throughout was a great success. Mr. H. E Parrott (who, by the way, had out a grand team of Yorkses), is the secretary, and right well did he do his work, being ably assisted by Mr. W. R. Sharborn, and a good hard-working committee, composed of Messrs. R. Elwood (chairman), Bemstead (vice-chairman), Foster, Randall, Jennings, Briggs, Hodges, Marchant, Handford, Fogwell, Parrott, Senior, Cillingham, Underwood, junr., Lees and Webb. The president, the Right Hon. Earl Stamford (who takes a keen interest in the society), gave away the prizes, including the five cups and medals, which the committee were able to offer for competition through the generosity of the subscribers. The Yorkshires were the best that have ever been benched here, and made a grand show—Norwich, Crests and Borders were also of good quality, and the British and Foreign were a nice and pretty collection. Mr. T. Heath judged, and his awards were well received.

MARYHILL.

The 32nd annual Show of Scotch Fancy Canaries was held in the Maryhill Burgh Hall on November 7th. There were 95 entries, which was satisfactory, considering the unfortunate luck of some of the members in not managing to secure young birds. Mr. Ferguson, the popular president, superintended the show, and welcomed members and visitors. Mr. Bell is a most capable secretary, and has the work of the association at heart. The quality of the birds was above the average. The cup for best bird, and for best hen was won by Mr. Cliff Bell, the secretary, with a yell. hen of excellent qualities, while the honour for best cock was carried off by Mr. Anderson, with a very stylish Buff Piebald, with a wonderful droop. The association has a future before it. The judges were Messrs. W. Hutchinson (Slamannan), and J. Smith (Govan). The show was well patronised by the members and friends.

MAIDSTONE.

This show, the 19th annual, open to a six miles radius, was a greater success than ever this year. Held in the well-lighted Corn Exchange, on November 6th and 7th, the entry was a capital one. About 120 birds were staged, and the quality was very good throughout, especially in the British section. Mr. A. Day is an ideal secretary, kindly, firm, and practical. He has an excellent assistant in Mr. A. Hayman. The veteran Mr. G. Barney is chairman, and was here, there, and everywhere lending a helping hand. Amongst the others who assisted were the following:—Messrs. Lancaster (vice-chairman); Parks (trustee); E. F. Tadman, R. Woodhams, Buck, Froud, Stanley, Lott, Harden, Whibley (committee). His Worship the Mayor of Maidstone attended, and opened the show, making an excellent and appropriate speech. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards appeared to give general satisfaction. The special for best bird, also Hyde's special was awarded to Mr. F. Hills, for a really nice unfed Yellow Norwich Plainhead.

CARSHALTON.

The 2nd annual show was held in the Public Hall on November 11th, and a very large entry in the total of a mixed show was the result, taxing to its utmost extent the capacity of the hall. Mr. D. Jones, the courteous and able hon. secretary, did everything possible for the comfort of the exhibits and the convenience of exhibitors. He was well backed up by the chairman, Mr. R. H. Jacob, and the committee, but in our section notably by Messrs. R. P. Broome and G. W. Saunders. Mr. D. H. Hudson, the excellent assistant secretary, seconded the efforts of his chief. W. Dennis ,Esq., C.C., is the president, and he, too, takes a great interest in its welfare. We might suggest that a slightly extended and more attractive classification in the open section should be arranged for another year and that a few of the "good things provided" should be allotted to this section. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

OPEN NOR. (6): 1, vhc, Kilby, the now well-known unflig. yell., looking in splendid trim; 3, hc, Muscutt, another unflig. yell., rich in colour, good body shape, tip-top quality of feather; res, Stroud, smart tkd yell., good colour; c, Stroud. A.O.V. CAN. BRIT. This was a really attractive class.

LEEK.

The 8th annual exhibition connected with the Leek and District F.S., was held on November 12th. The entries turned up well, creating a record total of upwards of 230. The specimens were neatly staged, in the Co-operative Hall, which is of good size (quite capable of accommodating 500 birds), nice light (electric by night), cosy, well ventilated, and comfortable. A capital schedule was issued, and fully deserved the liberal response received. Yorkshires were by far, the choicest collection, ever seen at this fixture. We were informed there was not a single breeder of the "straight 'nus' in the whole town, may be the "Yorkshire fever" will break out in the noted Potteries district ere long. Norwich were also well represented, and contained several very meritorious specimens. Mule and British were of a nice order, and the open Novice section displayed some capital exhibits. The president is C. Watson, Esq. The committee are a band of most willing workers, who all do their utmost to help things on, in the way they should go, and are to be highly complimented. The secretary is Mr. R. Hall, who is an excellent manipulator, having the correct workings of a show at his finger tips; he is evidently master of his job. Leek are lucky to have in their midst such an enthusiastic and courteous Fancier. Messrs. Whetstone, Gibson, Clews and Hawley played their part admirably as stewards, affixing prize slips and so forth promptly after each class was adjudicated upon. The show opened in good time, and every thing went smoothly and well. Hyde's special went to Mr. R. Hall, his clear Buff Nor. then doing the trick. Sandford's, for hottest, was captured by a clear yell. Nor. owned by Mr W. Whetstone, the same bird also gaining special for best vhc, shown by the members. The best Nor. cock was staged by Mr. W. Bowyer, the best hen by Messrs. Moore and Son, Mule, Messrs. Clowes and Son (a good Greenie-Bullie), best British, Mr. P. V. Williams (a lovely grey Wagtail), best Yorkie, Mr. J. Burke, best Novice Nor., Mr. S. Oliver. Members' specials were won by Messrs. W. Whetstone, R. Hall, and W. Whetstone, in the order named, for 1st, 2nd, and 3rd best shown. The judge was Mr. J. H. Roe.

STOKE NEWINGTON.

The sixth annual members' show of the Stoke Newington F.A. was held in the Schoolroom of the Devonshire Square Church, on October 27th and 28th, and reflected the greatest credit on the hon. sec., Mr. Geo. Dowden, and all concerned. The officers are an enthusiastic body of fanciers, the chairman being Mr. W. Morris; vice-chairman, Mr. E. G. Rhodes; committee, Messrs. Bagley, Hawkins, Fox, Lacey, Churchman, Spence, Ford, Hatchett, Beard and Dane; while Mr. G. Niblett makes an efficient hon. assistant secretary. The room is a capital place in which to hold a show, being capable of accommodating a large number of exhibits, and, for such a room, exceedingly free from draughts. The entry was not so good, in point of numbers, as the membership would seem to guarantee, but the quality of the exhibits was excellent. The cup for the best bird bred by a member during 1908, was won by Mr. C. Bennett (of the novice section), with a rattling unflighted buff Yorkshire. Yorkshires all round were nice, Mr. Sweetman staging a good team; while Mr. Farmer sent half-a-dozen rattling Crests and Crestbreds. Norwich were not numerous. There was a capital class of non-feds however British did not shine conspicuously, and there was nothing startling in the Foreigners. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged. Prize labels were promptly attached to the cages, and everything ready for visitors early. The weather was exceedingly unpropitious rain descending in torrents in the afternoon and early evening of the first day, which no doubt militated against the "gate."

YORKS (4): 1, spl, 3, res, vhc, Sweetman, leader spanking yell., straight as a dart, fine silky feather, grand level colour; 3, clinking buff, smart, but not quite the character of first. UNFLIG. (6): 1, spl, 2, 3, res, vhc, he, Farmer, winner really well built grey Crest, with crest of splendid formation, nice centre, good length all round, rare quality of feather; 2, nearly green C.B., dense and long, capital width of individual feathers; 3, wing mkd, D.C., nicely groomed, but not the evenness of formation of winner. NOVICE CLASSES.—NOR. CK. (4): 1, res, Hale, the former thick-set grand quality yell.; 3, vhc, Tuckey, close feathered, rich coloured buff leading. HEN. NON-FED (6): 1, spl, 2, res, two really good buffs, first bonny fellow, best quality of feather, grand type; 2, good, but just tries the table flap business with its tail now and again; 3, vhc, he, Ford; one of the best classes of non-fed birds for type and quality we have seen. YORKS. (4): 1, spl, res Ford; 3, Lacey; vhc, Mead; by no means such a good class as the Nor. BRIT. FINCH (5): 1, spl, Ford, very pretty Chaffinch, well up in colour; 2, Hudson, another Chaffy, not so lustrous; res, vhc, he, Hudson. FOR. (6): 1, spl, 2, 3, Miss Rimington; all very well staged, but there were three birds entered in this class apparently in error, viz. an ordinary Canary, a Goldfinch and a Greenfinch, and all were described in the catalogue as "Australians." CHILDREN'S CAGE BIRD (3): 1, Emily Hawkins, nice buff Nor clean, good feather and shape, needs nicer and more roomy cage; 2, Bertha Dowden, nearly green Nor., well kept, in nice feather; 3, Marjory Loft, Crest of the olden time, when the early tassel-crown came out, and radiation and length were in their infancy.

KILMARNOCK.

The Kilmarnock C.B.F.C. held their 34th annual show, in the Co-operative Hall, on November 7th, and it was without a doubt a complete success. The hall is one of the best for a bird show we have been in, having plenty of room, good, clear light. Entries numbered altogether 486, being 39 in advance of last year's show. The quality was of the best, many good birds not getting a "look in." Mr. A. Reid the judge on the Scotch Fancies, and Mr. Geo. Scear of the Norwich and the Crests, and we heard no complaints. Borders were superb, many watches being staged; 124 of this variety were here, and Mr. Wm. Moore (Annbank), who judged them, had hard work in selecting the best. Mr. Moore Reid (Glasgow) had a lot to do in the Mule, British and Foreign birds' section, where the quantity and quality also were good. This club is fortunate in having a secretary like Mr. R. McCaw, as he is most obliging and very attentive to his duties. The stewards, namely, Mr. J. Jones, Mr. Wm. Smith, Mr. J. Johnstone, and Mr. H. Train, also knew their duties, and did them well. The various cup winners were as follows:—For most points in Scotch Fancies, Mr. A. Bowie; in Crests, Mr. J. Noble; in Borders, Mr. Wm. Clark; in Mules, Mr. R. McCaw; and in British and Foreign, Mr. A. Mackie. Johnstone Cup and gold medal for best bird in show went to Mr. J. Noble.

SOUTHEND.

Southend held their 2nd annual show in the Clarence Hall, on November 3rd. The room is one of the best in the kingdom for a bird show, being well lighted from the roof, and free from draughts. Mr. J. Dobson, the hon. sec, had the birds well staged in good time, and was ably assisted by a hard working committee composed of Messrs. Patrick, Cunningham, Macklon, Cundy, Franks, Quilter, and Jenrics. The Yorks section turned up strong and some real good birds were staged by Messrs. Rennie, Patrick, Webb, Easterling, Knight, Elsmore, Mabey, Bishop, etc. Mr. Rennie won the diploma with a yellow unflig, one of the best we have seen for many a year; a "non-such," this bird will take some stopping in the best of company. Mr. Rennie ought to feel proud to be the owner of such a bird. The Norwich section was all cancelled. Some good birds were staged in the Novice Yorkshires. British and Foreign turned up well, and some really good specimens were staged. Messrs. Mundell (Bradford) and Easterling (London) judged.

NEWTOWN ST. BOSWELLS.

St. Boswells held their second annual show on Nov. 7th, and it proved a record success. Entries in the cage bird section were far in advance of those of last year, and some grand specimens were staged. Borders were a grand collection, and the medal was secured by a nice positioned yellow cock, owned by Mr. J. Blaikie. Greens and Cinnamons were a splendid lot. This variety was judged by Mr. J. Nell. Scotch Fancies were good, and Norwich were strong, some good ones being on view. The British, however, were the show here the award was secured by Messrs. Linden [illegible] fare. This section was judged by Mr J. W. Bruce. The hall is a very suitable one for a cage bird show, and the day was perfect for judging. The management was excellent. Mr. Robertson, the highly esteemed secretary, had everything in apple-pie order, and was ably assisted by his willing stewards. The show was largely patronised by the neighbouring gentry, and all went towards making the show a grand success. The judges' awards gave great satisfaction.

By H. W. Battye (President of the Yorkshire Union.) Illustrated by Messrs. H. Norman and A. J. Simpson.

Absolutely the very best Handbook that has ever been out on the market. It deals fully with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties, and should be in the hands of every breeder of the Bird of Grace and Beauty. It contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat it both health and disease.

"CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON

Warrington.

The 13th annual show came off on Nov. 13 and 14 in the Conservative Club. The show had the patronage of the G.C.A. and the N.F.C., and was under new management, with Mr. W. R. Knowles as chairman and Mr. C. Dukes as hon. secretary. A fresh method of staging was adopted two tiers—which was a distinct improvement, but made a little stronger another year those would appear lighter and safer. The exhibits were ready much sooner than usual for judging, and the work was got in hand in good time. Yorkshires led the way and quality was much in evidence, some of the cracks turning up in force. Norwich were very good, too, and the club patronage brought teams of the top sawyers out. Both Yorkshire and Norwich Greens were very strong both in numbers and quality, and the Green Canary Club points are very eagerly watched and counted up as each show comes round. Hybrids and British were not at all numerous, and most of these classes did not stand. A few very neat Goldfinches and Linnets, however, came out. Foreigners were few, but very pretty and attracted much attention. A grand list of specials was given this year, and those who did not send here missed something. Mr. Dukes handled his secretarial duties very well, and he will make a useful hon. secretary for Warrington if they stick to him. His co-workers are young men with plenty of tact and go in them, and if they keep united they will keep improving at each show. The society will do well to insert the names of officials and committee in the schedules and catalogues another year. Captain Crossfield very kindly opened the show in a formal manner, and all went as merry as a marriage bell. Mr. H. W. Battye judged the Yorkshires, gilt, and selling classes; and Mr. Wellings the Norwich, British and foreign; we heard very little grumbling.

PAISLEY.

The 24th annual exhibition and competition of the Old, the Burgh, and the Tannahill Clubs, was held on November 7th, in the North Minor Town Hall. The entries were largely in excess of those of former years; about 250 birds, all Scotch Fancies, were staged. The amalgamation prize for best bird in hall was won by Mr. Menzies of the Burgh Club, with a clean Buff cock bird. The second was won by Mr. Price, of the Tannahill Club with a Buff piebald hen, and the third by Mr. J. Kennedy, jun., also of the Tannahill Club. There was a large turnout of visitors in the afternoon, and the show was one of the best held for a number of years.

BO M'N.

The 16th annual open show was held on Nov. 11th, and added another success to its vigorous career. The cage birds were staged in the large and spacious Market House, which answered the purpose admirably. The entry totalled 170, being an increase on the previous year's total. The president this year is F. Buller Howell, Esq., and its membership numbers nearly 400. It is also fortunate enough to have as its organiser one of the best secretaries in the county; he holds the reins in such a gentle and pleasing manner that everything goes like clockwork, and is kept in apple-pie order. In him the society have a real good worker, who deserves their fullest support. He was ably supported by the committee, composed of Messrs. Spear, Adams, Bartlett, Bray, Brewer, Brown, G. Buscombe, R. T. Buscombe, Dale, Edyvean, Hards, Harris, Jane, W. Hender, W. Hender, jun., Hore, Kendall, Kistler, Lean, Liddell, May, Northcott, Perkin, Pincombe, Scott, Shelly, G. Spear, W. Spear, Stevenson, Tickell, Tiverton, Verran and West. The show was thronged with visitors, and in the evening one could scarcely move among them. The show was an unqualified success, and a bumping gate was realised, the handsome sum of £109 being netted. This annual fixture is now recognised as one of the best and most successful held in the county. Norwich were a really good lot, of high merit, and the Yorks. although not numerous included several good specimens. The Crest was rather disappointing in numbers, but quality was excellent. Messrs. J and J. Symon's Crest took the special for best bird in show. The Goldfinches were a good lot and the small British, which numbered 20, were considered the best ever staged in the county. Mr. S. Tickell judged, and from the complimentary remarks that were heard from many exhibitors his awards seemed well received.

THE SHOW SEASON IS PASSING QUICKLY.

Do not let your chance slip by

If you want to secure a life-like picture of your exhibition birds

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER: The Shows this week are Cardiff, Nov 25 and 26, and Leeds, Nov. 27 and 28.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

In addition to the shows given underneath our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

November 25th and 26th.—Cardiff.
November 27th and 28th.—Leeds.
December 11th.—Gateshead.
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

My Unflighted Buff Norwich which appeared on the front page of CAGE BIRDS on October 10th is, I am pleased to say, keeping up his reputation, as on Thursday last he won 1st and 3 specials, including cup for best in show, at Merthyr. Owing to the life-like sketch fanciers have formed an idea of the type of my birds, which has resulted in many sales, not to speak of a few good offers for the original itself.—H. W. SHELDON (Llandudno).

It was a complete surprise to me to find my Buff Yorkshire illustrated upon the cover of your valuable journal, and I should have felt even more gratified had the bird been bred by myself, but it forms part of the collection I recently acquired from Mr. R. P. Broome, of Sutton. I find it difficult, I may say, to convince my friends that this picture had not been pre-arranged by me, and I should feel very grateful to you for correcting this impression. With many thanks and all good wishes for the continued prosperity of the bird paper par excellence.—H. E. TRINGHAM (Lambeth, S.E.)

(We are at a loss to understand the attitude of his friends which Mr. Tringham refers to. Our "Portrayal of Prize-Winners" scheme in nowise prevents us depicting in our pages any of the birds exhibited at a show, providing we think they possess sufficient merit.—EDITOR.)

We have been a little annoyed, but more than a little amused, by the receipt recently of a letter from a Scotch friend of ours regarding our "Portrayal of Prize Winners" scheme. As our readers are aware, this scheme has only been entered on by us with a view of benefiting provincial fanciers. It entails great expense and work and considerable sacrifice both on our part and Mr. Norman's. We have never yet met the human being, however who was not ready to accept something for nothing, and not only examine his "gift horse" in the mouth, but cavil at each of its points. CAGE BIRDS, it is said by adopting this scheme is "purveying for the rich and throwing the poor fanciers overboard." Our correspondent evidently loses sight of the fact that these "poor fanciers" to whom he refers were never catered for before at all. For the sum of 5s. the working-man fancier can now have a portrait of his bird in CAGE BIRDS, a portrait which costs us at least two guineas to produce. If a man has won a prize—and he cannot expect his bird to be sketched unless he has done so—the sum of 5s. is surely an extremely moderate amount to pay for such a permanent momento of a successful exhibit. As an advertisement alone it is worth five times the sum. The actual sketch is, of course, presented to the owner of the bird. We do not like to resuscitate the time-honoured joke about "bang goes six-pence," but we cannot prevent its flashing across our mind when we read such comments upon Mr. Norman's graciously liberal idea. Fortunately such narrow views seem rare, for the scheme has met with a measure of appreciation ample enough in all conscience to compensate Mr. Norman and ourselves (morally, if not financially).

Don't Miss Next Week's Special.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

LAISTERDYKE Show, held Saturday last, proved a great success, a grand total of 446 birds being entered, an average of a trifle over 17 per class. The Gloucester Locked classes, unfortunately, were again a failure; only 17 birds in the two. Where oh where, are all the birds the marked breeders used to be afraid of? They will have to be relegated to the breeding room, if this is the way they are going to turn up. I am afraid the C.M.Y.C.C. will lose more than they expected to do, when they guaranteed half the loss to societies who made classes for "ticked 'uns." The show was greatly favoured in the selling classes, several birds having four or five "claims," and these were run up to a good figure, about four times the stated price; result, a substantial balance to the L.B.F.A.

WIBSEY and District C.B.S. held a very successful members' show on the evening of the 14th, no less than [illegible] Mr. Bennett, of Gt. Horton, in the 9 classes. Rather a stiff task to go through after 8 p.m., eh, Thomas? The most points were gained by Messrs. Hardaker, Shaw, Taylor Bros., and Swailes in the order named. On Saturday evening next, at 6 p.m. the members and friends of this society sit down to a 'Beast Heart Supper." Friends are heartily invited; there will be enough for all, as they never run short. It will make a good finish to run up here after the West show and attend to the wants of the inner man.

ECCLESHILL C.B.A. have had a change of secretary, and the new official, Mr. Tom Elsegood is very enthusiastic, and labour up hard for the success of their show, to be held a few weeks hence. It is to be hoped that a "bumper" entry will be the result of his labours.

MR. J. Hartley gave a washing exhibition before the members and friends of the Tong Society on Tuesday the 9th inst., and his methods were very closely and attentively watched by a good company of fanciers, which contained a fair sprinkling of novices to whom an evening of this description is very interesting and beneficial. A number of questions were very satisfactorily answered and a hearty vote of thanks was given Mr. Hartley.

BRADFORD and District fanciers were very pleased to see one of their old friends amongst them for a few days, in the person of Mr. A. E. Pattrick, of Southend-on-Sea, who had brought with him another enthusiast, Mr J. W. Webb, also of Southend. They appeared to be enjoying themselves very thoroughly in a run round the show at Laisterdyke and the various rooms of old friends in the Bradford district.

THE committee formed to deal with the grievances which fanciers labour under at the hands of the various railway companies have at last received replies from some of the companies to their communications, but have obtained no satisfaction at all; the companies simply state they cannot see their way to alter existing conditions. Many friends really expected that either one or other of the requests would be granted, and therefore will be greatly disappointed. The one in regard to fanciers being allowed to take their birds with them when going to and from shows was probably the favourite. How is it that it is at the small stations where trouble usually takes place? I suppose the man in charge has not enough to occupy his attention. What about the 10 or 12 fanciers who refused to book their birds from a certain station and had to give their names and addresses: have they heard anything yet? I think not.

THE following little story is interesting. A certain fancier was just entering a station with some birds in a case when he was informed that certain other fanciers had just had to pay to take their birds with them. What did he do but retrace his steps a little, and secure a paper bag, in which he placed his birds, anticipating getting through free when his case was empty. Result, nobody ever wanted to know what he had in the box! Hard lines!

CANARY QUERIES.

Keeping Birds in Bedroom.

Workman.—Unless it could be clearly proved that your birds were a nuisance, and a danger to the public health, I do not suppose anyone could compel you to cease keeping them. If you choose to keep them in the bedroom because you have no other convenience for housing them, it is, I imagine, solely a question for you yourself to decide, and no one has any right to interfere with your choice. In a good-sized, well-ventilated room, when the birds are kept in a nice, clean condition, I see no insuperable objection to setting apart a separate corner for the birds if one chooses so to do, and, in fact, I know there are scores of fanciers with no other convenience who keep a few birds in the bedroom. Of course, with other convenience for keeping them, few, I suppose, would keep them there.

The Roller's Capacity.

"Notts."—In trade terms seven birds compose what is called a "stick" of Canaries. As to the number of "genuine" changes a Roller is capable of singing is a "poser" I do not care about attempting to settle dogmatically. It is a point altogether too ticklish and controversial to settle in this way, and can only be satisfactorily dealt with by specialist Roller breeders and trainers. This much I may say, however, that the enormous number of changes so often rattled off by vendors of these birds are purely visionary, and I should imagine that a bird that sang a dozen of what you call "genuine changes" would not be at the foot of it's class by any means. But it all depends upon what one calls a change, or a "genuine" change. In recent years, as you perhaps know, variety has not been so much sought after as length depth, and purity of rolling tones, and in consequence the best birds of to-day sing fewer changes than their predecessors of some years ago.

Moulting and Hoarseness.

H.L.—As you seem sure your bird is not exposed to either draught or damp, there are yet two other frequent causes of such a condition which you must satisfy yourself do not exist, i.e., great fluctuation of temperature, such as a very warm place, which becomes correspondingly cold at night. Reduce at once, by greatly lowering the vitality, will also cause this constant dropping of stray feathers, as well as opening the door to numerous other ills. Look well into both these matters in the first instance. Keep bird in a comfortable, but equable, temperature, not necessarily overheated, and feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one summer rape. In addition, give every second day, half a teaspoonful of egg food, or crushed sponge cake in which two drops of cod liver oil emulsion have been well mixed, twice a week a few grains of hemp seed, and a little green food on each of the other days. In the drinking water give first for two days as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after that five drops of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight and on the alternate days twenty drops of chemical food. By this time the moulting should be stopped, and all the medicine and the egg food may be stopped, save for giving a little now and of the latter once or twice a week. If the wheeziness is then still in evidence, give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and tincture of tolu to the water every second day for a week or so, with pure water on the alternate days.

A Troublesome Norwich.

T. Nolan.—The condition of the bowels is probably at the root of all the evil, and your feeding may be the original cause. Feed for a while on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of egg food. On each of the other days give a spray of watercress. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twelve drops of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and tincture of tolu. See its cage does not hang over the fumes of the lamp you burn all night, and do not omit a supply of gritty sand in the cage always.

Aviary Accommodation.

H.A.B.—I do not fully understand the size of your cage-aviary, which you say is 5 feet by 6 feet by 18 inches deep. If the floor space is 5 feet by 6 feet, and the depth reckoned from floor to ceiling, it will accommodate from 20 to 25 birds the size of a Canary, but not more, on account of the low roof. If the floor space is 5 feet by 18 inches, it will only accommodate seven, and if 6 feet by 18 inches, nine. Calculate always on the basis of not more than one bird the size of a Canary to every square foot of floor space, and to begin the breeding season when the young will fly with the parents not more than a third of the full number is sufficient. Certainly you could introduce hen Canaries with the Linnets, but have only cock Linnets, and allow one to about every two or three hens. It will not be necessary to house the Linnet during winter.

Bird for Stock.

"Robert."—The pair of Norwich which bred the cinnamon marked cock had certainly got a good proportion of cinnamon blood in their veins. The cross is often introduced to improve colour or quality of feathers, but is deprecated by many of the best breeders, and with good reason, seeing there exists plenty of material in the pure Norwich to supply every demand in the building up of size, colour, and quality. If you have plenty of material on hand I would scarcely advise you to retain the cinnamon marked for breeding, but, on the other hand, as the bird seems good in Norwich qualities, and if your own have any little tendency to coarseness in feather, by all means keep it and mate it with a clear yellow hen whose feather is not quite so silky as it should be. See the hen has good all round head and tail Norwich properties.

Weaknesses of Yorkshires.

Novice.—To take your last question first, my reply is no; I do not consider Yorkshires, if kept under proper treatment, are any more subject to wheeziness than any other variety. On the contrary, they are as hardy as most other varieties. To tighten up your bird, treat as follows: Discontinue the seed mixture you are using, and give instead half a teaspoonful of summer rape per bird twice a week, on two other days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake, and a few grains of hemp twice a week. Give these alternately, and on different days. A few grains of linseed two or three times a week will help to add a polish to the plumage, but when giving this you should withhold the hemp, and give the linseed as a substitute, not as an addition. In the drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give five drops of tincture of steel.

Glass Roof Difficulties.

"Furness."—Am at a loss to know how you can quite get over the difficulty of moisture forming on the underside of the glass roof. To prevent it there should be little, if any, difference in the temperature inside the aviary and out in the open air. My previous suggestions embodied quite as much free ventilation as I consider good for the welfare of the bird, and as the moisture still forms now you have carried out the suggestion, it is evident the ventilation is still inefficient to overcome the difficulty. I can only suggest further that you lay a covering of felt over the glass in very cold weather; or you might try the effect of wiping over the underside of the glass with a rag moistened in paraffin, and wipe off all visible trace again, and either paint the outer side of the glass with "summer cloud" shading as is used for greenhouses in summer, or dab it all over with a ball of fresh, soft putty. This latter method may overcome the difficulty, but it will, of course, be at the expense of spoiling the appearance of the glass roof. If it does not stop it then, I should advise you to substitute a wooden roof for the glass one.

Loss of Feathers.

Mr. L. Hines.—You ought to have said how you feed and treat the bird generally, as bad feeding may be the cause of all her feathers coming off, and of no others appearing to replace them. Examine cage well to see if it is infested with redmite. Keep it quite clean, and well strewn with gritty sand. Keep it also in a fairly warm place, and allow the bird to bathe frequently, but see there is no danger of its getting chilled afterwards. Feed on plain Canary seed daily as a staple, and give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of summer rape, twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, and three times a week a spray of watercress. Give all these alternately, and on different days, so that a different one is given each day. Get as much flower of sulphur as will cover a sixpence, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny piece, and mix well together, divide into four equal parts and add one portion to the sponge cake each time you give it in the first fortnight. To the drinking water add twelve drops of chemical food every second day for a month. Sufficient permanganate of potash may be added to the bathing water with advantage, to make it slightly pink in colour.

Yorkshires in a Bad Way.

Novice.—Am afraid your bird has gone too far for much improvement, much less to be cured. The failure to moult will also be against it. Keep it in a fairly warm place, but see there is not a very great difference in the day and night temperatures. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple for the next few weeks, and give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately twice a week, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of egg food, and twice a week a few grains of hemp. Give these alternately. Two or three times a week give a small spray of watercress. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for the first two days, and after that twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and ipecacuanha wine every second day for a fortnight. Give pure water on alternate days. If there is not a distinct improvement by that time after medicine to same quantity of whiskey and glycerine, and two drops of eucalyptus oil; try this for a fortnight every second day. Shake it thoroughly before putting it on the cage.

Starting a good Stud.

C.B.D.—If the facts are as you state and the birds were wheezy on arrival, you should have returned them without delay. By keeping them as the foundation of a stud you are doubtless laying up an endless store of worry. Of course you could scarcely expect the breeder to have them returned now after a lapse of three or four weeks. Your feeding is not very good. Discontinue the mixed seed you are using, and give in addition to the staple of plain Canary seed half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and half a teaspoonful of egg food and a few hemp seeds each twice a week. Give all separately, on different days. Every second or third day give a spray of watercress. See the birds are fully protected from draughts and chills, and in the drinking water give every second day for a week or a fortnight as may seem necessary, twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus. Shake it thoroughly before hanging it on the cage.

A Variety.

"Amateur."—I begin with No. 4. The effect of mating a Roller cock with a Norwich hen would be to give you a larger, better coloured, and more stylish type of bird, which would make good singers, softer and more varied than the pure Norwich, but not so good as the pure Roller itself. (5) So far as I can judge from the plan you send, you could not improve upon the position of your cages in the kitchen. There is no door to the upper rooms marked on the plan, and this may make a difference. But if there is no other door which would draw a current of air round where the cages hang you could hardly improve upon the position. (6) The practice of keeping a lump of sugar fixed in the wires of the cage is harmless enough to be tolerated. There is no doubt it helps to prevent the beak getting overgrown. (7) Your bird probably moulted all right last month. Because they did not present a bedraggled appearance at any time is no reason for suspecting they had not moulted properly. Some birds moult much more gradually than others, and never present a ragged appearance over it.

We are Seven.

Rednob.—(1) This is the effect of constipation. Add ten drops of glycerine and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the drinking water daily for two or three days, and every alternate day afterwards until the effect has quite disappeared. (2) The violent changes of temperature we had recently are doubtless the cause of many birds not finishing off the moult properly at the head. Keep the temperature up to 60 degrees, and add a few blades of saffron and twenty drops of whisky to the drinking water for a few days. Let them bathe as often as they will in fair weather, but guard against chills afterwards. (3) The temperature is quite high enough for anything for a regular thing. In fact as soon as the moult is righted, I should prefer to drop it by an average of at least 5 degrees. (4) I should also discontinue the seed mixture you give and substitute a few grains of linseed once or twice a week until the moult is quite complete, and then give half a teaspoonful of hemp per bird twice a week instead. (5) Don't see how you can improve upon this in the way of cleanliness. I assume you give a supply of gritty sand in some separate receptacle. (6 and 7) Also seem quite satisfactory, and need no amendment.

Breeding Outdoors

A. Bearman.—As your aviary is only covered with wire netting for a depth of two feet in front it is practically on open-air flight, as it will be subject to just the same fluctuations as an open shed. Under these circumstances you cannot expect to succeed in turning in any but the hardiest breeds: and of these only such as have been bred under normal conditions, either in cold rooms or out-door aviaries; at this season of the year, especially if you wish to keep them in cages and exercise personal control over their breeding. Of the hardy type of birds mentioned you might turn them in now, if you were going to allow them to fly about at liberty until next spring, but as we are so near to winter it would be scarcely advisable to keep them in cages, and thus limit their opportunities for exercise. On the whole you would be well advised to wait until the Spring before stocking the place. You would probably raise a greater number of birds by letting the parents fly loose, and allow one cock to about every three hens. The aviary will accommodate about twenty birds; or, as an initial stock to commence breeding, three cocks and nine hens would be ample.

Yorkshire Off Song.

"Yorky."—If the bird appears quite well and vigorous save for being weak in voice and not singing it may be nothing more serious than its age, which keeps it from coming into song again. Many birds after the first few seasons do not resume their full song after moulting until the approach of the following spring. But still the position in which you keep it—in an all wire cage in a window—is about the worst possible position for preserving its song. I would certainly advise you to remove it to a nice bright position, further in the room, where there is a comfortable and equable temperature, free from any draughts. A box cage, or at least one with wires in the front and ends only, would also be best unless you are quite convinced there is no possibility of draughts troubling the bird in an open cage. Keep a sharp look out for red mites, and the cage quite clean and the floor strewn with gritty sand. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape seed, as a staple, and give separately a few grains of hemp twice a week, and three times a week half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with five drops of sherry mixed in it. Give a scrap of green food every second day. Add to its drinking water for a few days tey drops of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and mucilage of gum arabic.

Hoarseness, etc.

G.W.S.K.—1 and 2. Both the Yorkshire and Norwich seem to be troubled with a similar ailment, which is probably due to draughts or great variation of heat. As you seem convinced it is not the former, and as the birds hang in a cosy corner by the fire, it may possibly be the latter. Perhaps they get very warm from the fire by day, and at night the fire is put out, and then in the early hours of the morning it is exceptionally cold. If so, remove the birds to a place farther from the fire where the day and night temperature will be more equal, but see they are quite free from draughts. Give plain Canary seed only as a staple diet for a few weeks, and give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of summer rape on two other days half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and a spray of watercress on each of the remaining days. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty of whisky ten of glycerine, and five of syrup of squills. The latter you may continue for a fortnight if necessary. You might also put a bit of fat boiled bacon in the wires. 3. I do not quite understand this query, unless it is that you think of converting the shut-up bod into an aviary, and want to know whether it would be best to have it all in one big flight or divided into smaller compartments. If so, it depends upon what you wish to breed. If pure-bred birds of good quality, it is essential that you should certainly divide the aviary into separate compartments—one for each pair.

Brevities.

Swelling under Eye (J. W. Dendy).—It is probably a small abscess. Bathe it morning and evening with warm water until it seems "ripe" for breaking, then prick it with a clean sharp needle and gently press contents out. Bathe in a warm solution of permanganate of potash, dry on a soft rag and slightly anoint with a little boracic ointment each evening. It will not be any detriment to his breeding next year. If the bowels are at all constipated a saline aperient every few days for a while would be very useful.

Feeding up for Breeding (T. Jenque, Sheffield).—I have not a copy of the book at hand at the moment to refer to, but I feel sure you will find the proper time and method of feeding up discussed. The ordinary winter diet should be continued until end of February; then begin to give a more generous diet, by easy stages (not all at once), during the last few days of February, or early in March, and continue feeding up until end of March, when you may begin to mate up the birds as they come into breeding condition.

A Late Clutch (R.E.C.).—You may be feeding a little too generously, or keeping her too warm, and perhaps in close vicinity to vigorous singing cock, which has induced her to lay a full clutch of eggs. Feed on a staple of plain Canary only. It would be best to keep her in a different room away from the cocks. This episode will not be detrimental to her in the forthcoming spring. You did quite right to take the eggs away.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS

About Brambleﬁnches.

D.F.—1. I do not think for one moment that you are likely to have much luck in trying to breed Bramblefinches in a cage kept in a bedroom. I don't suppose they would be easy subjects in any place other than an extensive aviary. It would be an interesting experiment, of course. 2. If you want to try for hybrids, then a Chaffinch is the best mate for a Bramble—that is, so far as known results teach one. If you ever feel inclined to experiment in this direction, then you might try, as a mate, any Finch of about the same size—a Canary if you like. 3. There is almost as much difference twixt cock and hen Bramblefinches as there is between cock and hen Chaffinches. The cock has a bright reddish brown breast and a glossy, dense black head and upper back, "spangled" with brown. The hen has but a dull, light-brown breast, tinged with yellow, at the best of times, and a brownish head, shaded with ashy-black. A normal-coloured Bramble has no white ring round the neck; are you sure you really have birds of this species? 4. Value sixpence to 2/6, fresh caught, of average merit. Show specimens anything up to £5.

About a Thrush.

E. Mackay.—1. The Thrush will not stand the winter through with comfort out-of-doors in a cage hung on a wall with a north-east aspect—a very bleak one. You are wrong in assuming the Song Thrush to be a migrant (in the same sense, that is, as the Nightingale), but for all that there is a limit to their endurance, and a cage offers small chance for exercise. I should not care to leave any bird of mine outdoors in all weathers when in a cage. 2. Your cage seems to me to be a very suitable one. The pattern Mr. Norman illustrates in his book is intended as a guide for those in doubt as to what is a desirable cage; not to convey that those of dissimilar style are necessarily undesirable. 3. The bird certainly ought to be singing loudly now, as a rule, it is to be well over the moult. I advise you to give it a fair supply of live food, say a dozen fat mealworms daily, a few snails (provide a biggish stone in the cage for the bird to hang them on), also gentles and blackbeetles (cockroaches); all these things are far from difficult to obtain, and ought to bring the bird out in song. Vary them, of course; do not give all at the same time. I must confess that a Song Thrush which will not touch snails is a curiosity; as a rule I have personally kept were lovers of these succulent dainties than I am of frogs' legs stewed in old port.

Bunnish Wasting Canary Seed.

L.B.W.—I really cannot see that you have the slightest ground for uneasiness. What matters it that your Bunnie smells that does not eat Canary seed so long as she keeps knocking on the other seeds? And that she does keep making is proved by the fact that she laid eggs, two of which were for the last breeding season. You cannot well desire anything better of her. Of course, it may possibly be that you have a very inferior quality of Canary seed at the moment; on the other hand, the Bunnie may not care much for this seed, however good in quality. Trizzle, charnock and summer rape, with some sunflower, will suit her admirably, I am sure, giving a little hemp and maw, with wild seed mixture, as "titbits." I certainly should not risk upsetting the bird by dosing her with various medicines, or you'll probably soon lose her. Let her be without Canary seed for a month or two, then offer her a little of extra good quality, and she may then eat it without waiting it. Give her something to "play with," say, a piece of cuttlefish, or even the sunflower seeds will answer this purpose, by providing her with occupation in the shelling of them.

Linnet off Colour.

R. M. F.—I have no doubt that cheek in the moult is the cause of the trouble with your Linnet. Six weeks, however, is a lengthy period to let slip by without taking any steps to refit matters, and the probability is that you have delayed too long to have much chance of saving the bird if you can start the feathers falling again, the Linnet may possibly struggle through, but as he is he will of a certainty succumb. You could try the modification of the "vapour bath" plan a friend of mine was telling me about. Hang the cage in a warm corner of a heated room (near the fire), and cover it over with flannel; clothes that is, say, a small towel rung out in very hot (as hot as can be borne) water, repeating when cool. Keep it up for about an hour, and don't let the bird catch cold afterwards. In a day or two the feathers should commence to fall freely. If this treatment is ineffective, I know of nothing else likely to be helpful. A teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food in the drinking water every other day would be helpful.

Treatment of Waxwing.

A.F.—The Waxwing is not a difficult bird to cater for—that is, to anyone used to keeping insectivorous birds—nor is it difficult to keep. I have had no trouble with the several specimens I have owned. You are likely to lose them in the moult, of course, like most other species, and they have a bad habit of getting too fat. They cannot be said to be often on the market; the supply fluctuates remarkably during different years. The value depends entirely on the bird, its size, shape and colouring, and the perfection of the waxlike wing and tail appendages; also whether the market supply is good or bad. The Waxwing requires feeding on a good insectivorous mixture. A suitable food is made of game meal (without grit), or finely crushed puppy cakes, six parts, ants' eggs, and dried flies two parts each, meat meal and powdered silkworm pupæ one part each by measure. Damp with a little water grated raw carrot, cold mashed boiled potato, finely chopped watercress, lettuce, chickweed, etc., varying them frequently, and according to the season. Add half a hard boiled egg to the daily food portion occasionally or a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake. Give a few mealworms daily, and any other suitable insect life as in season. They are enormous feeders, and being indolent and neglectful in the matter of taking exercise, usually manage to get as "fat as pigs." A mild dose of sulphate of soda is useful occasionally; also a fly round a good-sized aviary or room. Fruit, such as banana, sweet orange and apple grocer's currants, raisins, etc., chopped figs and dates, is much relished, and should be frequently given mixed with the stock food. Berries, too, the bird is passionately fond of, and Black, privet, elder, haw, etc., should be freely given whenever obtainable. Plenty of variety in the diet is absolutely essential. I remember a well-known exhibitor of this species saying he gave his birds some crushed Canary seed and coarse oatmeal.

About a Bullfinch.

Soft Sammy.—The "saftest o' the family," eh? I don't believe you're so very "daft" though, after all, for you show good sense in taking up British bird keeping as a hobby. The Bullfinch is not exactly a difficult bird to cater for, though it is true that he (or she) is the shortest lived in captivity of all the Finch family. At least, that is my own experience, based on long years of familiarity with the species; and all my friends entitled to speak on the point bear me out in this. Your own Bullfinch should do well on the following stock mixture: Canary and teazle, two pints each, sunflower, safflower, linseed, summer rape, and charlock, half a pint each. You can reduce the proportion of sunflower and safflower if the bird does not eat it all or seems to leave part of it. As variety offer daily a pinch of one or the other of these things (in a separate vessel): maw, niger, hemp, wild seed mixture, thistle and dandelion; also give thistleheads, sharpheads, milk thistle, shepherd's purse, groundsel, chickweed, blackberries, buds from hawthorn hedge, fruit bushes, etc., as may be in season, some suitable ripe, sweet fruit (banana, pear, apple, cherry, orange, etc.), and a small mealworm or two, now and again. This will give you a pretty varied menu to ring the changes upon, and so afford that variety which will keep the bird in good health and condition. Always remember that Bullies are great fruit, bud and berry eaters by nature.

Brevities.

Identity of Bird (Bunting).—You are quite correct: the bird you have is a Reed Bunting, and your description shows it to be a hen. As regards its worth for exhibiting, I can only say that last week I awarded second prize to one (a beauty, in fine condition) in a class for hen British birds at Nottingham Show, and competition was exceedingly keen. Steadiness is a great point.

Nightingale Ailing (A. J. B.).—I think the change from a "pleasant" situation to the "rather dark" kitchen is quite sufficient to be the cause of your Nightingale going off song, and being in a more or less listless state. Can't you fix him up in a more cheerful spot? If puffed out and sleepy, give at once two doses (on alternate days) of fluid magnesia—a small teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. The feeding reads all right.

Names of Birds (G. J. Harding).—The graceful brown bird, with Robin-like beak, which you see feeding among the Sparrows, is the Hedge Accentor, more generally known as the Hedge Sparrow. The Tit is either the Coal Tit (if with a noticeable white streak at back of head) or the Marsh Tit (if with head uniformly black). Both are small ashy-grey birds, except for their black heads, and less common than Blue and Great Tits.

Room for Mule Breeding (G. Knot).—I should certainly prefer the empty outdoor room to the kitchen for the purpose of breeding Mules. If you care to put any question to me, I shall be pleased to try and answer same. I dealt very fully with the treatment of Linnets a fortnight ago in these columns. If in high condition and song (with blue beaks) they ought to breed.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S.

Yellow-Fronted Amazon in Moult.

Bill Bailey.—In addition to the seed mixture, an Amazon should have ripe fruit, nuts, green food, and plain biscuits in addition to the seed mixture, though that forms its staple diet, the other being given at intervals. A piece of clean cuttlefish should be kept continually in the cage. A little boiled maize twice a week is very wholesome for Amazons; but note, this only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be cleaned out for each occasion. Sprinkle the boiled maize with flowers of sulphur, and then stir up before supplying to the bird. The maize should have all water well squeezed from it. For the next two months make its drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food, letting it have clear water about once a week. Its bowels should be kept moving freely, but not watery loose; one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water in lieu of the chemical food will suffice to give relief if there should be any sign of constipation. Note warning re slops and table scraps in replies to other correspondents.

Parrakeet with Stiff Leg.

H. Green.—It may possibly be the age of the bird that is the cause of the trouble, but I certainly consider your method of feeding has aggravated the trouble, if it is not actually responsible for it. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food. Give two doses of Dinneford's Magnesia—one teaspoonful in its drinking water (about one ounce)—with three days between each dose; in between (and continue indefinitely) make the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food. Rub a little Elliman's Embrocation on the fleshy leg, and keep the bird out of draughts and damp. Diet: Seed mixture of canary and oats, two parts each, and one part each wheat, dari, maize, hemp, and sunflower seeds, well mix, and keep a supply always in the cage; also supply plain biscuits (dry), nuts, ripe fruit, and a little fresh lettuce occasionally. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish always in the cage. Note: In the matter of diet you cannot treat a Parrot as one of the family and keep it in health.

Blue-Fronted Amazon Gaping.

Mrs. Smith.—You will find the correct diet for an Amazon given in this issue in reply to another correspondent. I rather incline to the opinion that the bird is moulting, and that the pulling of the feathers is merely the assisting of the moult, which is quite natural with all species of birds. At the same time it has had something which has affected its digestion. Give two or three doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, with three days between each dose, and put the bird on a course of Parrish's Chemical Food; for directions see other replies in this issue. Keep a piece of clean cuttlefish in the cage and give a leaf of fresh lettuce occasionally. Keep the bird out of draught, and do not give any messes or table scraps. See other replies re this also. If the gaping does not yield to this treatment, repeat query with full details in a week or ten days' time.

What Parrakeet is it?

P.T.—(1) It is an Alexandrine (Palæornis alexandri). (2) Variable; I have heard quite talented birds and many others that only uttered a stray word or two. Keep where it will hear plenty of ordinary conversation, also train it by repeating to it odd words and short phrases as convenience permits, and it should certainly talk and mimic more or less. (3) The value is variable; a bird in good condition, that has been in this country over a year, would be worth 25s. at least—much more if a talker. Well-trained birds that do not scream and have a good vocabulary often change hands at £5 each; but such are exceptions, after all. The intelligence of individuals of the same species varies, so that it is worth the while bestowing care and patience on your bird. See reply to "H. Green" for diet, and diet yours on same lines. Note: The drugs will not be required in your case.

A Grey Parrot with a Cold.

J. Tanpin.—Put a few drops of eucalyptus on cage bottom. Spray or dab (use a camel hair brush) its nostrils with diluted glyco-thymoline; it will do no harm if a little is swallowed. Get from your chemist the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts; put one teaspoonful in my two tablespoonfuls of water and give no other drinkables till relief is given. Also give one small crust of household bread, into which you have soaked one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia as soon as it is practically dry. Keep bird warm (not hot), and out of draughts and there should soon be an improvement. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food, but diet as advised almost weekly in this column. There is more in diet than in drugs. Parrots like many folks will take what is pleasant to the taste even though it slowly kills.

Treatment for a Cardinal.

Penzance.—Should not be smaller than a full-sized Thrush or Blackbird cage, these active birds, very wild at first, get their lovely plumage sadly frayed if their quarters are at all confined. Personally I use cages 2½ by 1½ by 1½ feet high myself for such type of birds—a pair could be kept in such a cage. Diet: Canary, millet, oats and in smaller portions hemp and sunflower seeds, ripe fruit (apple is greedily eaten as a rule), a little soft food, and two or three mealworms or other insects per bird daily. Green food, cuttlefish, grit and clean water for drinking and bathing must be regularly supplied. Occasional mealworms will help you to tame them, they will soon in spite of their fear come and take one from your fingers; their love for this dainty is stronger than their fear, and they soon learn to know the hand that feeds them. They are then bold, fearless and striking birds for either cage or aviary, and they are quite hardy if kept out of draught.

Indian Rock Caging.

M. E. T.—The bird's condition is the result of improper diet, and if this is corrected the bird will gradually recover. Stop the milk sop at once, and diet as under. Seed mixture: Canary seed, oats, maize, wheat, dari, hemp, and sunflower seeds; will mix and always keep a supply in the cage. Also give plain biscuits, ripe fruit, nuts, a little green food (fresh lettuce is best at this season), and keep a piece of cuttlefish hanging in cage. Give 3 or 4 doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, with two days between each dose—one teaspoonful of Magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water; give first thing in the morning and leave it in the cage till the bird has drunk at any rate the bulk of it. When not giving the Magnesia make its drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue latter till the bird is well again. You had better spray it once or twice a week with quassia solution, keeping it carefully out of draught till dry. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, nor any kind of animal food. Hope there will soon be an improvement.

A Budgerigar in Moult.

G. H. C.—It is difficult to treat Budgerigars as you would other birds—they are such small drinkers; but if you remove the drinking water overnight they are usually ready to take a drink first thing in the morning. For one day only put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water, and let it have only this to drink from during the day. Follow this by making the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's Chemical Food and continue till the moult is over, letting it have a drink of clear water say once a week. Keep a piece of cuttlefish in cage, and for the present let it have the following mixture: 2 parts each Canary and millet seeds and 1 part oats, also occasionally give it a millet spray for a change; whenever you can get it free from frost give grass in the car (flower grass); a little tender lettuce is very good for a change, as is also a little ripe apple. Keep up a supply of grit and do not offer baths till it has its morning drink. A crust of bread (in health they are better without this), on to which you have dropped a little Chemical Food will also help. It is rather difficult in your case to assign any cause unless the bird has caught a chill; very probably it is constitutional weakness in spite of its size. I should certainly isolate it from the rest till well again, although at present there is nothing to indicate this, it may be something contagious.

Grey Parrot Unwell.

H. L. A.—Am pleased to note the treatment advised was effective. The present trouble is due to the bird's being placed in a window; in such a position I do not see how draught can be avoided. Keep bird by all means in a light airy position, but certainly not in the window. Occasionally give the Dinneford's Magnesia sufficiently often to keep its bowels moving freely—the evenings would not be watery loose. If there is any recurrence of running at the nostrils, spray or dab them (use a camel hair brush) with diluted glyco-thymoline, till it ceases. While there is any apparent cold, give one teaspoonful of the mixture as under to one ounce of water and let this form its daily supply (nothing else to drink), while the cold lasts. Mixture—Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills and glycerine in equal parts. When the cold yields to the above treatment, cease giving the mixture and put the Chemical Food in the drinking water, continuing this till the bird is in good feather and condition. Only give the Magnesia as necessary to keep constipation in check. Spray the bird with quassia solution every other day, except during severe weather (of course specially guarding against draught and keeping it in a warm position till dry), and you will soon get rid of the parasites. Only give shelled nuts and if these are not eaten do not give any. Wean from the boiled maize as soon as possible; try giving it every other day and gradually diminish the quantity, but do not let the bird suffer from want of food. Rub a little clean vaseline into the bare parts, but do not on any account make its plumage greasy.

T.T., re Bichenó Finch, and W. Baker, re "What Bird?" will be answered next week, there being not time to look details up before going to press.

PARK & LAKE AVICULTURE

Answered by FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S., M.B.O.U., etc.

Doves (Bunyip, Edinburgh).—1. Your cock Dove having a second moult seems to show something is wrong. Examine the cage for insects. 2. When breeding, Doves should have a shallow open nest-box proportionate to their size, or a shallow basket. For nesting material give short lengths of coarse hay, straw, or fine twigs. 3. Your feeding is right, but as you keep them in a cage you should let them out for a fly in the room as often as you can; I always think that Doves are most unsuited for continual cage life, and these domestic ones are easily made so tame that they are no trouble to get back again when out. If the cock has any constitutional trouble which has made him moult unseasonably, exercise would help to get him right. Give rock-salt, grit, and a bit of old mortar to peck at.

Names of Swans (S.D.H.).—The name of the young Swan (Cygnet) is well known and in common use; it applies as long as the bird is in the grey plumage. The male Swan is supposed to be technically known as the "Cob," and the female as the "Pen," but I have never heard the terms used myself; they no doubt date back to the time when Swans were more largely kept than now, when Cygnets were held in great esteem as food.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for a report direct 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Canary (M. Croft).—Liver disease of considerable standing, with recent inflammation of that organ, and rupture of blood vessels (which is apoplexy), and indicative of "bird fever."

Thrush (J. C. Quant).—"Chill," or inflammation of liver and lungs. It may have contracted this on its journey.

African Bird (Miss J. A. Palethorpe).—Congestion of liver, and, apparently, difficulty of moulting.

Canary (H.S., Rotherhithe).—Chronic liver disease with recent inflammation involving the lungs.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Whence Comes the Chick? (W. J. Smith).—Neither the white nor the yolk can, strictly speaking, be said to "be the chick." Broadly, this is the process: The chick develops from the tiny cell of living matter which lies on the upper surface of the yolk—light in colour, and, in a fowl's egg, about the size of a grain of hemp. In the process of development within the shell, the chick (embryo) absorbs the white to the purposes of growth; the yolk is absorbed to constitute the chick's first food during the period immediately before and after the actual hatching.

Report (J. Ainsworth).—Many thanks for your kindness. We, too, hope it will not be the last you will send along to us. Send the photograph, by all means, and we will reproduce it if at all possible.

Photos (W. B. Smart, and Metcalfe and Hillmen).—Photographs safely to hand. We shall hope to publish one or the other of them as space permits.

Safety Show Cage (T. Gregory).—The worst of those safety show cages is the trouble they give the judges should they wish to handle and examine the exhibit. If the door is soldered up, how is this to be done?

Obituary (D.P.D.).—Thanks for cutting. An intimation had already reached us from another source.

Bacon Beetles (H. Rees).—Your letter has been in type awaiting a chance to appear. You will readily understand that at this season of the year pressure on our space is very severe indeed.

Address Wanted (F. G. R. Reth).—It is contrary to rule for a contributor's address to be disclosed without his permission. If you care to send on your letter to us, duly stamped, we will have it forwarded to the right quarter.

Cover for Volume (Bootle).—Yes, shall be pleased to send you one for 1/6, post free.

A Purchase (J. Esdale).—Many thanks for your notification, which we had also received from another source.

Canaries and Consumption (Fancier).—Your friend who told you that your Canaries would bring on consumption" was, to put it somewhat vulgarly, talking "twaddle." He has been reading some "scare" paragraph in some paper which knows no better than to print nonsense of this kind. Fanciers must thrive on "consumption," if it be true, for they look a very healthy lot when we see them at the shows. The only "consumption" your Canaries are likely to let you in for, is the consumption of seed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LEAVING EXHIBITS WITHOUT WATER AT SHOWS.

SIR,—I am sorry to trouble you again, but I did not intend to suggest that the water should be taken off only when the judges were ready for the birds, as the birds might be wet. What I suggested was that the water be removed according to how the judges were progressing with their work. What I mean by this is, just to take it off a few classes at a time ahead of the judges, and by so doing I think no bird need be long without water.

A. WOOLLARD.

WHAT IS ITS NAME?

SIR,—Some little time ago a letter appeared in your correspondence columns signed by Mr. H. Glaister, Whitehaven, regarding a bird which he had in his possession. Mr. G. at that time said that many fanciers had seen the bird and had failed to identify it. Now, Sir, permit me at this point to inform readers that I saw this bird, and was as much puzzled as its owner. Since that letter appeared I have learned that the bird has passed into the hands of a well-known exhibitor of the Border Fancy Canary, who, I am told, knows what it is. If this be so, then, why does this gentleman withhold that information, which would ease our minds and edify us at the same time? Now, Mr M. let us hear from you; tell us what the bird is, and for ever earn the gratitude of G. W. MURRAY.

C.B.U. MEMBERS AND NON-UNION SHOWS.

SIR,—I quite agree with M. D. Barnes in your last issue with reference to Union members judging at non-Union shows. I know of members of the Union in South Wales judging at both non-Union and Union shows; also of these very men sitting on the Committee of the Union, and passing sentence on those infringing the C.B.U. rules. If these members were to refuse to adjudicate at non-Union shows, we would get all shows to take out a licence or to affiliate, so that all exhibitors would be on equal footing.

NOT A JUDGE.

SIR,—I have noticed a letter in this week's CAGE BIRDS by a correspondent signing himself M. D. Barnes, in which he complains of Cage Bird Union members exhibiting British birds at Keynsham Show. I take it by the letter that Keynsham Show is not affiliated to the Union, neither is it licensed. Well, when I remember the letters that appeared in CAGE BIRDS during the last year or two respecting Rule 17, and how, after a lot of discussion, it was decided to let it stand, I begin to wonder myself whether the Cage Bird Union is still in existence only in name, or whether it has any backbone left in it at all, for I think, like M. D. Barnes, the goings on of some of the members that are affiliated to the Union are most unfair. This show season some of the members of the Union are exhibiting at non-Union shows with all the sauce imaginable. Now is the time to let those who are affiliated to the Union see whether the Cage Bird Union has any strength left in it, whether those who stuck to Rule 17 during the birth of the Union will stand by us that refuse to show at non-Union shows. In fact, when I see those so-called fanciers, who will exhibit their birds in the wife's name one week at a non-Union show next week in their own name at an affiliated show, I feel disgusted. I hope this will soon be put a stop to, or else I am afraid we shall see many societies withdrawing from the C.B.U.

AN AFFILIATED MEMBER.

BORDER FANCIES AT CLEATOR MOOR SHOW.

SIR,—I was surprised on seeing report of Cleator Moor Show to find it stated that my Border Fancy cock, No. 3, had been "left out as colour-fed somewhat." I beg to flatly contradict this, as no Canary of mine had tasted colour-food of any kind for some years; in fact, my main reason for giving up the Norwich bird was this troublesome colour-feeding. I will grant my bird is a very rich colour for a buff, but so is the buff hen (half-sister to him) that stood 2nd at this show, but which, by the way, your reporter seems to have left out too. Several more from the same parents are equally as deep in colour, which I attribute solely to the way they have been bred. They are from double yellows, and full of dark blood as well. I may add that I have bred and exhibited this variety in a small way since they were known as Cumberland Fancies, and surely would not be so insane as to colour-feed them now. I feel sure local fanciers, whom I am always pleased to see in my bird-room, will bear me out in this. I will be glad to see this denial in your next issue.

J. ELLWOOD.

STEADYING BRITISH BIRDS.

SIR,—Will one of your readers kindly oblige by giving me some advice on steadying British birds for exhibition? I have recently taken up this branch of the Fancy, and have at present several Chaffinches, Brambles, and Yellowhammers, but as they are fresh caught and very wild, it seems to me that I have a long job in front of me. I have been surprised to find how steady the birds are at the shows, and I notice by the scale of points given in "Cage Birds Annual" that this is a most important matter. I should be glad if some of my fellow-fanciers would give me a few hints. S. STEPHENS.

EXHIBITORS AND THE PACKING OF EXHIBITS.

SIR,—I wish to draw the attention of exhibitors to the practice of sending birds to shows packed up in paper. The Merthyr, Dowlais, and Dis. F.S. received about six lots packed up in this way, for our show last week. I have found in my few years of exhibiting that they are handled very roughly by some railway servants when properly packed in cases or hampers; I can only imagine the result if those packed in paper were handled in the same way. Then think of the extra work and trouble it gives those responsible for the repacking of exhibits. Will those exhibitors take this hint in good part, and send their birds to shows in a case or hamper? The birds will be more comfortable on their long journeys; consequently their chances of winning will be greatly enhanced. J. H. JONES.

THE SAID-TO-BE CANARY-CHAFFINCH-MULE.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Verrall I as the exhibitor of the bird, think that instead of answering my questions, Mr. Verrall has written a lot of nonsense. I am quite willing to believe that Mr. Lowne has seen several variegated, and Mr. Verrall a clear yellow, Chaffinch; but what on earth has this to do with the matter? Mr. Verrall may as well say that because I was owning a cream-coloured and a slightly-ticked Goldfinch two years ago, that it was impossible for me to breed my slightly-ticked Goldfinch-Mule. I am wondering what Mr. Verrall will think of electric light and motors when he sees them. But without trying to be funny, I think the best thing Mr. V. can do is to wait until he has seen the bird, then I shall be pleased to see in print his opinion of it. Secondly, if I show the bird again, and win with it, the person that gets 2nd has a perfect right to deposit his money make his objection, and prove that my bird is not bred from a Canary-reared Chaffinch hen, and a cock Canary.

W. ANDREWS.

[Kindly write matter for publication on one side of paper only.—EDITOR.]

SIR,—In my reply to Mr. Andrews, I do not think I made myself sufficiently clear in the latter part of the letter What I ought to have written is that I do not believe it is possible to breed from two different species of birds unless they are closely alike in the matter of feeding their young. Although the Chaffinch, Yellowhammer, and many birds that feed their young on insects will, when adult, live for years in cages on hard seed, this does not prove that such birds as Canaries and many Finches that feed their young on half-ripe seeds will produce young if paired to these insect-feeding birds. And again, I think that the colour of the Chaffinch's egg is so different a colour to that of the Canary and birds that are known to breed with Canaries, that this proves the Chaffinch to be a distinct remove from other birds with "finch" attached to their name. I do not know the colour of the eggs of Bramblefinch, Hawfinch, Crossbill, Pine and Scarlet Grosbeaks. I believe that some of these birds might breed with Chaffinches. I had a cock Scarlet Grosbeak that paired up with a hen Bramblefinch and this bird we know will breed with the Chaffinch. It was I who denounced the so-called Yellowhammer-Canary that was so successful as a prize-winner in 1882 and 1883 exhibited by Mr. T Beasley Northampton. The late Mr. Blakston was always praising it up. I wrote to Mr. Beasley in October of 1882 and told him he was showing an impossible Mule. He sent his Mule to a Brighton show in December, and Mr. Swaysland took care it did not take a prize. Then Mr. Beasley wrote to me and said we were all asses, and did not know a Mule when we saw one. But all the same, he purchased from me a pair of Redpoll-Linnet Mules. Before the Palace Show of that year I wrote to the late Jenner Weir to look at the bird. It was adjudged "wrong class," and then vanished for ever. In November, 1885, the year that I went to the Albert Palace Show, I had there to denounce a clear Albino Greenfinch which had taken prizes all over the country as a clear Mule. I expect I saw Mr. Andrews' bird, No. 1,549, at the last Palace Show, passed unnoticed.

J. H. VERRALL.

A NEW SOCIETY FOR GRANTHAM AND DISTRICT.

SIR,—I am pleased to inform you that a Cage Bird Society has been formed here, and will be known as the Grantham and District Cage Bird Society. A goodly number of members have already been enrolled, and everything points to the Society being a complete success. The first Monthly Members' Show will be held on November 30th, and from the number of entries at present to hand a very good show appears to be forthcoming. Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham) has promised to officiate, and also to give a washing exhibition.

P. P. KIRKBY, Hon. Sec.

Saltersford, Grantham.

RETIREMENT OF ANOTHER OLD AND RESPECTED BRITISH BIRD JUDGE.

SIR,—Would you kindly notify in this week's CAGE BIRDS that from date of letter, Nov. 16, I shall discontinue judging or exhibiting at any cage bird show, but shall continue taking in CAGE BIRDS, having done so from the very first issue. I must congratulate you on the life-like group of Buntings you sent out last week and wish your paper every success.

SAMUEL COOK.

An Appreciation.

SIR,—It is with deep regret that I hear of the retirement of another of our veteran judges, Mr. Sam Cook. I have known Mr. Cook for over 20 years—first as a colleague on the committee of the L. and P.O.S. and afterwards as a show secretary and judge of British birds. It is really more years ago than I care to remember that Mr. Cook was a prominent and successful exhibitor of British birds. In 1895, 1896, and 1897 he was one of the show secretaries of the L. and P.O.S. Autumn shows held at the Royal Aquarium—and good shows they were. In 1901, and, with the exception of 1905, down to the present time, Mr Cook has officiated at the Palace shows as a British bird judge. As a rule, he received a capital entry, and at all times performed his duties in an honest and fearless manner. At all times bluff and outspoken, he was one of the best of fanciers and a staunch friend. Although not elected to judge his usual classes at the forthcoming Palace "Jubilee" Show, a fact that I sincerely regret, Mr. Cook was offered classes in another section. He has, however, declined the offer and tells me that he has finished with judging and exhibiting. May he long be spared to be with us at our shows as a visitor. J. W. RAMSDEN.

ALLEGED UNFAIR TREATMENT AT BLACKBURN SHOW.

Sticking at the Half-prize Money Limit.

SIR,—I was pleased to see a letter in your valuable paper from Mr. Hall, complaining of one entry being returned, as I was in the same boat, having one returned. But what I am complaining about now is that they accepted three other birds, and never had them classed in their catalogue, although two were returned marked vhc. I have written to the secretary, and his answer is that my entries arrived after the matter had gone to the printers; also he has forwarded me slips to see that they were staged and judged. That does not satisfy me, as my contention is that, having accepted my entries, he ought to have seen that they were entered, or else have returned the lot. If my address was not too late to be inserted in the exhibitors' list, certainly my entries were not. In conclusion, I wish to ask what is a catalogue for but to show exhibitors and the public what birds are exhibited, and, moreover, those that take cards, however low? Enclosed is an exact copy of letter received from the secretary, and shall be pleased if you will publish same with this.

J. GOSTLING.

Nov. 14, 1908

(COPY.)

SIR,—Yours to hand re show. Yours is a printer's error, as the judging slips will show that your birds were staged and judged. Your entries came after the matter had gone to the printers, and I sent them on at once, but only your address was printed. Hoping this is satisfactory to you.

J. W. MARSDEN.

SIR,—I have waited the issue of your in valuable paper to see report of above show. I forwarded in due course to the secretary six entries:—Yellow Yorks, two; Buff, one; Hens, two; Selling Class, one; and fully expected to receive my numbers, but to my surprise, my fees were returned, with the following letter from the secretary:—

November 3.—To Mrs. Sunderland.—Owing to a poor entry, we are obliged to cancel your entries. Hoping you are not offended, as we are bound to do this.—Yours respectfully

J. W. MARSDEN.

I have been and am still, under the impression that Lancashire fanciers are as good sportsmen as Yorkshiremen, but when I find such reprehensible conduct of a society as that of the Blackburn C.B.S., I must reduce my opinion at least one unit. An attractive schedule is put forth, and you are induced thereby to show. But because there may be a small loss, your fees are returned too late to make entries elsewhere, and the classes are made what appears on the surface to be members' classes for the sake of the specials. It is high time the C.B.U. took note of such doings, and if a Society is only kept together to make money and take no risks, it is time that that Society closed its doors. I should like fanciers to look in your report of the show and see the number of entries, and ask themselves the question: Is it fair?

MRS. C. M. SUNDERLAND.

SIR,—I am extremely obliged to Mr. Hall for having sent a copy of my letter along with his complaint of alleged unfair treatment at Blackburn Show. There are two clauses in his letter that are most unkind and misleading. In one he says he will send both birds and expects them to compete; in his letter to me, which I have in my possession, he says he will send both birds, and they will have to compete. In the other, he says his bird with the damaged wing is ruined for the rest of the show season. My dear Mr. Hall, I showed Mr. Cleminson, of Preston, who was here as C.B.U. representative, your bird on Saturday night before it was packed for home, and he said your bird would be alright in a few days. There is no one more sorry than myself over your bird arriving here in its damaged condition, but there can be no blame attached to us for same. J. W. MARSDEN, Sec.

SOME POINTS FOR SHOW OFFICIALS.

SIR,—When one sees so much amalgamation or cancellation of classes in open shows, it certainly does not tend to give exhibitors courage to exhibit. Now I have received a schedule of the Gravesend Fanciers Society and I cannot but think that they are going the right way to achieve a grand success. They do not cancel any classes, and should there be a short entry in any of the classes they do not withhold the 1st or 2nd prize but, should any reduction have to take place, they cancel the smaller prize first. This is a rattling good idea, and one which commends itself. However small the money value, if an exhibitor gets 1st prize one knows his exhibit is the best, and should he wish to sell at any time, this is better than 2nd, and so on. H. C. LAMBERT.

PENRHIWCEIBER SHOW.

SIR,—Under the above heading in your issue of October 24th, appeared a letter from two fanciers, named J. W. Card and G. Gregory. They say: "We consider an explanation necessary to Cage Bird Fanciers, as our names appear in the schedule as committee men, whereas we have no connection whatever with the proposed show's committee or management." I wish to reply to this. I ask all fanciers what should a secretary consider as a member? I take it a person that has attended a meeting, proposed and seconded a resolution, took a donation book for the purpose of collecting for the society. I may say that one of these two fanciers has attended more than one meeting, and proposed and seconded resolutions; the other has attended one meeting and seconded a resolution. Should dates be required, I shall be pleased to quote same. Also they took one donation book at a meeting for the purpose, I believe, of collecting for the society. As fanciers are all aware, the schedules are put in print some two months previous to date of show, therefore a secretary naturally, when putting same in order, looks up the list of members, especially those who have attended meetings. But when catalogue of show comes along, the secretary has a look to see who are the members in arrear with their contributions. Then comes the time for expelling members for non-payment, and not before. These two fanciers are not named on our catalogue, seeing that it "hurts" them so much respecting the schedule. But I am pleased to say that the society had a most successful show without the aid of these so-called fanciers; no thanks to them, I can assure you, as their letter was published the week our entries were closing.

T. J. EVANS, Secretary.

BACON BEETLES FOR SOFTBILLS.

SIR, In reply to your correspondent, A. Young, re the above, I don't think that he will find it profitable to breed these. Can he get any of these beetles at times that seem to be very abundant at the present time? Of course, mealworm breeding has been dealt with scores of times in your columns by Mr. Weston and others. I advise you to look up back numbers for these. Now for the beetles. First, the grubs of these mostly feed on the flesh of hams and bacon, just under the skin, and in this way of living are not noticed by a good many people; but now and again they are compelled, as they develop, to cast their skins, and these sometimes can be seen in the form of small rolls of hairy stuff on the piece of ham, or bacon, that they are at work upon. They are longer than the perfect beetle, are the grubs of a blackish brown colour, and are covered with scales, hairs, and long, reddish bristles, which stand erect on their bodies. The perfect beetle is about a quarter of a inch long, and the fore and hind parts are of a black colour, and middle portion of body is of yellowish grey colour, and bearing six white spots, three on each horny wing case. The beetles seem to prefer an existence in the open, and this enables one to catch sight of them. The grubs hatch from eggs laid on, or just beneath ham skins, or any other thing that is attacked. I daresay they would be freely given away gratis by any grocer, if he knows he has them in his store-room or warehouse.

HAS THE N.B.B. & M.C. STANDARD SHOW-CAGE COME TO STAY?

SIR,—It was with a considerable amount of interest that I followed the controversy in your correspondence columns, some weeks ago, with reference to the adoption of a standard show cage by the N.B.B. and M.C. I was struck by the force of the arguments used against the adoption of a cage with a bowed front by several of the correspondents. To me their arguments were proved most conclusively effectual by an incident at Liverpool Show, on November 6th. I was at the Show soon after opening time, and the Britishers were the first to attract my attention. In the Goldfinch class of 20 exhibits, only one was shown in a standard show cage, that being an exhibit staged by Messrs. Angus and Crane, and which secured fourth prize. This exhibit, a very nice bird, was persistently poking its head through the bowed portion of the new standard show cage (which action was predicted by several of the correspondents who took part in the controversy). On visiting this class again about 4.30 p.m., I was surprised to see the bird (which was so lively about one hour before) with its head under its wing in the corner of the cage. The steward's attention was called to the bird, and he immediately took it away. I have since learned that, despite all the care and attention bestowed upon it, it passed over to the great majority, in my mind suffering from shock, or perhaps dislocation of the neck through poking its head through the bowed portion of the wire front. In conclusion, I would like to say my only object in penning these few lines is to let your correspondents know that their prediction has come true, at least in one case, since the adoption of this standard show cage.

KEEN OBSERVER.

THE VALUE OF SPECIAL PRIZES.

SIR,—May I be allowed to endorse the opinion of "A Sufferer," of last week? I think it is quite time something was done to check the exaggeration which is practised with reference to special prizes. I have just received a certain schedule, and I notice that in the list of specials, there are several engravings valued at two guineas. This looks very well on paper, but I happen to know that these pictures can be bought by anyone for two shillings and sixpence. No wonder that clubs have to appeal for entries.

S. STEPHENS.

(Our correspondent will possibly find an answer in the letter from Mr. Lever this week.—EDITOR.)

SIR,—I was asked some few weeks since to present some engravings to the Dulwich Ornithological Society, and I forwarded to them some ten engravings of a picture entitled "Coming from the Horse Fair," by Rosa Bonheur, which the National Art Society inherited as part of the stock when the plate of this celebrated picture was purchased. Since then the picture has been reproduced by means of lithography, engraving by hand, and engraving upon India paper, at the price of 3s., 6s., and 12s.; but those presented were published at 2 guineas each, and I should be very sorry if there should be any misapprehension on this point. I have seen a letter in your issue of November 14 which is anonymous, and signed by 'A Sufferer." I shall be very pleased to show "A Sufferer" the difference between a lithograph, a reproduction of an engraving, or etching, and a genuine engraving etching, or artist's proof in its various states, if he will favour me with ten minutes of his time any morning by appointment. He will then probably not be so eager to depreciate the value of a free gift for the benefit of the competitions he appears to enter into. I enclose you a letter from my friend who asked me to present the engravings, for your private perusal. You will probably observe he does not know how to spell my name correctly, so that my gift was prompted practically solely for the competitions.

The National Art Society. A. LEVER.

(We have referred to the letter signed "A Sufferer," and find the words used were: "I see this game (i.e., exaggerating the value of special prizes), is going on this season as merrily as ever, the latest to come to my notice being pictures, which can actually be bought for two and sixpence, put before exhibitors as worth as many pounds." If the engravings our correspondent refers to are full value for the two guineas stated in the schedule, and we have no reason to doubt his word, it is not easy to understand why the Dulwich O.S. should immediately take this sentence as applying specially to themselves.—EDITOR.)

THE FORTHCOMING CRYSTAL PALACE (1909) SHOW.

SIR,—I note in "Twitterings" in your issue dated 1st October that suggestions are invited re the Palace Show in February next. The classification has been somewhat amended, I understand, so perhaps the following suggestions are already adopted:—A class for the Missel Thrush would, I feel sure, if provided, fill well, for the following reasons: 1. Quite a large number are being exhibited, both in the South, Midlands, and North, at various shows; 2. The bulk of these would undoubtedly appear at the Palace if they were not pitted against Woodpeckers, Redstarts, and a host of other "resident insectivorous species." The numbers in previous years shown at the Palace are certainly not encouraging—1906, three; 1907, one; 1908, nil. This is only correct as far as the catalogues inform one. If my memory serves me correctly, the only one during these years which got in the prize list was the noted "Stormer," in 1907, which was 4th. This would possibly account for the small numbers referred to above being exhibited at the Palace. The Yellowhammer is another bird which might be given a class, as the bulk of the Bunting class is usually of this variety. As it stands at present, there is not much chance of more than one Yellow getting in the money, if all varieties of this species are given due consideration. Both birds mentioned by me are quite common and easily within the reach of everyone's purse, and these are the particular birds that I consider all show committees should encourage. The rarities, although some of them very interesting, are not the working man's bird either in initial cost or in cost of feeding, and even comparatively small shows are providing a class now for Blackbird, Thrush, or Starling, leaving rarer British to have it out amongst themselves. In conclusion, I hope the Palace Show Committee will give due consideration to all letters on this subject which appear in your columns, and give us a liberal classification so that we may at least once a year have the pleasure of competing Missel Thrushes against Missel Thrushes and Yellowhammers against Yellowhammers. This I venture to think, would greatly encourage the keeping of the two birds named, and, if not in 1909, I feel sure that in the near future they would rival some of the well-filled Hardbill classes. Some idea of the extension of the classification, at as early a date as possible, would be extremely useful to exhibitors, and should benefit the entry. May it be a grand one!

I was greatly surprised on receiving my copy of CAGE BIRDS recently to find the photo of my uneven Yell. Yorkshire cock (first prize at Battersea Show) on the front page of your valuable paper. It does your artist great credit.—A. E. BISHOP (Worcester).

THE SHOWS.

CONSETT.

The Consett, Blackhill and Dis. S.S. held their 12th annual exhibition on Nov. 14. The cage bird section was especially favoured, and the birds were in the Manchester hall by themselves. The most notable feature of the show was that Miss Hutchinson was the assistant secretary, and had the whole management of the Canary section, the way in which she carried out her duties was a credit not only to her sex, but to the Canary as a cage, she being thoroughly mistress of the situation. Although several of the classes were extended, taking the average per class, it was most satisfactory. The judging was over in good time, and the cards were placed by the opening of the show. The hall was packed from end to end with visitors, and it was almost impossible to move about. Mr. I. Dixon placed the cards, and very few adverse comments were heard.

The Montrose C.B.S. annual show was held in the Corn Exchange on Nov. 14. The hall, which is situated near the N.B. Railway Station, is excellently lighted and free from draughts. Wilkie (treasurer); Mr. J. Clark as secretary is the right man in the right place, and is every ready to render assistance; with Messrs. Dorward, Forrest and Dunbar. The entries, which were 228, were below last year's, but the quality was of a high order. The judges were, for Norwich Mr. J. Smeaton, for British and Foreign Mr. G. Finnie. Nottingham Holds an Attractive Show.

The lace city is favoured with a magnificent display of Crests and a fine collection of birds in all departments, which the visitors roll up in crowds.

At their 27th annual exhibition, held Saturday and Monday last, Nov. 14 and 16, the Fanciers of Nottingham achieved another decided success. In common with many other societies this season their entries hardly mustered so strongly as on one or two previous occasions, though the decline was but a score or so. Only one word, however describes the quality of the birds which put in an appearance, and that is, magnificent. Every section contained teams from noted exhibitors, and in every class a stern fight for the leading positions was waged. Of course, it is an understood thing at Nottingham that the Crests and Crest-breds will be something out of the ordinary—the fixture never fails us in this—and it must be at once admitted that these noble birds dominated the present show. The classes containing them were a real treat from beginning to end. What a surprising figure would be arrived at if only some "statistical head" would work out the approximate value of the birds therein, and let us know the result—his total, we think, would prove an eye-opener. The officials well realise their responsibility towards those who entrust these valuable (some, we take it, almost priceless to their owners) exhibits to their care. For instance, we heard it said that the birds might have been viewed in a better light if the rows of staging had been arranged the opposite way of the room. The answer came at once: "Yes, we considered that, but decided this was the best way, because it admits of a clear view down each aisle from the end of the room, and we can keep an eye on the safety of the exhibits, so that nothing wrong can be going on."

All Eighteen Carat.

It is like gilding refined gold to say that the arrangements and management were all that could be desired. Those responsible for the running of Nottingham Show have little to learn in such matters as these. The now popular three-tier staging is in vogue here, and was nicely draped with what we took to be "art muslin" (we are no judge of drapery goods). Further, the Society (or Mr. Rhodes on its behalf) had had a number of CAGE BIRDS coloured plates framed and hung amongst the birds—a Lizard plate among the Lizard Canaries, a Hybrid plate among the Hybrids, and so on, these forming coloured charts, as it were, from which the general public could identify and name the exhibits on the benches near. This feature was highly appreciated, many delighted commentators concerning the innovation reaching our ears. That good fancier, Mr. G. C. Ley, and with him Mr. W. Cottingham, was in charge of the "receiving" office, and had devised a perfect scheme for checking the exhibits in and out of the show, and numbering the hampers so as to facilitate finding them. This helped greatly. Further, we should not be doing our duty if we omitted to acknowledge the very considerable services rendered by Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Wilkinson, in attending to the birds and arranging the case of splendid special prizes. We shrewdly suspect that the society is even more greatly indebted to them than appears on the surface. Mr. J. F. Bishop was also busy once again amongst the birds, and we were exceedingly sorry to hear a rumour that he intends retiring from the Fancy; we trust Dame Rumour is merely keeping up her reputation for inaccuracy. Mr. R. Rhodes, the highly popular chairman, worked very hard, as is usual with him, to ensure the success of the venture, and his urbanity and business-like methods must be ranked among the society's best assets. Mr. Ley is the vice-chairman, and proved once more a worthy "right hand." He is an enthusiast to the core. Mr. G. E. Wilkinson—that excellent non-fancying fancier—once again skilfully disposed of the secretarial side of the concern. He is "a gem," as the show reporters say, and the society can count themselves fortunate to have him at their command. Cool, methodical, painstaking, hard-working, and always happy, he is just the boy for the job. The committee, consisting of Messrs. T. Barker, J. Bertie, L. Burrows, W. Cottingham, J. Goode, J. H. Northage, I. Onion, E Wolfe, and G. A. White, worked very hard, and discharged their duties as stewards in most able and painstaking manner. We laughed at one gentleman, who, when at the end of a hard morning's work he was asked to carry down some heavy Parrot cages, suddenly discovered he had an appointment to take his best girl to a football match! Messrs. A. Cooper, Chick, H. Davis, A. Walker, J. E. Smith, and A. E. Garton, also lent valuable help in various ways. Their efforts were rewarded by a truly remarkable "gate," the visitors packing the hall from end to end.

Some "Knock Outs."

The Norwich Plainheads made a capital display. The keenest of competition was the order of the day, and substance and type, quality and colour were prominent; so close in merit were many of the specimens that we did not envy Friend Vardy his task of handing out the prizes. Mr. W. Bowyer (Leek), staged a nice team, capturing three firsts, the pick of these being his clear yellow cock, a grand bird. Mr. E. Fox (Long Eaton) went strong in the feminine section, his noted marked yellow and clear Buff hens standing on the "top staves": they are two charming dames. Messrs. Beardall and Walker scored with a capitally matched pair, that looked capable of breeding the "right stuff." Messrs. Adnitt and Driver's representative, a marked yellow cock, was voted just about the best Norwich in the show—a gem of gems, without doubt; a regular "knock out," as we overheard one enthusiast say. Messrs. Lingard and Baker, and Mr. A. Huggins stood at the head of affairs in the unflighted classes, with two topping babies, which will be heard of again, given average luck. In the Novice Section, Messrs. N. Cooper and H. Christian plucked the largest "plums" with specimens of very nice type and quality, both a credit to them. Of the Crests and Crestbreds, what shall we say? Words almost fail. Throughout the entire section, birds of magnificent character met one's gaze. Truly we had here a wonderful collection, worth a journey of many miles to inspect. Nottingham Show is widely known for the high quality of its "top knots," and never at this popular fixture we venture to say, have more meritorious specimens been gathered together taking the section as a whole. In the adult classes, Mr T. Taylor (Gateshead) led his crack team out, and was present himself, along with Mrs. Taylor. Messrs. Norwood Bros. (Sutton-in-Ashfield) also staged some eye openers, while Mr. W. Radley (Skelmanthorpe), had on view his marvellous Buff Crest brid. Mr. G. C. Ley, also exhibited a slashing yellow Crest-bred, one of the very best it has been our pleasure to see. Other characteristic specimens, far and away above the average in merit, were those shown by Messrs. W. Gaze, H. Mannis, A. Cooper, R. Rhodes, T. J. King, and G. Coldge. Amongst the young birds, were several future champions. What a gem, to be sure, is the yellow Crest, owned by Messrs. Dobson and Son (Blaydon-on-Tyne), which took the guinea special for best young Yellow Crest, this being the first time for five years this special has been taken out of Nottinghamn. Mr. G Colledge (Derby) held pride of place in the Buff Crests, with a marvellous exhibit, the youngster, we understand, which accounted for the Bristol bowl this year. The Buff Crest-bred, the property of Mr. T. J. King (Chesterfield), was likewise voted a "stormer." These classes provided the judge, Mr. Greeves, with one of the hardest day's work he has ever encountered, and we heard him say that the adult Crest-bred classes were wonderful, while the young yellow Crest class was easily the best in the whole of his lengthy experience. In the Selling Classes, quality and cheapness went hand-in-hand, and many of the cages displayed a "sold" ticket. Some real bargains were to be picked up, and business at the clerks' office was brisk. Lancashires were not over numerous, but some "cream" was in evidence. Messrs. W. Adams, John Garner, A. West, W. Whipp, and J. J. Brooks with fine massive examples played havoc with the prizes. The Lizards, as pretty as paint, made a capital collection. In the majority of cases the ground colour was superb, and the spangling bold and distinct. Mr. W. Whipp, with charming specimens, captured three firsts out of a possible four, the other going to Mr. J. Rukin, who took it with a lovely clear cap Silver. Messrs. J. Dewsnap, J. Hampshire, and J. Dickinson also had present some grand ones. The Cinnamons were few, but fine, and once again Messrs. Godley and Dormer fought out a bloodless battle. Messrs. Bentley, W. Seed, and T. J. King also chipped in among the prizes. A few very nice Belgians were shown by Mr. J. D. Horrill (Barnstaple).

More Fighting.

The Hybrids were a choice lot, and the section contained some splendid examples of the art of mating two different species together. Messrs. Colton and Dawn's Redpoll-Bullfie is a real beauty, very rich in colour and nicely marked. This old (or partly old) Sheffield firm also put down a very promising Clear Goldie. Mr. Lander (Leicester), put down a wonderful coloured bird of this latter cross in the variegated class. Other very fine hybrids were exhibited by Messrs. T. Gilbert, Mabbott, Pitt, Coffy, Somerfield and Tonks. The class for pairs matched for hybrid breeding is a very good idea, and it proved immensely interesting to visitors. The British birds were noticeable for the keenness of the competition that prevailed, several of our "crack" exhibitors, Messrs. A. P. Hurst, H. J. Chick, A. Coffy, S. W. Birchley, R. J. Howe and others, fighting it out in every class, and finding other fanciers in plenty crowding on their heels, even upsetting them now and again. Mr. Chick does not seem to relish coming an occasional cropper, but, there, the best of horses stumble at times—and shall we say judges, too? In addition to the fanciers named above, who one and all had out teams of exceptional merit, some really beautiful birds were staged by Messrs. Parlett, Lander, Somerfield, Goode, Henshaw, Hunt, Tonks, Seal, Thomas and Ride. The Foreign birds made a capital show, a number of highly attractive species being staged. Chief among them stood the exhibits of Mr. O. Milksum (Swindon) which met with universal admiration, and well deserved it. His Purple-capped Lory is magnificent, though for quietness out-done by the Black-headed Green Sugar-bird, a truly beautiful little creature, which captured the Foreign Bird Club's medal. Mr. F. Howe (Wellingboro), also had out a particularly good team. Mrs. Duncan did well, and Mrs. Henson, too, while Messrs. Garton and Alton both got in the prize-list, the former's pair of Japanese Hawfinches being a lovely couple. The judges were Messrs. W. Vardy (Nor. Liz. and Gift), W. E. Greeves (Crests, Lancs, and Class.), and G. E. Weston (Bel., Hyb., Brit. and For.). They had a good light (until approaching mid-day, when storms threatened), and got through expeditiously, all things considered. We heard an odd grumble or two here and there, but so far as we could see all resolved themselves into purely personal differences of opinion. In several classes—both Norwich, Crests and British—either first or second, or even third, could have changed places and little harm been done.

SHILDON.

This second annual show (confined to members) was held under the auspices of the Old Shildon Workmen's Club and Institute on Nov. 14, and it proved a great success. We had a record entry of 142, for which prizes of upwards of £50 in value were given. Some excellent specimens were staged—birds that have done honour to their owners in open competition. We have a membership of 39. The value of prizes ranged from £1 4s. for first to 1s. for last prize, and a special prize, value 2s. 6d. each, given by friends and members. We also had 9 open classes confined to members. Our officers and committee took a great interest in the show, and it is due to their efforts that everything proved so successful. PORTOBELLO.

The annual show was held on November 7th, in the Masonic Hall, a splendid hall for the show of its kind. We found everything in apple-pie order when we arrived. With Mr. Dunn, the well-known Plainhead enthusiast at the head as show manager, coupled with those ideal fanciers, Messrs. Leach and Leckie, as secretaries and treasurers, and also backed up by a hardworking army of stewards, we found everybody in their place, and a place for everything. It must have been most gratifying to all to see such a host of fanciers from other societies. The birds all over were greatly in advance of last year's. Mr. Buchan's Scotch fancy yell hen won cup for best bird in hall, also cup for best Scotch Fancy. The Border cup was captured by Mr. Hogg. Mr. Dunn had a clear run for the Plainhead cup, and the winner, a clear Buff cock, is an ideal bird in every respect. The same gentleman also won cup for most points over the show with a grand total of 40 points, the next being Mr. Wilson with 37. The Crest cup was won by Mr. Arthur with a C.B. Mr. Leckie accounted for the Mule cup with a handsome lightly varieg. Mule. Mr. Patterson (Chirnside) judged Border and Scotch Fancies, and Mr. Sykes (Musselburgh) the remainder. Their awards met with great approval.

SOUTH-WE T LONDON C.B.S.

This society's annual members' show was held on November 7th, and was in every respect a success, the quality throughout the show being excellent. The entries were about the same as on previous occasions. A great many visitors put in an appearance during the evening, and everything passed off most successfully. Mr. Robson judged, and we congratulate the committee upon the grand quality of the exhibits. The Champion Norwich Plainhead, also the Norwich and Yorkshire in the Amateur and Novice sections, were especially good. The Champion Yorkshire and Crests did not come up to former years in numbers but the quality was equally high. Novice and Amateur Crests and Crestbred came up much better, and showed an increase. The British Classes were not numerous, but some good specimens were well staged. In Mr. W. Lilley the society possesses a hard-working, enthusiastic secretary, a deservedly popular official, and he was well supported by an excellent committee in Messrs. Your double number this week is a treat, and the coloured plate is a gem, in fact the best we have had for some time. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—R. J. BAKER (Chichester).

What a prize packet this week! I have been waiting a long time for a plate of the Bunnings and must thank you for the same. It is lovely, and would be cheap at 5s. Well done, Mr. Norman.—BROWN (Weymouth).

I am sending two copies of this week's CAGE BIRDS to fancier friends in Australia, who I think, will be delighted with them, writes Mr. T. Acheson (Thornaby-on-Tees), especially the coloured plate, which I think is a real treat to look at.

Your Double Number was quite a treat, and the coloured plate was splendid. CAGE BIRDS is making great progress, and my sales through its columns have been a record this season. I trust it may have the success it so richly deserves.—JOHN MARTIN (Castle Douglas).

Allow me to congratulate you on your handsome plate and the double number of our favourite paper, CAGE BIRDS. It was a perfect treat to me to read the articles on the Linnet and Grey Parrot. These alone should be worth many pounds to all fanciers. Your plate reflects the highest praise upon your able artist. Wishing you every success in the future—THOS. CROSSLEY (Kendal).

Echoes from Glasgow and West of Scotland Show.

That a few of the principal clubs in England and Scotland gave their patronage; that the entries numbered 1,243, and beat last year by more than 100; that a feature of the show was the international contests in the Border and Norwich breeds; that they were the first of their kind in Glasgow; that the result was against England Scotland scoring 261 points, England 84, majority for Scotland 177 points; that "Scottics" were pleased; that the British and Foreign classes were a treat; that the Waxwing drew a lot of attention; that the Mynah had many admirers; that it is said to be the best speaker in Europe; that it had a fair audience round it; that the Lorikeet also a clever speaker, ably supported it; that the show is floating in troubled waters; that the mysterious circular was responsible for many entries held back; that its author has a hot time in store for himself; that he is known; that he did not grace the show with his presence; that he was a wise man to stay away; that he should have vented his grievances through the proper channel; that the Scotch Fancy classes were cancelled for want of support; that the "circular" gets the credit for this; that the exhibits were nicely staged; that the secretaries and committee wrought hard to make the show a success; that there was a large turn-out of visitors and breeders; that club members should be loyal to each other, and to their club in particular; that some good birds were sold by auction for fair prices; that Hastings is a good auctioneer; that the veteran of the Scotch Fancy, Mr. T. Thomson, was there; that all were pleased to see him looking well again; that he has a successor in the family for his hobby; that the management should set about putting their house in order and have all plain sailing next year.—"SCOTCH FANCY."

An appeal having been made to include Scotch Fancy classes, the association responded by providing 8 classes, but as the entries up to Wednesday only totalled 22 the Scotch Fancy classes were cancelled and the services of the judges, Messrs. Black and Hogg, were dispensed with. Beyond all doubt the circular above referred to had an influence on Scotch fanciers, and an opportunity of increasing the already too limited rhows has been lost. The Scotch Fancy Canary has but ground, and can ill afford to let opportunities like this slip by.

GLASGOW AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.

A Thoroughly Successful Exhibition.

The Glasgow and West of Scotland N.M.B. and F.B.C. held their 2nd annual open show on Nov. 13 and 14, and it proved a grand success, there being an increase of no less than 200 entries. This was in the face of the blackguardly circular, sent out by an anonymous party or parties to all likely exhibitors throughout Scotland; such a publication was a disgrace to the fancy and to the name of "Scotland." Norwich opened the programme, and contained some real high-class specimens, many of the classes being very keenly contested, especially the yellow and buff cock classes. The unnlighted classes were very strong and contained some lovely specimens. The novice classes were especially good, being strong in numbers and containing some of the cream of the show. The novices do get a hold of them, and no mistake. These classes were judged by Messrs. Mackie (Aberdeen) and A. G. Cameron (Kelso), and their awards were well received by the large number of breeders and exhibitors present. Crests and Crest-breds were forward in good numbers, the Crest-breds being extra good. These classes were carefully handled by that well-known Tyne breeder, Mr. T. Taylor (Gateshead), and his awards were universally well received, grumbling being conspicuous by its absence. Borders followed, and were, as usual, forward like an advancing army. Every show brings forth the new recruits in exhibitors and also in exhibition specimens. We noticed several new ones among the winners. This being the international contest of the B.F.C.C. and the E. and W.B.F.C.C., a large entry was naturally expected, but the English contingent was greatly in the minority, although what they had forward were good. There were two medals competed for, one being secured by Mr. H. Bennet with his gem of a yellow hen and the other by Mr. Gilchrist with his yellow uneven hen, an eye-opener. Greens and Cinnamons were an extra good lot, and took the judges some time to separate. Mr. Duncan, of the well-firm, Messrs. Duncan and Logan, judged the even numbers, and Mr. Mossie (Annbank) the odd numbers, and their awards left very little to be commented upon. Yorkshires and Cinnamons followed and brought together a splendid collection. The bird of length and position seems to be making headway in Scotland, when one considers the admiring crowds that were to be found gathered round them. The classes were very keenly contested, but the judge, Mr. C. Campbell (Glasgow) proved to be quite at home in his awards. Mules and Hybrids followed, and such an array of the breeder's art has never been seen in any show in Scotland. When we say there were no less than four distinct varieties, three of them clear and the other next door to a clear in one class, it will give an idea of the choice collection. This class contained a clear Siskin 1st, a clear Greenfinch 2nd, a clear Goldfinch 4th, and an almost clear Linnet 5th. Other classes were good and were represented by some choice specimens, especially the Bullfinch Hybrid class, which was headed by the best Canary-Bullic that has been on view for years. Britishers and foreigners were good, although we have seen them stronger in numbers. On the whole they were a good collection, some real tip-top specimens being amongst the winners. Unfortunately we noticed No. 1, class 85, a Yellowhammer, had been disqualified for alleged trimming of head. Many of the Foreigners were gorgeous, but one especially comes in for comment—an Amazon belonging to Miss Gray, which for vocal, speaking, and mimicry powers was worth the gate money itself and was cheap at catalogue price to anyone wanting a "living gramophone." These classes were judged (even numbers) by Mr. Watson (Edinburgh), odd numbers Mr. A. Cochrane (Edinburgh), and, taken on the whole, their awards were well received.

The show was held as usual in the Drill Hall, Stirling Road, which is a good one. It might perhaps be a little better if heated as we noticed several birds feeling the cold. The day was good for judging, Glasgow being free from its usual heavy cloudy weather. The management was all that could be desired. The show arrangements were supervised by the genial and ever-smiling Mr. Matthew Craig, vice-president, and Mr. G. McPhail, who carried out their duties to perfection. They were ably assisted by a large committee, composed of Messrs. McLay, Henderson, Erskine, Whitelaw, McCallum, Sloan, Chalmers Griffiths, Brown, Crawford, Graham, Tannock, Thomson, Watson, Taylor, Bowman, Ferguson, McLeod, Gowans, Burnett, Donaghy, Tweedie, Jarvie, Barrie, and Fyfe. The secretarial and financial part of the business, which is a heavy one in a show of this magnitude, was under the steering hand of Mr. R. A. Brown, who, although young, has received the business training which fits him for his high post. He was ably assisted by his colleagues, Messrs. J. Brown and A. K. Chalmers, and the trio finished their arduous duties with flying colours. The president is Mr. P. Easton. The show was well patronised by country exhibitors and sales were numerous. We hope to have the pleasure of hearing of a balance on the right side.

A Useful Type of Outdoor Bird-room.

The photograph above shows a distinctly serviceable type of outdoor bird-house, and one not at all expensive or difficult to erect. The proud possessor is Mr. F. Wilson, of Jedburgh Avenue, Rutherglen, who writes concerning it:—"My outdoor aviary I got put up about two years ago. It is 9ft. long, and 7ft. broad, and rather more than 6ft. high. It has a southern aspect. I have wintered Canaries in it for two years, and find they require no artificial heat. My especial fancy is the Roller Canary, and I have been wondering if I have created a record by this season's breeding. I started quite hopefully, and got the first nest hatched on 29th April, when the weather was so cold that I had to thaw the drinking water. All the same the young ones survived. I reared a dozen young. Here comes the curious fact: all are hens! However, most authorities say that the singing qualities come from the hen; so I suppose I may console myself with the thought that I have at least laid the foundation of a good strain.—Frank Wilson."

PRESTON.

The annual exhibition under the auspices of the Preston O.S. was held in the Assembly Rooms, Public Hall, on November 13th and 14th, and proved a great success in every way, entries coming in well, and the gate being highly satisfactory. The room is an ideal one for a large bird show, allowing plenty of space for both birds and visitors, and is very well lighted. Although it was the Inter-club show between the English and Scotch N.F.C.'s at Glasgow, this did not prevent the Norwich men turning up at Preston, many noted exhibitors (including Mr R. Baker, of Dewes) sending grand teams. Yorkshires were a magnificent collection, some exceptional specimens winning in these classes, including Messrs. Ambler's champion clear yellow cock and yellow hen. In the four classes for Borders many beautiful little gems were staged. The yellow hen of Mr. Wilson's, and the buff hen of Messrs. Hopper Bros., are a couple of stormers, and worth going a long way to see. British and Foreign, under the patronage of their respective specialist clubs, brought together many noted champions, and made a striking and effective show. The novice classes as usual were very well filled, and many grand birds were amongst the exhibits. The cup presented by Lord Stanley for best Canary shown by a member was won by Mr. T. Seed with his clear Buff Norwich, Little King II., Messrs. Cleminson, and Taylor's undlighted yellow being the runner up. The Charles Blackhurst Cup was also won by Mr. T. Seed. The Preston O.S. Cup was won by Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor, the Oswaldcotton Cup by Messrs. Leeming Bros., and Hyde's special by Messrs. Colville and Knight. The secretaries, Messrs. W. H. Heathcote and J. T. Swarbrick, together the committee, Messrs. J. W. Cleminson (show manager), C. Blackhurst (chairman), the Rev. S. E. Collinson (chief steward), J. P. Leeming (treasurer), J. Curwen, T. Dunn, H. Heaps, F. Issott, T. Leeming, W. Lewis, W. Binns, W. Parkinson, W. Howarth, R. Taylor, H. Marsh, and W. Walkden, are to be congratulated on the very able and efficient manner in which they carried out their numerous duties, everything necessary being done for the comfort and welfare of both exhibits and visitors. The Judges were Dr. Herd (Morecambe) and Messrs. Mundell (Bradford) and Parker Robinson (Barrow-in-Furness), and their awards were favourably received.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.

Held at the Drill Hall, on Nov. 12. The entry was affected no doubt by the crashing of so many shows on this date, both Swansea and Bristol taking place on the same day. The cage bird section was in the hands Messrs. Jones and Davies, supported by willing helpers, all capable fanciers, and the exhibits were well looked after. The Canary classes filled well, particularly in the Yorks classes. Norwich were also good. Two good classes of Borders were on view and the quality of the Scots Fancy was far in advance of what we usually see in Wales. Mules, Foreign, and British were a real good show, in themselves. The show was very well attended during the day and it looks like being a huge financial success. Mr. J. Robson judged.

DUMFRIES.

The annual show of the Dumfries and Maxwell town C.S.A., was held in the Auction Hall of Messrs. Dunbar, Pattie and Gibson. The entries showed a considerable increase on last year's, and the exhibits were of excellent quality. Scotch Fancies were a good selection all over, and several of the young birds will be heard of at future shows, especially a young buff cock belonging to Mr. Edgar. This bird secured the gold medal and was closely run by Mr. J Hannay's champion foul buff hen. There was strong competition in the Border Fancy class. The British medal and also the Border Fancy medal were won by Mr. McCreadie, Mr. J. Calderwood being runner-up. The prize for most points over whole show was won by Mr Hannay, with a total of 107 points; he was closely followed by Mr. J B. Richardson. The show was an immense success, and everything looks well for the club. The judges were—for Border Fancies, Mr. Moodie (Annahank), and for Scotch Fancies, Mr. E. Ralston (Newmilns). The secretarial duties were in the capable hands of Mr. Wm. Ritchie.

MARKINCH.

Markinch held their 35th annual open show in the Masonic Hall on November 7th. The hall is admirably suited for a bird show, being free from draughts and having good light. The floor space, however, was just a little too limited, which prevented the public, who patronised it well, from seeing the birds. Everything was in order for the Judges. Messrs. W. D. Hogg, J. Adams, and G. Marian, when they arrived, thanks to the energy of the president, Mr. W. Forrester, and the secretary, Mr George Mitchell, who works like a Trojan. These were ably assisted by a good committee of hard-working workers. The gate was a good one, and should go on the management to look for a larger hall. The entries were also considerably up on last year's total, and their quality was of a high standard. The awards of the several judges seemed to meet with general approbation.

YORKS PARK CLUB.

Annual members' show held in Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road, W., Nov. 13 and 14. It was a decided success, a feature of the exhibits being their high level of quality. The association is in a flourishing condition, having a substantial balance in hand. Its membership is good, and the management of its affairs rests in the hands of a capable and enthusiastic committee. Mr. J. G. Lawrence is an excellent chairman, and Mr. J. C. Birch makes an efficient, courteous, and practical hon. secretary. He had all the arrangements well in hand, and everything in apple-pie order for visitors quite early in the afternoon. Mr. C. H. Lewis, assistant secretary, ably seconds the efforts of his chief. The list of cups and specials in competition was a long and valuable one; indeed, the society has every factor which should bring success. Mr Hawes won a valuable bracket, presented by Mr. Dawtry for competition, to be won twice; this is Mr. Hawes' second win. He has also scored his second win for the Yorkshire cup. Mr. Battison secured his 3rd win for the Norwich cup. Mr. J. Robson judged.

LAISTER. YKE.

Annual exhibition (under Y.U. Rules and the patronages of the Y.C.C. and the C.M.Y.C.C.), held in the St. Paul's Church, on Nov. 14th, and in response to the schedule of 20 classes, the gratifying entry of 446 was received, giving an average of about 17 per class. This year they had a change of venue for their show, and the room, though a nice one, is not quite as good as the one they have had for the few previous years. Mr. R. Hamilton was the official judge of the Yorkshire Union, and in consideration of the large entry, and the fact of its being only a one day show, the services of Mr. J. Dawson were secured as assistant, Mr. Halliday judging all the open classes, and Mr. J. Dawson the selling and novice sections. The arrangements were well carried out under the direction of their old and trusted servant, Mr. A. Bottomley, who has returned to the post of secretary (after a few years' rest), with renewed vigour; he was ably assisted by a strong committee, composed of Messrs. Pownall, Casey, Lambert, Ogden Bros., Shoesmith and others. Messrs. Drake and Son and L. Briggs were the leaders in CAGE BIRDS Competition for Amateurs. Mr. W. H. Shackleton won special for most points in show, that for second being secured by Messrs. Bailey and Swanger. Messrs. R. Sutcliffe and Son notched the top points in the Clns. Marked Classes, and Mr. F. Hammond won special for most points gained in Novice Section. Hyde's fell to Mr. W. B. Swaine. The Members' Cup was won by Messrs. Ogden Bros., and this being their third successive win, it becomes their own property.

"SYPHON" STOVES

Require no Fuel.

Give no Smoke or Smell.

Specially adopted for

Bird Rooms, Aviaries,

Bed Rooms, Nurseries, &c.

Mr. J. B. Holroyd, Breeder and Exhibitor of Champion Yorkshire Canaries, Shipley, Yorks, writes:—

I have great pleasure in speaking in the highest terms as to the qualities of your "SYPHON" STOVES. I have had one in use for several seasons in my Bird Room and have found it excellent. It is most economical and does away with the labour of attending to a fuel stove. There is no dust to fly about, a great consideration when exhibition birds are kept. Another great feature is the absence of smoke or smell.

WAKEFIELD O.S.

Members' Show held at headquarters, "Crown and Anchor" Hotel, on October 24th. Entries came up very well, about 90 birds being staged; some excellent specimens were found amongst them. The competition was very keen. The British were a very good lot, especially those in the Linnet and A.O.S. classes, and the judge had no light task in picking out the winners. Mr. Whitehead (Bradford) placed the cards, and his awards gave general satisfaction; every credit is due to him for the excellent way in which he dealt with them. The show was in every way a success.

KIRKCALDY.

Annual show held Nov. 14, when the executive were rewarded by a good entry, the total being about the same as last year's number, while the quality on the whole was extra good. Scotch fanciers, although down in numbers, contained the cream of the Fancy. These classes were judged by Mr. H. Brown (Edinburgh), whose awards were well received. Nor., Orests, and Crest-breds, were forward in large numbers, and the judge, Mr. Chalmers, who also gave satisfaction, had a hard day's task in front of him. The cup winner was found in this variety, in a grand unflighted yellow. British, Mules, etc., were a good lot, some outstanding birds being put down. These were judged by the veteran, Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow), and his awards were well received. The committee is an ideal one, consisting of Messrs. Neish, Adamson, Gibson, Mathewson, Storrar, Clark, Hutton, Mitchelson, Henderson, Kay, and Lister, and under the careful and capable guidance of Mr. Wilson, the secretary and treasurer, and Mr. T. Arnot, the assistant secretary, they had everything in apple-pie order. The president is Mr. G. Arnot, and the vice-president Mr. E. Allan. The staging of the exhibits and the care that was taken of them were all that could be desired. The hall is an ideal one for an exhibition, being well lighted, and free from draught. The show was well patronized, and we hope to hear it was a financial success.

The Border Fancy section was well catered for, and as usual provided the largest classes in the show for clears. The marked classes were down in number. The quality all over was of a high order, the competition being very keen. Mr. Patterson, who came in for the lion's share of the spoil, won the shield for most points over the show. This shield has been kindly presented by Mr. J. Wilson, their worthy secretary, which clearly shows his love for our feathered pets, so that no one need fear to send his best team to Kirkcaldy as long as Mr. Wilson and the Messrs. Arnots are at the head of affairs. Mr. Peter McKenzie (Kelso) judged with his usual care, and left little room for grumblers. The cards were up in plenty of time, and towards night the visitors simply swarmed in. Truly it was a fixture on which the officials deserve congratulation.

LONDON AND COUNTIES O.A.

The third annual show was held at "The Goat and Compasses," Euston Road, N.W., on Nov. 13 and 14. The association is certainly to be congratulated on the comfortable quarters they are in. The birds were staged round the room, and on the two billiard tables, making a very pretty little show. The comfort of the exhibits was well provided for by a very capable committee, with the ever genial "Bob" Pretty (Mr. R. J.) at the helm, and he had every detail well in hand. Mr. C. E. Sills (Emsworth) judged Canaries, and Mr. C. Prior British and Foreign, their awards giving general satisfaction. The Yorkshires were very fair in strength, and good in quality, while the cinnamon class would do credit to many an open show, Mr. Handt's team coming in for a big share of admiration. The British Birds were a show in themselves, containing some very fine exhibits. There was a very good attendance of members and visitors. We noticed Mr. H. E. Trangham expounding the properties of the long ones, Mr. Adamthwaite busy among the British, and that enthusiastic fancier, Mr. W. Quantrell (Watford), who wins the association's cup with his 30 exhibits, Mr. O. Handt being runner up with 2nd most points; we also noticed Messrs. Crabb, Morrison, Ogle, H. J. Pearce, Shakespeare, Simpson and E. S. Lugg (Lewisham), while several ladies were also in attendance. Their esteemed president, Mr. F. W. Thorp, kept a fatherly eye on the assembly.

LEWISHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Second annual members' show, held November 3rd at headquarters, the Rosebuck Hotel. The room was tastefully arranged, and the birds staged at a nice height and in splendid condition. The show was thronged with visitors, many fanciers from kindred societies being present. We noticed the well-known secretary of the Dulwich and Peckham Society in the crowd, who had spared a few hours of relaxation from the duties of his own forthcoming show. Major Coates, M.P. for Lewisham, and president of the society, was unfortunately prevented from attending through illness, a telegram being received by the secretary during the evening to this effect. W. T. Kramer, Esq., of Lewisham, another vice-president, was in attendance during the major portion of the evening, and although not strictly a fancier showed keen interest in the exhibition and welfare of the birds. The exhibits numbered 143, this being an increase of 35 on the first annual show held in January last. It is rumoured that the next annual show will be an open one. Mr J. Robson judged. Prize-money was paid to the successful exhibitors at the close of the evening. The venture reflected high credit on Mr. Lucas, the secretary, and the officials.

BRECHIN.

This society held their 45th annual show on Nov. 7th, in the Temperance Hall. Entries numbered close on 100, which compares very favourably with those of last year. The schedule opened with 13 classes for Norwich, which turned out to be the great feature of the show, both in quantity and quality. Mr. A. McFarlane, Glasgow, won the Challenge Cup for best bird in show with a lovely young buff cock of the right type and quality. We were informed that the cup now becomes the property of that gentleman, as he has now won it three times. The society has been very fortunate in keeping it for ten years. Borders came next with 12 classes, and were quite up to those of former years, some grand exhibits being staged. British and Foreign birds were not quite up to Brechin's usual form, although several good birds were staged to perfection. The management at this show is all that could be desired. Mr. Geo. Walker, the hard working secretary, had all the arrangements well in hand, and everything spick and span. Mr. J. Sundison (Aberdeen), who was appointed to judge Norwich, was unable to attend owing to indisposition, the post being filled by Mr. Geo. Davidson (Aberdeen). Borders were judged by Mr. Wm. Haddow (Hamilton), and Wild Birds by Mr. Mitchell (Aberdeen). Their awards seemed to give every satisfaction.

CLYDEBANK.

The 22nd annual show was held in the Town Hall on November 14th, and was of an encouraging character. The entries numbered 171 and the quality was superior to that of last year; in fact it was one of the finest club shows we have visited this season. The feature of the exhibits was excellence or shoulder; many had they but been restrunined to one perch, would have passed as Bengans. Mr Collins secured the cup with a very fine green cock full of style, and the prize for best hen was won by Mr. A. Bowman with a large, stylish yellow piebald hen. They were both popular wins. The Judges were Messrs. J. Watson (Glasgow), J. Park (Govan), A. Nearet (Galston), and W. Muirhead (Bonnybridge). The secretary, Mr. Kirkwood, deserves great credit for the business-like way in which the arrangements were carried out. The show was well patronised.

CITY AND COUNTY OF PERTH O.A.

Annual club show, held in the City Cafe on Oct. 31st. There was a good turn-out of young birds, and many fine specimens were shown. The Scotch Fancy was fairly well represented, and Mr. Wm. Sharp, who is a young member, was most successful. In Crests and crest-breds, Mr. A. G. McDonald, who is a first year man, had the bulk of the honours; some of his birds will be heard of again this season. He took special for best Canary in hall with a beauty of a young Crest. In Norwiches, Mr. W. C. Smith, and George Wylie divided the honours, and in wild birds, Mr. Wylie was the principal winner. Mr. T. B. Gray won the Foreign class with a real good Oryx Weaver, in splendid colour.

BERMONDSEY AND DISTRICT F.A

Annual show held at "Salmon's Castle," Grange Road, London, S.E., on Nov. 7th. The cage bird section was by far the most creditable put up by the members for some time. There was a great improvement in the quality of the exhibits, showing that some of the few members are backing up. Members and friends turned up in full force, and the show was the most successful one held by the club for the last few years. Mr. J. Robson placed the awards. The able secretary, Mr. A. Lupton, was well in evidence, and tried hard to make the show a complete success.

BEDFORD.

The sixth annual Show of the Bedford and Bedfordshire C.B.S. was held in the Town Hall, on October 29th, when between 300 and 400 birds were on view. The Norwich classes were remarkably well filled, and a very fine lot of choice and rare foreigners faced the judge, Mr. J. H. Roe. The show itself was opened by W. A. Attenborough, Esq., who congratulated the Society upon its continued success, and Mr. Wiggins the energetic Hon. Sec., to whom much of the success is due, informed the company present that the membership of the society was still growing, this year showing an increase upon last year. Such well-known fanciers as Messrs. H. Gentle (chairman of the Committee) A. Keech, T. Millard, T. Smith, H. Markham and others looked well after the exhibits, Mr. G. Osborn acting as judge's steward. There was also a very fine lot of stuffed specimens on view, which added to the attraction of the show.

GILLINGHAM.

Once again the "men of Kent" resident at Gillingham and district got together a splendid show in the public hall on Nov. 12 and 13, and the public had an opportunity of viewing many grand specimens. The hall is a well-lighted one, the arrangements were about perfect, and the general management left nothing to be desired. The entry was about the same as last year, and the quality was of the highest order. A more capable secretary than Mr. T. F. Ramsey it would be impossible to find, or a more genuine body of fanciers than the committee, from the chairman downwards. There was a splendid list of specials, and the prize money was good. The quality in Norwich Plainheads was excellent, and to the Yorkshires the same remark applies, the special for best Canary going to this section. Mr. Johnson winning it with a magnificent Buff. The bowl for best British went to a tip-top Missel Thrush, shown by Mr. Acland. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and appeared to give satisfaction.

The Novices Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed, from time to time by various leading experts.

For Instance.

For instance, a very wild, nervous bird that dashes and bangs about the cage as soon as anyone approaches within its sight, should not be placed all at once in the most public part of the room. Let it remain in a fairly secluded corner until it has grown accustomed to the size of its cage. Let its food consist exclusively of Canary seed in the seed-box, and any other delicacy in the way of seeds, egg food, or green stuff; give a very little at a time, and let it see always that you are approaching its cage on this hospitable mission. This, coupled with a quiet manner, will soon make it trust you.

When it has grown steady whilst you approach it and put a tit-bit in the wires, bring its cage out into a place where it will see more of your movements as you go about attending to the others, and gradually bring it a little more forward each day until you have it in the required position, where it will see folks about frequently. This may be a rather tedious process, but it must not be hurried along faster than the nervous condition of this bird will allow, or the process will be lengthened rather than otherwise. Once the bird has become perfectly steady, further progress will be much easier. The chief object of all that follows is to get the bird to fall into its best typical pose as quickly as possible when you approach its cage to examine it. Get it to assume a bold, upright, defiant carriage and demeanour, and avoid every thing that seems to make it squat, or crouch down.

The means of doing this will suggest themselves as one goes on, and may vary considerably with the temperament of the man and the bird. Talking of temper, however, the man must keep his own cool at all odds. No matter how irritating and provoking a bird may be, do not lose your temper. If there is any imminent danger of this happening, far better put the bird aside and postpone further tuition until one or a few more tens have been counted. Talking, tweeting, whistling, cheeping, tapping the front of the cage, scratching the bottom, gently lifting it up, and moving it to and fro, these, and many more, are trifling methods employed in getting a bird to "pose."

If you have a bit of choice green food you may offer it from the wire at the top of the cage, to teach the bird to draw itself well up over the perch, but, as a rule, when there is no tempting tit-bit to offer, the hand should not be placed over the top of the cage at all, as this almost invariably has a tendency to make a bird crouch; which is a grievous fault in any and every variety, but perhaps more so in a Yorkshire than any other, as a crouchy Yorkshire would need to possess very superlative points indeed to condone this fault.

Faults to Correct.

Many little dodges are sometimes used to correct trifling faults in an otherwise good bird, or to develop and improve desirable features. Just as squattiness is one of the worst points in the Yorkshire, an upright carriage and a straight back, drawn out as though the body were stretched to the greatest possible extent, is one of the most highly valued. Such dodges as suspending a bit of string from the top of the cage almost immediately over the perch, and hanging just low enough for the bird to reach and play with when standing bolt upright, hanging green food in a similar position, and others, are believed to gradually improve a bird's carriage, and doubtless with some reason.

Again, a bird that is inclined to be crouchy has the lower part of its cage front covered with some opaque material and kept in such a position that it is encouraged to frequently draw itself up to get a glimpse of its comrades over the obstructing material. Over-training, or making the birds too tame, will often give rise to another fault in any variety. This is when the bird gets so tame and confident that when one begins to inspect it closely it comes to the front and grips the wires an inch or two above the perch with one foot and keeps the other foot on the perch. This is a rather bad blemish, and should be corrected by putting in a perch firmly secured to the back of the cage and ending an inch or so short of the wires, so that the bird cannot come close up to the wires. It will also be best to give it a little less attention to prevent its becoming too tame and ruffling its feathers and wanting to play with one's fingers.

A bird in the last condition is quite as difficult to judge fairly as one that is too wild and nervous to allow itself to be looked at. Whenever a bird goes to that degree of tameness that it comes to the wire and tweets boldly and fearlessly to you, it is time to cease all further conciliatory efforts as from this stage tameness proceeds by leaps and bounds, and it is often a delicate matter to pose the bird without encouraging it to become tamer than is desirable.

The Cinnamon may with advantage stand just a little more upright, but should not approach the degree of angularity affected by the Yorkshire. On the other hand the two last named breeds should stand right across the perch, as it were, or in such a position that an imaginary line drawn from the top of the head to the tip of the tail would form a right angle with the perch itself.

The Robin is favoured by many as showing the typical position of a Crest or Crest-bred, whilst others favour the Bullfinch pose. The latter is generally the best, and the Bullfinch may further be taken as typical of the ideal shape of body of the Crest and Crest-bred. But one may with advantage train a real good Crest to pose Robin-wise, with the head held a trifle low—in short, to stand as though it were consciously showing its chief points of interest and value to the observer. This, of course, is only meant to apply to birds with really good and well-shaped crests. If the crest is in any way faulty, it is good policy to encourage the more upright Bullfinch pose, especially if the size of body and plenitude of feather is a marked feature of the bird.

Other Varieties.

The Belgian and the Scotch Fancy are undoubtedly and essentially birds of position. Training, therefore, is quite the most important thing in preparing them for exhibition. The typical position of each will be found in the ideals and standard of perfection. Both are very highly strung, sensitive breeds, and often inclined to nervousness, so that the utmost care and gentleness should always be exercised in handling and training them. But given these necessary requirements, the birds should be made quite familiar with the judging stick, and having their cages frequently handled. No amount of trouble should be spared to get them to remain steady under close scrutiny, and to fall readily and quickly into position when the judging stick is introduced to the wire.

If one perseveres with the birds until they will invariably "pose" promptly as soon as a few gentle taps with a cane or pencil against the wires attract their notice they will have gone far on the road that leads to "first and special," and will never have cause to regret the pains bestowed upon their education.

Although I am an invalid myself, and only able to go out in a bath chair in the summer time, I like reading about the birdy men's outings and rambles, when they give a description of what they find, and are able to see. I have one hen Canary and one cock Linnet. I tried for Mules last year but had two nests of clear eggs. I have also a hen Goldfinch, but she will not settle down So I have not anything much, but they are very interesting to me as I am always with them. GEORGE BUTTERY (Woodbridge).

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. It kills all insects, harmless to everything else.

A Working Man's Experiences with British Birds.

By P. JACKSON.

My Experience with Tits.

The Titmice are very interesting birds to keep. I have successfully kept Blue-Tits, Cole-Tits, Marsh-Tits, Long-tailed Tits, and Great or Oxeye Tits (I never had the luck to possess a Bearded or a Crested Tit). I had a little trouble in keeping these birds at first—I could not keep them alive for more than three days, they ottener than not dying the same night I got them.

I kept one for about a week in my aviary. On going to feed him early one day, however, I missed him, and failed to hear his song, which used to greet me, as I neared the aviary. I searched, but it was in vain. I expected to find him dead but to my surprise found him peeping through a self-feeding hopper. This revealed the secret, the others had evidently died through not having suitable sleeping accommodation.

So I set to work and made a few large cages with ½in. mesh loose wire fronts, the inside of the cages being lined with rough oak bark. I put eight Blue Tits in the first cage which I had barked, and waited anxiously to see the result. In less than twenty seconds not one of the birds could be seen; occasionally they would take a peep from behind the bark, to see if the coast was clear, darting back as soon as they were aware of my presence.

After this I had little or no trouble with Tits. But I find each species is better if kept in separate cages, especially the Great Tits. One of these I placed with three Blue Tits; all seemed well, but on going to feed them next morning I found that the Great Tit had already had his feed on the brains of the Blue Tits. He had scalped them all, and their skulls inside were as clean as if washed out. There were no signs of any blood in the cage, but he was easily proved guilty; his beak and breast were covered with blood, he uttered a defiant, harsh noise as I pulled the Tits out of the cage, and pecked violently at my hand.

All the Tits are more or less quarrelsome. The Great Tit, in my opinion, is the most beautiful of all British birds, with his jet black cap and body of different shades of greens, blues, and yellows he is a perfect treat to look at.

How Best to Feed Them.

The most staple food for all Tits is a lump of mutton suet, stuck in the bars, and the mixture recommended for small insectivorous birds. This course of feeding answers well for the Cole, Marsh, and Longtailed Tits, but for Blue and Great Tits it is best to add shelled nuts of some kind, together with sunflower and hemp seeds, not forgetting mealworms.

It is interesting to watch them. If you can secrete yourself somewhere near the cage, watch how they devour large mealworms. They get them between their claws and pull them to pieces, bit by bit, with the dexterity of a hawk with his prey. The cages for Tits I have mentioned do well for Nuthatches and Treecreepers, also for Woodpeckers, which birds do admirably on the food recommended for small insectivorous birds.

A Turn at Keeping Kingfishers.

I will now conclude by giving my experience two years ago with a nest of Kingfishers, and the parent birds. Hearing that two persons at least had successfully reared and kept this species I thought I would try. I found a nest of these birds only half-a-mile from home. The parent birds had been feeding their young for at least a fortnight. I watched them fishing for minnows in a clear stream for hours, close to where their nest was situated, high up in the bank under an old stump of a tree. They would perch on a branch nearest to the water, dive into the stream and seldom miss their prey. I noticed they always seemed to bolt the fish whole, head first; the smaller ones they took to their young. I prepared my aviary with sandstone rock work with a large fish aquarium fixed on top; I also had rock-work about the aviary. I stocked the tank with minnows caught in the same stream (with a mosquito hand net). I chose a cloudy night for the capture of the parent birds. I took with me a purse net and peg, a long cane and an acetylene lamp; also a canvas-topped box. Nearing the spot, I placed the lamp, alight, in my pocket, and crept cautiously up, covered the nest hole with the net, and pegged same down. Then I put my cane through the net and down the hole, and worked it to and fro gently. Both parent birds were instantly caught, for they came out like shot from a gun. I tightened the net on them, then removed the peg and put the birds safely in my store-box.

Procuring the Young.

I had to pull part of the bank away to get at the young, which numbered four, all fully fledged. Embedded on it were the ejected fish bones, which the old birds had thrown up, commonly called pellets. I wended my way home, much pleased with my prize. I left them packed till morning.

I rose early that day to let them loose in their new home. The old birds did not care for it at first, dashing about wildly. I put the young close to the aquarium on the rock-work, and "made myself scarce," watching the event through a peep hole in the next partition. In about a quarter of an hour the old birds began to fish for themselves and young. I then left them for the day. On going in the next morning I found they had eaten up all the fish. So I employed some young children fishing for minnows. In the course of a few days they tired of this. Not having time to catch fish for them, I resolved on trying codfish, which I cut up in strips and placed them in the aquarium in shallow water. They waded for it and seemed to enjoy it. I took a friend in to see them a few days afterwards, but they seemed to forbid strangers. The hen bird (mother of the youngsters) knocked its neck out of joint against the netting under the roof window.

The young seemed to fret after her, as they only lived about a week after. I could not spare the aviary for one bird, so I caged the cock, and kept him for about five months.

I believe I would have reared the lot, but for the accident the mother bird met with, as the cock died, in my opinion, for want of proper exercise. I hope that in future if any CAGE BIRDS' readers try to rear Kingfishers they will meet with success. I am confident they can be reared on salt-water fish.

A TRAP FOR RED MITE.

Sent by G. B. Leclair, 150, Wallwood Road, Leytonstone N.E.

I herewith send you a sketch of a perch I use for keeping down the red mite. It is an ordinary perch, with a hole bored in (half through the perch) with a ¼in. bradawl, the hole to be on the underside, 2in. from the end. The red mite soon finds this little nesting-place, and the perch can easily be taken out and placed in hot water. I find this soon clears the red mite out of cages. I go round once a week, but do not find very many now.—G. B. LECLAIR.

A DRINKER FOR FLIGHTS AND AVIARIES.

Sent by T. Yarrow, Pioneer Terrace, Bedlington Station, Northumberland.

I enclose a sketch of a drinker for flight cages of aviaries, which I find very useful for preventing birds from bathing in their drinking water, and keeping it clean. First procure a piece of wood (5-16in. thick will do), and cut a piece about ½in. larger than the dish you intend to use. Get a piece of cage wire, and bend round the shape and size of your wood. Then cut some wires (as shown in sketch), to be driven in sides of wood for top, about 1in. apart, and to be fixed on wire ring for the bottom, so that it can easily be placed over your dish. The birds stand outside and drink.—T. YARROW.

THE YOUNG NATURALIST.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given each week for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be children under sixteen years of age, and must state from where stories are taken.

Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution: one star the runners up.

*Our Mischievous Magpie.

"Well, this is the latest; I can find neither my work-basket nor anything else," said mamma to me. "Have you seen it, Kitty?" "No," I replied, "but I saw 'Dicky' with the thimble in his mouth." So mamma went into the room just in time to see "Dicky," the Magpie, fly behind the door. Then she saw the thimble, thread, needles, scissors, etc., all hid under the end of the carpet.—Sent by J. H. Taylor (age 14), 36, Back Row, Cullencoats, near Newcastle-on-Tyne.

*A True Starling Story.

Having taken my uncle's dinner one day about a week before Christmas, one of the men asked me if I would like to see some little birds. Sure enough there was a nest of young Starlings in a water pipe by the side of a house. I stood watching the old ones feed them and thought it was a pretty sight for this time of the year. My uncle and his men say they have never heard of such a thing before.—Sent by Kate Cryttenden (age 10), 4, Homerule Cottage, Poundfield, Jarvisbrook.

Two Clever Sparrows.

A Sparrow was building its nest near to grandma's house, and it flew down into the garden and tried to carry away a piece of woollen material. After trying in vain to lift it, grandma watching through the window saw it fly away, and shortly came back again bringing another Sparrow with it. The two of them got hold of the piece with their beaks and flew away with it to where they had their nest.—Sent by Flossie Shinn (aged 9), 33, Edward Road, Bedford, Beds.

WILD BIRD NOTES.

Concerning Sea Gulls.

The sight of snowy plumaged Sea-Gulls recalls visions of summer holidays on sunny coasts when we eagerly watched the evolutions of the graceful birds, dodging the dancing waves or idly searching the sands by the water's edge. As winter approaches, the Gulls find their way up the estuaries and tidal rivers, eagerly watching the incoming tide for small fry brought in from the sea. They settle upon the oozing mud or float upon the water. When the tide is out, they stand for hours resting and preening themselves, on the stretches of mud and sand. At a distance their white plumage alone is discernible. While travelling through the country at this time of the year, one can see them in almost every country in England, upon the moors and uplands far from the sea, or closely following the plough, searching for wireworms and grubs in the rich heavy soil. Undoubtedly the Gull is a friend to the husbandman, although his enemies stoutly assert he is after the grain, when seen in the field. The destruction of fish by these graceful birds is estimated to involve the loss of thousands of pounds annually; and yet there appears to be plenty left in the sea. Some people would have these fishers destroyed, but to what end? Would it increase the supply of fish? Do not the Gulls when searching for food do good service by weeding out from the shoals weakly and diseased specimens? As the sun gets round to the west and daylight fades, we see companies of Gulls going seawards, in fine weather flying high and easily; or it may be facing a strong breeze, when, by skimming the surface of the water, they make good progress. The landsman sometimes wonders where they roost. If the tide is ebbing, it is upon the sand bars and mud banks at the mouth of the river, safe from intrusion, and with nothing to disturb them save the lapping of the waves out at sea or the night cries of their fellows or roving bands of wild fowl passing to and from the feeding grounds.

Swift as a Swallow.

It is recorded that two Swallows liberated in Paris arrived at their home Roulaix, a distance of 93 miles, in 75 minutes.

Precocious Birds.

The fine, warm autumn has caused many birds to mistake the season. Rooks, Tits, Sparrows, and Starlings, have been observed to carry nesting materials to suitable sites.

Golden Oriole in Kent.

The nesting of the Golden Oriole in Kent is an annual occurrence, and it is doubtful if any county has been so much favoured by this beautiful migrant. In France the bird is fairly common but destruction upon arrival has prevented its nesting more frequently here.

Pet Rook.

Most bird lovers are fond of attending to young birds, and many deserted nestlings have been safely reared by kind-hearted people; but seldom does one see the common Rook taken in hand and attended to. He is considered to be not worth the trouble. Recently we saw one that had been reared by a lady who found it on the roadside, and he undoubtedly made a very interesting pet and showed quite as much intelligence as a Magpie or Jay. He would tease both the dog and the cat, and they would scamper off directly he appeared upon the scene. One of his chief amusements was playing with a cricket ball. He would go through some curious antics with it on the lawn. His owner observed that he never would eat worms.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we refund the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositer must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must not the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

I shall recommend you to all my friends, as I was recommended to try you by a friend.—Yours, W. Lake." "59, Montague Street, Rothesay. Oct. 31. Sir,—All three birds arrived safe, and are by far and away the best wild birds I have ever bought, and more than value for what you charge. This I cannot say regarding other advertisers in CAGE BIRDS.—Yours, James M. Crone." On Nov. 7 Mr. M. Crone again writes:—"Sir,—Received the four Goldfinches to-day, as well as can be. The three for 5/- are simply marvellous value, and the other (which you sent in place of one which died) is a beauty. Will you please accept my grateful thanks for your kludness in sending me the bird free of all charge. I did not ask, and certainly never expected, such a generous action. I thank you for the way you wrote, and for the advice you gave me. Now, please send a cock Siskin for exhibition." On Nov. 11 Mr. M. Crone again writes: Siskin to hand, and is a very nice bird. I am told it is a far better bird than the one shown by ——, and which won first prize last year. My next wants are as follows." All the above letters are open for inspection any time, and are guaranteed entirely unsolicited, from persons who, apart from business transactions, are entire strangers to me. I claim to have by far more Worcestershire birds through my hands than all other advertisers together, so it naturally follows that by having a larger selection, I can give better value than others. All birds guaranteed well caged, steady, and properly on hard seed before sent out. If you would have highest quality at lowest price, patronise England's premier bird fancier. Observe some prices:—

F. WAGNER,

importer and dealer in German Canaries; wholesale only.—9, Chamber-st., Leman-st., London, E.

F. H. HESSE, LEIPSIG,

Schl. 6 (Germany), 35, Brockhausstr., breeder and exporter of Hartz Mountain Canaries. Delivery of all quantities and sorts.

THERE ARE TWO WAYS

of buying Canaries, one is by sending your cash blindly, and putting up with whatever is sent you, and the other is my way, viz., deposit your money with the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, and having bird on approval for a full week before you ultimately decide to purchase. All Canaries sold by me are sent out on the distinct understanding that you keep them one full week on approval, and if bird fails to prove in every way satisfactory, you return bird and the whole of your money is promptly returned to you. I take all risks during the whole time, so you cannot possibly lose a peunypiece by giving me a trial. I have an enormous stock of pure St. Andreasberg Rollers, all direct from Leipzig, in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trill, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or other objectionable notes, price, 6/6 and 7/6 each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass, and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of everflowing melody, 10/- and 12/6 each; ordinary, loud, free Hartz cocks, in full vigorous song, 4/6 each, 28/- for seven; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple, 12/- dozen. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole importer of these birds, no other dealer can get one feather of this strain unless he purchases from me. See following few letters, full name and address given with each, so that any sceptical person can make any enquiries he likes:—"29, Clifford-road, West Stanley, November 10th, Sir,—Roller received in splendid condition, I am delighted with it, and for song I never had its equal. Please send another soon as possible. Yours, Wm. Roe." On November 14th Mr. Roe again writes, "Sir,—Received the other Roller, it is just what I wanted, splendid songster. I had a friend down, and he wants one the same, so please send on another, I will not be long getting you more orders." "1, Tweedale-place, Fort William, November 13th,—Sir, many thanks for sending me such a fine bird, it started singing morning after I got it. You will hear from me again. Yours, G. Kay." "107, Wheldon-lane, Castleford, November 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe, and a champion songster, he is too, I am more than satisfied with it. It started singing before I got it out of cage. Yours, H. Wilson." "Sunny Bank, Elkington-road, Bury Port, November 7th. Sir,—Please send me Roller at 7/6. I have been recommended by friends to whom you have supplied songsters that give every satisfaction, so hope the one you send will not be a disappointment, same as some I have had from other dealers. Yours, J. Williams." On November 11th Mr. Williams writes: "Sir, I have pleasure in advising you that Roller arrived yesterday. He is singing very nicely, and so far, I am quite satisfied." "Broom, Newton Mearns, Glasgow, November 6th. Sir,—Two Rollers arrived safe, and are singing nicely; many thanks for promptness. Yours, W. Wootton." "Dowlais, November 5th. Sir,—Received Roller safe, and healthy. This is the fourth bird I have had from you, and been satisfied every time. Yours, E. Jones." "88, Trafalgar-street, Sheffield, November 1st. Sir, —I appreciate your prompt attention to my order, and am very pleased with Roller, he started singing directly unpacked, and is a champion. Yours, A. Hickin." "28, Upper-row, Penywern, Dowlais, October 29th. Sir,—Received Roller in pink of condition, and he commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am quite satisfied with him. Yours, Wm. Jones." Kindly note that these Leipzig Rollers are far better birds than can be obtained elsewhere at much higher prices, and I cordially invite all intending purchasers to test them side by side with those obtained elsewhere at higher prices, and if mine is not by far the best, return it to me, and tell everyone you know that my Rollers are not as represented. Could I afford to do this unless I was convinced that what I say is correct? I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merit of the birds, not by any lying boasts. Fresh arrivals twice weekly. Genuine dealers and clubs send for wholesale prices, lowest in the trade. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

What is the Power behind this Advertisement?

Why, the fact that the birds offered are in stock, ready to be sent out as soon as ordered; that the statements here can be verified to the letter; that they are not imitations of somebody; that they are stamped with the fact that I trade in my own name, which I cannot afford to abuse by using any fictitious ones, female or otherwise. Plain, open selling; the facts may appear sometimes blunt, but then hard facts, instead of "cant" and pretensions, are my nature. I am only "mere" man, and cannot play the double part of male and female. I do all my business in the name of "Rudd."

Read the few following examples as illustrating the continued satisfaction given; whatever kind of bird it may be. Columns could absolutely be filled with recent unpublished and unsolicited testimonials received by me; but let these suffice. Oblige, also, with noting a few of the prices herein given. LEITH O.S.

Monthly held in the Liberal Club, Hope-street, November 14th. The President, Mr. Lumsden, presiding over a capital attendance. The principal business was the report and balance-sheet for this year. The President said the members ought to feel proud of the very successful show they had held, which he thought was one of the finest club shows in the district. The year's working finished with a balance of £7 10s.; which, he said, left four shillings per class available for prize money to be divided among the respective winners. The society was then reformed for 1908-9, and office-bearers appointed. Mr. Lumsden intimated his wish to retire, as he thought the honour of being Chairman should go round. Mr. James Henry was then elected President by a large majority. Mr. G. Brown was re-elected Secretary, with a committee of three, viz., Messrs. J. Baxter, J. Dalgleish and T. Todd. Seven new members were also nominated. Mr. Dunn moved a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring president, who, he said, had made an ideal Chairman, and had worked with enthusiasm to bring the society up to its present flourishing condition. Mr. Lumsden suitably replied. The society invites all fanciers in the county of Midlothian to become members. Its classification includes Scotch Fancy, Norwich Plainheads, Crests, Border Fancies, and British Birds and Mules. The annual subscription is eight shillings, and the entry fee sixpence. Information can be had from the Secretary, 1, Coalhill, Leith.—GEO. BROWN, Secretary.

THE SHOWS.

CARDIFF.

Held November 25th and 26th at the Stacy Hall, a very good and well-lighted place. The entry in most classes did not quite come up to expectations, but the quality throughout was exceptionally good. Mr Wm. Sampson, who is now a very familiar figure at Cardiff fixtures, carried out his onerous duties as secretary and manager in his usual quiet, able way, and received splendid assistance from his wife, who knows the ins and outs of show management as well as most experienced fanciers. May Cardiff long retain the services of this popular couple, and then success is assured for them. The hard-working committees comprised some of the best-known and most respected fanciers in the Principality, in the persons of Messrs. A. Ball, Dallimore, H. Ford, W. Harrington, Mellnish, Penny, Smith, Shellam, Thorne, Knight, Tonkin, and Whetton. The exhibits were well looked after, and staged to the best possible advantage. Coming to the exhibits the Norwich and Crests were extra good, the winners in most cases being birds with worthy records. The Mules and Hybrids were truly lovely, while the British were a grand lot, though the Goldies were hardly up to the usual Welsh standard. The winning Bullie was a champion, and should do well, as also should the Bramble and Chaffinch shown by Mr. Longden, and Redpoll and Yellowhammer by Mr. Nicholas. The show was very well attended, a happy augury for a huge financial success.

Yorkshires were good classes, both for numbers and quality, many grand birds being staged. The special in this section went to the winning yellow of Messrs. Shearn and Owens, last year's Bristol bowl winner, a grand one right through. The winning buff Scots of Mr. Ben Davies is a good one, having plenty of length of side and a grand top. Some gems were put down in the Borders, the winners of Messrs. Hammacott and Card being real beauties. The special for best Border went to the winning buff, a bird of grand mould and exquisite feather. In the light Canary Mule class the old champion clear of Messrs. Jackson and Bond headed the poll, and was looking grand. In the dark class, that Mule enthusiast, Mr R. W. Jones, was at the top with a Jonque Linnet, one of the best we have seen, marvellous colour with feather like boxwood. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards in Yorkshires, Scots and Borders, and odd number in Mules, British and Foreign, Mr. Roe taking the remainder, their decisions seeming to be very well received.

CAMBORNE.

The Camborne F.A. held their first exhibition in the Magistrates' Hall on November 19th. The hall is well adapted for show purposes. The Society issued a good schedule for 26 classes, with four money prizes and a special for every class, also a silver cup for most points, and silver medal for second points. They were rewarded with a grand total of 315 entries. The Norwich classes contained 108 entries in seven classes; they were the best seen for a long time in Cornwall. The Yorkshires were strong and choice. The Crest nnd Crest-bred classes were a splendid show in themselves, and contained many cracks of the day, competition being very keen. The British, Mule, and foreign bird classes ns usual came in for a great deal of admiration and attention. The silver cup given by Mr Fouyer for most points was won by Mr. F. Collins; the silver medal given by Mr. Menadue for second most points by Mr. W. Spillman, and the silver medal given by Mr. Sandiford for hottest-fed bird by Messrs. Gill and Pethick. Mr. C. J. Allen, the energetic and worthy secretary, had everything well in hand, and carried out his duties in a masterly manner. He was assisted by a good band of fanciers in Mr. F Collins (chairman) and the committee, Messrs. Lee, Lawry, Arthur, Ferrill, Rickard, and Strout. Mr. C. E. Silk (Emsworth) judged, and his awards were well received.

EAST MOLESEY.

Four classes were given for cage birds at the show of the Hampton Court and Molesey F.S., November 24th. The entry was very fair, some very nice quality exhibits putting in an appearance. Miss M. Andrews, who staged a very nice team, won the special for best in show with a beautifully clear-coloured pair of yellow Budgerigars. Messrs. Denyer and Ive made an excellent pair of secretaries, and by their urbanity and energy contributed largely to the success of the fixture. Mr. C. A. House judged.

LAUNCESTON.

Sixth annual show of the Launceston F.A., held Nov. 24, the town hall being a most suitable building for the occasion, but unfortunately the cage birds were staged with their backs to the light, and could not be seen to the best advantage. Although some of the classes had to be cancelled for want of entries, yet the number of birds, about 100, was just the same as the previous year, some of the other classes being better filled. The quality was excellent, some good specimens being staged. The special for best bird in show was captured by Mr. Spillman (Devonport), with a grand Norwich. The local classes were well filled, and the exhibits were a credit to the local fanciers. The president, W. H. Symons, Esq., and the treasurer, Major Dingley, J.P., are enthusiastic supporters, and the committee, of whom Mr. J. Frayn is chairman, consists of Messrs. Frewin, H. Hosken, R. Hosken, Jasper, Bright, Sharland, Miller Bros., Saudercock, Reed, Sargent, and Routley, and all of them worked with a will, so that the exhibits were carefully handled, and well looked after. The secretary, Mr. W. J. Pascoe, is a very painstaking official, and being an ardent fancier, held the reins of government in a most praiseworthy manner. Mr. E. White was the judge, and placed the cards in a very satisfactory manner.

BERWICK-UPON-TWEED

The second annual show was held on Nov. 10th, and entries came up well. Scotch Fancies, which were allotted a splendid classification, however, did not turn up as well as could be expected, but the quality was all that could be desired, some real tip-top specimens being staged. The other classes were keenly contested. These varieties were judged by Mr. J. Elder, who, after careful selection, pleased all the exhibitors. Norwich, on the whole, were a good lot, the quality being extra good. Mr. Alf. Grey held a master hand here, staging some real gems. Mules and British were a shade down in numbers, but the quality was all that could be desired. Mr. Bruce won in both Mule classes with three good specimens. These classes were judged by Mr. Bewick, and his decisions were well received. Borders were a high-class collection. Here the medal winner was found in a Buff cock, the property of Mr. Young. This variety was judged by Mr. W. C. Duncan, of Messrs. Duncan and Logan, and his awards were secure from adverse comment. The show was held in the Corn Exchange, a large building, with plenty of light and accommodation, and the birds were staged in the warmest corner. The management was excellent, Messrs. Grey and Smart being two ideal secretaries, who know how to carry out a show of this magnitude. They were ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee, who did everything to bring the show to a successful finish. There was a large number of fanciers and exhibitors, and we hope to hear of a good balance on the right side. The members' cup was won by Mr. Smart.

LANCASTER & DISTRICT C.B.S.

The 10th annual show was held in the Coffee Tavern Hall, Corn Market-street, on November 20th and 21st. The entry totalled 200—a decrease on last year. The retirement of a member who generally captured the special for most entries, and unemployment of others, contributed to the decrease. Mr. E. J. Cafferty acted as secretary, and carried out his duties splendidly; he will make a first-rate hon. secretary. He was ably assisted by the treasurer, Mr. T. Swainson, who, with the help of Messrs. Gardner and Durston, acted as stewards. The birds were nicely staged all round the room, the prize cards up, and the show open to visitors immediately the judging was finished. Mr. H. S. Naylor (Bradford) judged.

SCOTTISH NORWICH P.C.C.

The contest which took place at Glasgow and West of Scotland show in November 13th and 14th resulted in a victory for Scotland, the above club scoring 261 points to 84 for the Norwich Plainhead Club, over 14 classes. This is what may be termed a "run-away" victory," and can only be accounted for by the N.P.C. members failing to send a sufficient number of exhibits, as against the grand array of Scottish birds. It is to be hoped the Scottish Club will be very much better represented next year in England than was the N.P.C. in Scotland, so that a much closer contest may result. Members of the S.N.P.C.C. are reminded of the club show, which takes place at the Scottish National Show on December 31st and January 1st, and as the special prize fund requires to be considerably augmented for that event, all who can are earnestly requested to send on their "mites," no matter how small.—J. BROWN, sec.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B S

Meeting held November 9th, Mr. J. Dickinson in the chair. The principal business was a washing competition which took place before a good attendance of members. The following competed: Messrs. Stirrup, Salway, Garbutt, Robinson, Hallam, Crossley and Myers, each washing one bird. Three prizes were offered, 1st, 2/-, given by Mr. Garbutt; 2nd. 1/-, given by the secretary; 3rd the entrance fees. The whole of the birds were beautifully washed and gave the judge, Mr. F. Washbourne, considerable trouble to pick out the winners. After close inspection he placed the awards as follows: 1, Mr. Robinson (although only a novice the bird was washed fit to grace any show bench); 2, Mr. Salway; 3, Mr. Crossley; hc, Mr. Myers, and c, Mr. J. Stirrup. Mr. Garbutt caused much laughter by coming to the table and proceeding to wash a wooden bird, but was instantly disqualified for washing a dead bird. A very pleasant meeting was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the judge, and the chairman. The following new members were elected: T. Walsh (Gorton); F. Roberts (Beswick).—J. C. SPILSBURY.

Matters look very black up to the present, writes Mr. J. H. de Maillet, hon. secretary of the City of Birmingham C.B.S. Show December 2nd and 3rd—only six entries in the open section. Will fanciers kindly assist us in making the show a success?

Entries are lamentably short, there not being two per class, writes Mr. W. Summers, hon. secretary of the Wandsworth and Dis. F.A. We will receive entries up to first post (this) Saturday morning.

We have fixed the date of Darlington Canary and B.B.F.A. Fourth Annual Open Show on October 16th, 1909, writes Mr. R. S. Black, the hon. secretary. Will secretaries of societies in the district please note, so they may not clash?

Thanks to exhibitors and your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, we had a record entry for the county at Camborne Open Show, writes Mr. C. J. Allen, the hon. secretary, and all prize money was paid in full within seven days.

We have extended the date of entries closing, writes Mr. Harry Emerson, hon. secretary of the Grimsby C.B.S., to November 30th. Our committee are highly satisfied with the results from our advertisements in CAGE BIRDS.

Owing to entries being so very short we are obliged to extend until Monday night's post, writes Mr. W. Minty, hon. secretary of the Frome and Dis. C.B.S. Show. We should be thankful if fanciers would help us in our first venture.

I would like to congratulate the secretary, show managers, and committee of Morriston Show on the splendid way in which the arrangements were carried out, and the way in which the birds were staged, writes Mr. D. R. Jones (Llanelly).

I should like to thank you for the life-like sketch of winning buff Norwich—"Cherry Blossom"—which appeared in our valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. C. E. Brown (Bristol). I also wish to tender my best thanks to Mr. H. Norman, the artist.

Hartlepool's Show, see classification in this issue; splendid opportunity, grand specials and extra specials. Show closes at 6. Every bird guaranteed at station by 7 o'clock. Don't be afraid to send your very best birds; they will be well looked after.—(ADVT.)

Entries for the Falmouth, Penrhyn and Dis. C.B. Show don't average two a class, writes Mr. Thos. Burton, the hon. secretary. I appeal to western exhibitors to help us. There is a rattling good lot of specials. Entries are extended to Monday morning's post.

Highgate and Hampstead First Annual Show, Spencer Hall, Dartmouth Park Hill, N.W., November 28th. Close to Junction Road Station (Midland), and Tufnell Park Station (Hampstead Tube). Doors open 12 noon; admission, threepence.—(ADVT.)

I take CAGE BIRDS every week, and will always advertise in it in future, as I think it far the best. I have had no replies yet to advertisement in ———, but I have had many when I have advertised in your paper.—J. KERSHAW (Oxenhope, Keighley).

The cage bird section of our show, writes Mr. Jack Francis, hon. secretary of the Carmarthenshire A.S., will again be under the management of Mr. Alfred Crabb, Jubilee Hotel, Carmarthen, who has for many years managed this section with credit to himself and to the society. It is needless to add that all exhibits entrusted to his care will receive every attention and will be despatched by the earliest available trains after the close of the show at 4 p.m.

There are specials offered in the open classes of our show, December 10, although it is not so stated in our schedule, writes Mr. A. W. Ludlow, secretary of the Stamford and Dis. F.A. This is our first show and we are hoping to receive the hearty support of fanciers.

Kindly accept the South West London Cage Bird Society's thanks for the report of their show held November 7th, writes Mr. Lilley, the hon. secretary. It was strictly a members' show, yet over £13 in prize money has been paid to the successful exhibitors, besides specials and medals.

Some small advertisements relating to the forthcoming Hartlepools Show were inadvertently omitted by our printers last week. We recommend readers to peruse the classification of this enterprising fixture, which will be found set out in the show advertisement columns of this issue.

Will exhibitors kindly note that in Class 61, British and Foreign Selling, in our schedule, the prize money is 8s., 4s., 2s. Owing to a printer's error it now reads: 12s., 8s., 4s., 2s., which is wrong. The entry money for that class only is 1s.—J. B. Y. MURDOCH, secretary of the Kilmarnock O.C.B.S.

We have again been able to put forward a great special prize list, writes Mr. T. Taylor, hon. secretary of the Gateshead and Dis. C.B.S. Specials have been put to each class and extra specials to each section, both for best bird and most points. We hope for a good response from fanciers as a reward.

Kindly allow me through the columns of your valuable paper to deny that my exhibit at our Members' Show at St. Austell on October 29th, was shown in a dirty condition, as reported. This bird is a Nonflighted, clear body, with a grizzled tail, and probably the grizzled tail was misleading.—W. G. NILE (Fowey).

Mr. William Stapleton (Walworth, S.E.)

It is with the deepest regret that I have to announce the death of Mr. William Stapleton, age 66, the well-known and much respected bird dealer of East Street, Walworth, writes Mr. J. J. Hall, secretary of the London and Provincial Bird Dealers' Protection Association. He was a zealous worker on the committee of the late "Bird Trade Journal," taking a great interest in its progress. He had been a great sufferer for many years from Bright's disease, combined with dropsy. He died on November 9th, and was interred at Nunhead Cemetery on November 16th. The well-known brothers and many friends were present at the ceremony.

Mrs. Oliver Clark (Long Eaton).

Am very sorry to inform you of the death of our chairman's wife, who passed away peacefully on November 12th, writes Mr. W. Hallam, of the Long Eaton and Dis. C.B.S. It occurred after a long and lingering illness. She leaves a widower and five children to mourn her loss. Much sympathy is felt by the local fanciers of Long Eaton and district for the husband and family in their sad bereavement.

It is with deep regret that I have to announce the death of the son and only child of our esteemed chairman, Mr. A. C. Burn, which took place on Monday morning after a short illness, writes Mr. Victor Wynn, the secretary of the City and Suburban A.C.B.

The Ashington and Hirst C.B.S. having held a very successful club show with 158 entries, have carried forward £5 and paid 15s. per class in prize money, writes Mr. J. Miles, the secretary. We have decided to hold our annual meeting to elect the officers, etc., for 1909 on January 12th. New members are welcomed. The annual supper is fixed for January 19th.

Will show secretaries please note, to save time and expense, writes Mr. W. A. Davis (Coventry), that I had my team of Norwich claimed at Leicester Hand-in-Hand Show at catalogue price, and think of showing but little more this show season? I hope the plucky speculator, Mr. H. Christian (Leicester), will breed and exhibit a few good birds from them.

Among the chief features of the Cambridge Show, says the "Cambridge Express," will be the exceptionally fine display of foreign birds. The collection shown by Mrs. Anningson will make in themselves a show which the promoters of the International Cage Bird Show at the Crystal Palace may well envy, for they cannot equal it. Two of her birds, a Banksian Cockatoo, and an all Blue Macaw, are so rare that it is doubtful if their doubles can be found in the world. An offer of £500 has recently been declined for one of these.

Owing to the alterations of usual date of St. Helen's Show I resigned membership of the St. Helen's Society this year, writes Mr. Chas. Houlton. I was not in favour of holding a three-days' show, but I was in favour of a two-days' show being held as usual, the second week in January. I wrote the present hon. secretary, giving him notice that he must not use my name on any printed matter connected with that society, but I see he has used my name in two places on their schedules just issued. I here beg to state this is directly against my notice to him. I would have done all I could to help a two-days' show on the original successful date.

Use Our Picture Postcards.
We have a lovely selection.

I inserted an advertisement in CAGE BIRDS of British birds and the replies I received were far too numerous for me to answer each. I had letters and cards from all over the place. I would like to say I have disposed of my birds, having sent them to Scotland, and I am perfectly satisfied. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—C. DENTON (Tunbridge Wells).

I wish to thank you very much for the splendid report of Nottingham Show in this week's CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, the secretary. It will be greatly appreciated by everyone concerned. I should like to tender the best thanks of my committee to all those friends and fanciers who did so much to secure the success of the show, by contributing to the funds, giving their valuable time and assistance, and by sending us such a splendid array of the finest exhibits (a record for quality).

The absence from our recent show of our much esteemed president, Mr. John Thomson, who is in hospital undergoing an operation, writes Mr. Alex. Thomson, secretary of the Woodside and Bucksburn O.S. (Aberdeen), was very much felt, as he has been the moving spirit of the society since its start 25 years ago. The operation has been performed, and he is getting on as well as can be expected. The death of Mr. A. R. Langlands (Montrose), well-known throughout Scotland, was also much regretted, and no doubt this also handicapped us, as he was to have officiated as one of our judges.

In CAGE BIRDS last week, writes Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), I read the paragraph, written by Mr. A. H. C. Legg (Porth), relating to the various articles I have written for your most popular journal at one time and another, and I thank him for the kind words he has penned. I am happy to assist a fancier along, for I well remember the time of my novice days (no such thing as a paper solely devoted to our hobby then), when any little item I could pick up was thankfully received. Secrecy was greatly in evidence as regards breeding, rearing, feeding, and so forth, in those days. But how different now; fanciers are more open in their views. I don't believe in men being termed fanciers who, though in a position to help the Fancy, keep all they know to themselves. Let us have progression, not retrogression. The backbone of the Fancy are the new beginners; it is the novices who require assistance, and should be given it.

At Norwich Show.

Just as we go to press, the secretary of Norwich Show, Mr. Roll, telegraphs: "Closed with splendid entry; some grand specimens will be on view." There should, therefore, be a huge crowd of visitors to the hall on Saturday and Monday next (November 28th and 30th).

International Plainhead Contest.

All Mr. Shore's birds arrived at the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show too late (five o clock) to be judged, being delayed on the line. One of the judges, Mr. Mackie, compared them with the other birds in their respective classes with the following result: 2 firsts, 2 seconds, and 1 third. Very hard lines on the owner, also to the English N.P.C. as they would have considerably reduced our opponents' figures had they been delivered in time.—J. RAYNES, hon. secretary, N.P.C.

Small Beginnings.

This story was told by a well-known Yorkshire judge the other day. Said he: "I well remember the first show I judged. ——— came to me and said I had got to go and judge at the 'Blue Pig.' I went, and I shall never forget it. There were but two birds to judge, and I picked the worst!" After a hearty laugh he added, "I have judged many a hundred shows since then, but I shall never forget that time. I should think it was the smallest show man ever started judging at—and started badly."

Britain's Best Bicycle.

Of the many improvements for the famous Rudge-Whitworth cycles for 1909, the extensions in the use of the patent black celluloid covering are the most prominent. In addition to completely covering the handle-bar, this patent rust-proof covering is now extended to the combination grips, completely enclosing them, handle-bar and grips being all one piece, thus avoiding the unpleasantness of loose grips, as they now cannot become loose or come off. In the "Acro-Special" models the brake levers, cranks, pedal, and hub centres are also celluloid covered, the polished black finish of which adds considerably to the appearance of the machine. The celluloid covering is applied by the company in their own extensive factories, and is protected by several patents. Brake fittings are improved, not only affording a more direct pull from the lever, but giving a smarter appearance. To further accentuate this the head tube is enamelled right down to the top crown plate. In the "All-Weather" machines, in addition to extra wide guards and front extension, a new patent extra wide detachable mud-flap to the front mudguard is attached, and this is securely held in position by the stays, no clips or bolts of any kind being used. An improved lubricator is adopted, consisting of a brass tube leading direct to the hub and bracket bearings, attached to which is a hinged spring lid. In the "Crescent" models the brake work has been improved with double roller levers instead of single levers to the two rim brakes, and the trouser guard of the "All-Weather" models is much deeper, and covers practically the whole of the chain wheel.

Some Rare and Interesting Insectivorous Birds.

By S. L. COCKS.

In this contribution a practical fancier and exhibitor deals with the Keeping in captivity and some aspects of the wild life of the three Woodpeckers, the Tree Creeper, the Redstart and other uncommon insectivorous birds.

Although any species of British bird can lay claim to having a large number of admirers, no one will deny that the Soft Bills are the most attractive, and of these, in my opinion, the most interesting are among those that build their nests in the holes of trees; and this must be my excuse for choosing them as my subject. I only intend writing of what I have actually seen of the following species, they being equally interesting, whether kept as pets, or for exhibition, or for both.

The Green or Common Woodpecker.

You will no doubt expect me to start with the Green or Common Woodpecker, and as the species I know best are well known on the show bench, I shall not describe either this or any of them.

The Green or Common Woodpeckers are not so common as is generally supposed, as they have a knack of showing themselves in three or four different places in a remarkably short space of time, and if three of four pairs were breeding in a part of the country, extending for, say, two or more miles, you would not be able to cross their country without seeing or hearing half their number, several times each. And if a stranger, you would come away with the impression that they were the commoner species you had met that day. Again, should an odd pair leave the wooded country, and take a fancy to a tree in a more open part—which they often do, even going into the fens in the summer—you would be told of them by everybody who knew you to be interested, until you would reckon that at least ten or a dozen pairs were around you.

The Greens are the latest of the Woodpeckers to nest, and although they can be heard drilling holes in readiness as early as April (and I have known young Greens to be in the nest in the third week of August), yet, generally speaking, the beginning of July is about the best time to look for them. They usually drill several holes before settling down in one.

If you happen to be in the woods, you may find the nests quicker by using your ears than by using your eyes. This is so because when hungry the young birds will treat you to a very fair representation of a couple of men sawing a block of stone with a cross-cut saw. And they do it quite as loudly.

The nests are usually found in oak or ash trees, although they may be found in a crab apple or a willow tree. They will vary a good deal in the height from the ground. I have found one in an old ash stump not three feet from the ground, in the season following the clearing of a certain part of the wood, and on that same occasion, had to climb nearly forty feet up an old oak, simply to find that the hole was one of those they did not take to after drilling it.

Housing and Feeding Young Woodpeckers

Young Woodpeckers are very slow to grow their feathers and leave the nest. Should you, therefore, wish to hand-rear some, leave them (if you can get to know the age without sawing the nest out) until they are fully three weeks old. But it it is not much use putting them back if on cutting the nest out, you find the birds too young.

Place the youngsters in a box—an ordinary starch box will do—and put sawdust on the bottom. Keep the birds covered, so that they are in the dark, as they are used to being well in the shade. One nest I saw last season was fully three feet down inside the hole, so the young did not get very much fresh air or light. Feed them on ants' eggs (live, if possible), biscuit-meal, and meat-meal in equal parts, together with a little egg, being careful not to use too much of the last-mentioned. All the gentles they will take, but these require to be cleaned before being used. The best method of cleaning them is to sift some sawdust and mix the fine part of it with the gentles, leaving them for two or three days, when you can put them on the same sieve and take out the sawdust, leaving your gentles clean and without any putrid food inside them.

Your 'Peckers will not "get on their own" before they are six or seven weeks old, and whilst you will have no trouble in getting them to gape, be sure you do not overfeed them while they are in the box. I like them to be quite hungry each time I go to them, and even then I do not glut them. For if you watch the old birds feeding their young, you will find that they do not go in and out more than six times an hour at the busiest time of the day, and there are often as many birds in the nest, which works out at a beakful of food per bird each hour. The parents often leave the young for two and even three hours entirely alone.

You will also very likely be surprised on putting your hand (and arm) into the hole, to feel the heat. This should give you another hint, which is to keep the young birds out of the cold when you first take them in hand.

When you transfer your birds to cages you must line the latter with either tin or zinc, as these are very industrious birds, and find no difficulty in going through an inch-thick board, and that well within an hour. But if they are put in an outdoor aviary with a tree stem (dead-wood preferred) to exercise on, I do not think they would make any attempt to get away.

The above remarks will also apply to the Greater Spotted Woodpecker, though I have not as yet found one of their nests above fifteen feet from the ground, and they are generally about a fortnight earlier in their nesting operations.

Concerning Lesser Spotted Woodpeckers.

We now pass to the Lesser Spotted species, which is no doubt one of our most seldom-noticed British birds. I believe the opposite to what was said of the Green can be said of these, as it is only natural to suppose that many of the Lessers are seen but not indentified. The genuine Britisher can be distinguished from the Continental by the clearness of its white bars, making the one that migrates generally inside a cage appear much duller and dirtier. The British Lesser 'Peckers also appear to me to be slimmer than the specimens I have seen in captivity, but as I have yet to see a fully feathered native in a cage, that may have something to do with the case.

This species nests much earlier than the two larger varieties, and the young birds must be found before the end of June, or you will be too late for them. Like the Green, the nests vary much in the height from the ground. One that I knew of last season, required a sixty round telescope ladder, reared perfectly upright, and then a rope to pull the bough down, before it could be reached. The same pair of birds built in a place less than eight feet from the ground the year before; no doubt they wanted a change and a bit of "high" life.

The birds are very much localised, and I can show the holes where one pair have nested each season for the past eight years, and even then we should not have to walk above half a mile from the first to the last.

Two Very Interesting Species.

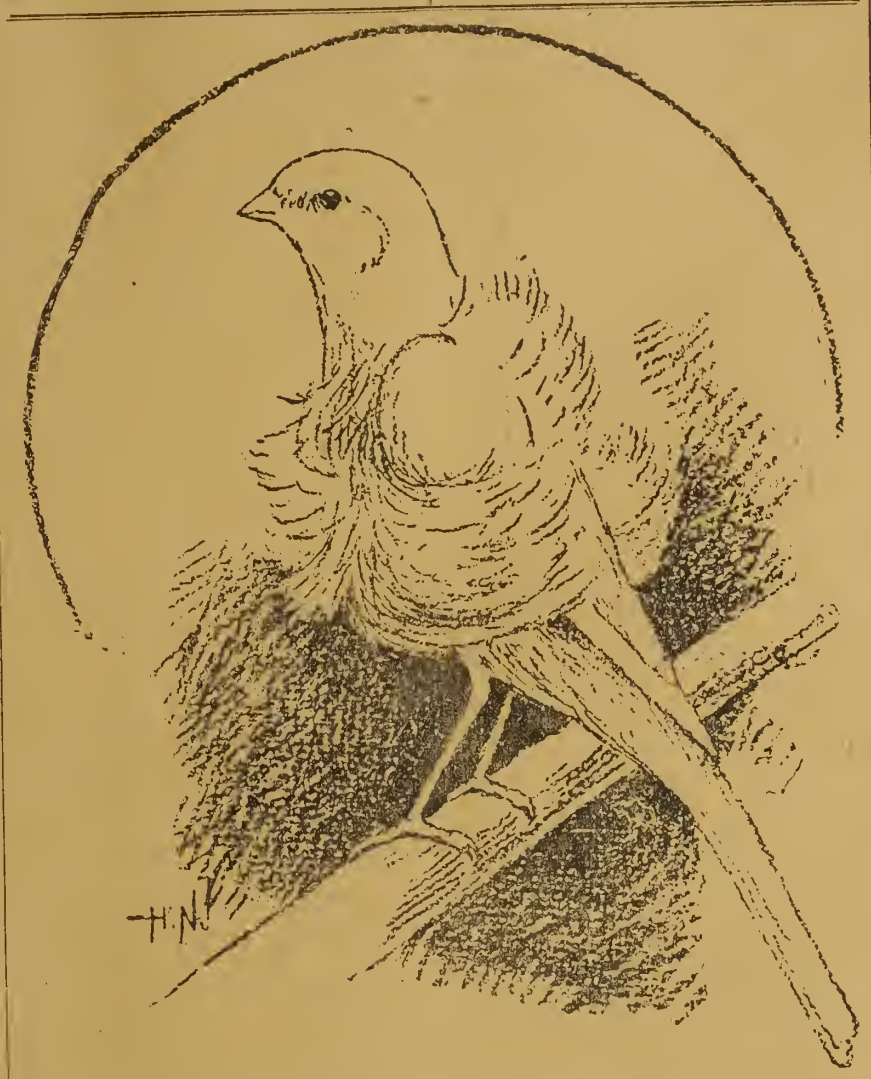
I shall not include either Wrynecks or Nuthatches in this paper, as I have yet to see a nest of the former, while the latter are easy to get during hard weather, and when in the adult stage, as they come to feed with the keeper's fowls, especially when snow is about. For this reason I have not troubled to go for the nests, though either of them must make interesting subjects.

Though they do not come exactly under the title of "hole-nesters," I must include two species which are special favourites of mine—Redstarts and Treecreepers. The former usually looks for a nicely sheltered hole in a tree to build in, even using a Woodpecker's old one at times, while the latter puts its nest inside either a loose piece of bark or an old hole in the tree. I consider them two of the most interesting species to keep as pets.

The singular manner in which the 'Creeper goes round his cage, which I prefer to have lined with baize instead of bark, and the fearlessness of the 'Start combined with his beauty when in adult summer plumage, contribute to make them specially charming.

The Redstart is, of course, a migrant, the cocks of the species coming over about ten days or so before the hens, and arriving in this locality generally about the 20th of April. On the arrival of their mates they go straight to their business of the summer. They are double-brooded birds, and their first batch of youngsters is often ready to leave the nest by the first week in June. Should you by any chance find them where you can cage the young ones up, the old birds will rear them, this being much the easier way. They soon steady down when on their own.

The young cocks will not come into full colour at the first moult, the under-throat being very grey, looking as though dusted over with some flour, and the slate on the back tinged with brown. But the beauty of the two-year-old bird will quite repay you for the trouble of keeping them.



You can feed them on any good brand of insectivorous food, or if you prefer it, you can mix your own as follows:—Biscuits ground up, three parts; ants' eggs, dried flies, and silk worm pupæ, one part each; and preserved yolk of egg, half a part; using a little grated carrot to moisten it with when feeding. Gentles or mealworms must be given, but don't overdo the latter, or indigestion will soon step in.

The Treecreeper at Home.

The Tree Creeper is also an early bird to commence breeding, and the nest may be easily found by watching the old birds, especially when they are feeding the youngsters. Young 'Creepers are best taken from the nest when about twelve days old, and can be reared on the same food as was above advised for Redstarts, but should you use any mealworms they must be cut up very small, and care must also be taken not to get the birds over-fat. Overfatness can be remedied (if the birds can get about) by turning them into a large flight or aviary, which should be at least five feet long and as many feet high. And unless you have the facilities for this, do not attempt to hand-rear the young, but sooner buy from some one who has some that have passed their first moult.

Tree Creepers seem to me to have a struggle to increase their own numbers in a state of nature, for if one remembers that they are double-brooded birds and that very few nests are taken, it at once becomes a puzzle to know why it is they are not far commoner. It may be that every sharp touch of winter finishes off some of them; or their roosting habits may make them an easy prey to stoats, etc.

Any of the five species mentioned here will make fine exhibition birds, though in the case of the first three, the largest share of any possible profit goes to our old friends the railway company, as "fifty per cent. above fragile rate," looks a bit rough for a zinc-lined cage.

The Keeping & Management of the Crested Canary.

By A. LAZARUS.

A paper read before the members and friends of the City and Suburban A.C.B. in their recent essay competition.

In dealing with the subject of the management of the Crested Canary, which I shall endeavour to make as short and plain as possible, I will state a few of the arguments, which have been founded on long experience, and on the care and consideration of older breeders than myself.

The First and Principal Consideration.

Crests and Crest-breds, I think one and all will agree, are birds that rank among the most wonderful productions of this country; they show what fanciers, by the exercise of care, observation, and thought, can really produce. The first and one of the principal things to be considered is the bird-room. Before I procure my stock I consider where and how to keep them, so that they become a pleasure and not a hindrance to me. It is of no use spending a lot of money on good birds (for good ones cost money) if they are not attended to properly and given sanitary and commodious dwellings and proper food.

With all cage birds, in fact, the main thing to be considered is, first, the bird-room, or the proper place in which to keep them; and secondly, the cages and surroundings and the keeping of same under healthy conditions and natural laws.

The bird-room, then, must be bright, clean, and airy, have plenty of daylight, and if possible face the south, much more light and sun being obtainable in this manner, and these are very essential, and are much more beneficial than artificial heat. The latter was used by myself previously, the effect proving very disastrous. My experience has taught me that the former kind of heat is best, as it enables the birds to thrive much quicker and better. And as a result of my adoption of this method my birds were much stronger, i.e., without the aid of artificial heat.

Concerning Their Cages.

The best cages are undoubtedly the "box" kind with removable wire fronts. They should be large and roomy, and as plain as possible; fancy ornamentation only harbours dust and red mite. Crests, being large birds, require large cages; if they are cramped up and have not much room for exercise they become too fat. A good-sized cage is at least 24ins. long, 15ins. high, and 12ins. wide; the perches are oval in shape, and half-an-inch wide, not crossing one another, or fixed higher than four inches from the cage floor, thereby enabling the bird to catch the perch properly; he also becomes quite accustomed to the show cages.

All seed and water vessels should be placed outside the cage, and care should be taken to see that the potholes are quite large enough for the head to go through, as the small holes cause the feathers at the back of the crest to become tilted upwards. The vessels should be of white glazed earthenware, as they are more easily kept clean. All cages should be enamelled pale blue inside (for preference, as this gives the birds a nicer appearance) and black outside; in this manner they are easily washed. The bottoms of my cages are always covered with pine sawdust, and during the breeding season I freely sprinkle Keating's powder on the bottoms, which I afterwards cover with sawdust. A separate vessel is given to the birds, containing gritty sand; this I find greatly aids their digestion. I make it my duty to keep the cages as clean as possible, and usually wash them three times a year.

Their Feeding and Management.

Having the room and the cages fitted up, the fancier's next consideration is how to manage and feed his birds so as to keep them in the best of health.

All seeds should be of the best quality, such being far the cheapest in the end. I always use the best Spanish seed, and take care it is short and full-looking, has a shiny appearance, is not too long and dull, and has something more than the mere husk about it. The German rape should be small and reddish in appearance. Good hemp seed should be bright grey in colour. Green unripe stuff causes diarrhœa. The smaller kind is best and should taste sweet and nutty.

I always sift the seeds before using them, thus getting rid of the dust, which is such a source of annoyance to the birds, in many cases causing lung trouble through their inhaling it.

Twice a week all through the year, except in the breeding season, I give the birds egg-food, varied occasionally with a little of the best German rape, maw seed, and a little hemp, a leaf of young lettuce, and on another occasion dandelion; in winter I give them a piece of apple.

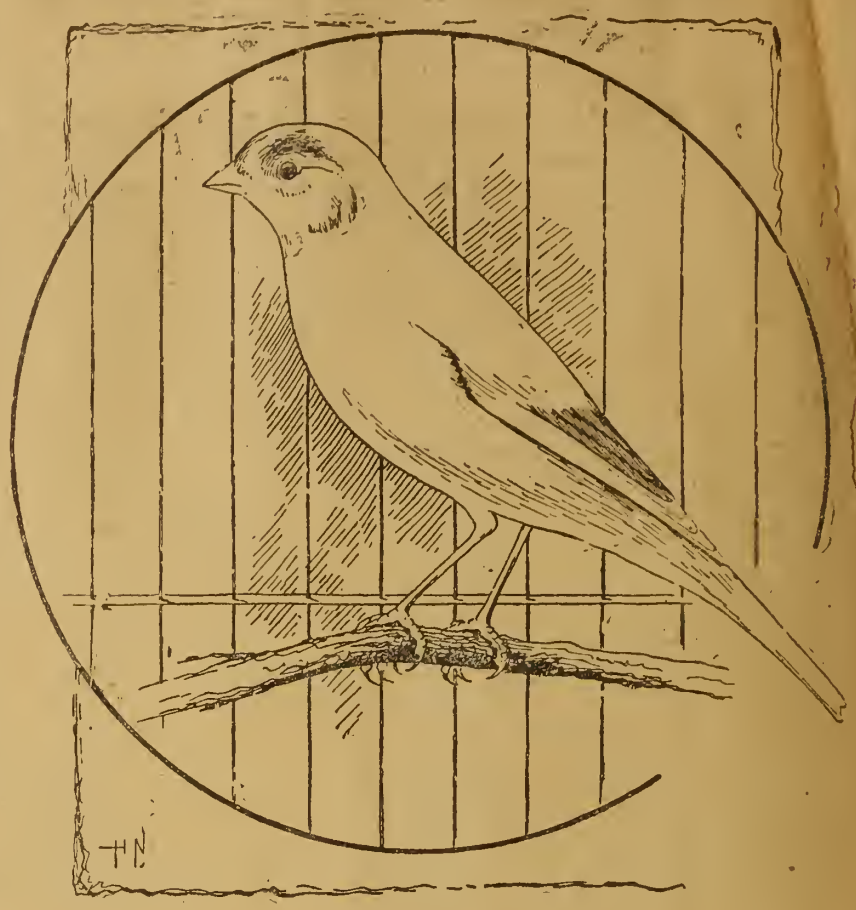
Preparation for Breeding.

Breeding time depends a good deal on the weather. The use of artificial light and heat is not to be recommended during this period; since Crests and Crest-breds are such highly and closely bred birds, everything should be done to keep up their constitutions by natural treatment. I usually prepare my birds for breeding as follows:—First, I choose a good Crest. By that I mean one that has a crest of good centre, closely filled in all round, packed as closely as possible and without any appearance of a break in any form. The Crest should be quite flat to the head, smooth and unruffled. It should be thick and composed of broad feathers. A break in front or at the sides of a Crest is very disfiguring, and a bird with such would have practically no chance at a good show.

I should select a good Crest-bred to go along with a Crest like this. It should have plenty of feathers all over, and they should be long and profuse. The bird should have a well-cushioned head, with a very broad skull and big body, somewhat resembling a Bullfinch.

To obtain size of body and profusion of feather in the offspring I pair up two Buffs. Some fanciers try the mating of two crested birds in order to improve the crests, and I have found that, if one can get two well-bred birds, with good crests, and pair the Plainheads bred from these to Crested birds, one obtains some very fine Crests; but the double cresting must not be carried too far, or birds with faulty crests will be the result.

Having selected and paired the birds for breeding, I cut off the crests close to the head, also the lashing (if any) in the Crest-breds, as these interfere with the sight. I always cut the feathers away from the vent, so that coition may not be impeded. For the first two or three days I put the birds in a cage with a wire partition between them, and when I see the cock feeding then hen through the wires, I withdraw the partition. After the next few days I put in the nest pan, containing a little building material. This I hang on a level with the perch and not high up or in some out-of-the-way corner.



For nesting material I generally use flax, cut into one inch strips, which I find very efficient, as with this there is no fear of the young being sweated.

During the Breeding Season.

As soon as the hen has laid the first lot of eggs, I take them away one by one, and replace them by dummies, till I have placed the former all together. In this manner I get them all hatched on the one day, not one after another. When the hen has been sitting for six days I test the eggs by gaslight, and if they are fertile I let her sit for fourteen days.

When the young are hatched, I take great care to see how they lie in the nest (that is, if there are several young ones); by so doing I saved one of my best birds from being crippled. If the cock worries the hen while she is sitting, I remove him; but if they both seem happy the hen comes off to feed and drink, I leave them together. The best results are those obtained from birds which are least meddled with. At the same time, I study the different temperaments of the birds, so as to be ready for any emergency.

Tending the Young.

I am most particular in feeding my young ones while they are in the nest. I mix one egg with a teaspoonful of maw seed and one biscuit; this I find produces much stronger and healthier birds than egg-food mixed with four and five biscuits or half a loaf to one egg. After four weeks, and when I see the young are able to pick up their own food, I feed them with egg-food and milk sop, also with crushed Canary seed. But I give no water till after they are eight weeks old.

I always keep feeders ready. I find Norwich or Border Fancies are the best for rearing young Crests that are neglected by their parents. I never run a cock with more than one hen, and I keep the same pair together all the season. When there are several pairs I have them numbered and put rings on the legs of the youngsters, when they are turned into a flight, in order to be able to distinguish them afterwards. The keeping of a strict account of pedigree is the only sure way to success in Crest-breeding. I never part with any young birds till they are over the second moult, as there is always an improvement after this.

During the moulting season I feed the birds twice a week with egg-food, with which on the first occasion I mix a few drops of Parrish's chemical food. I find this is better mixed in the food than in the water, where it only settles at the bottom. The second time during the week I mix a little cod liver oil with the egg-food. While moulting, the birds get nervous, and the cod liver oil and Parrish's food serve to strengthen them as well as to keep them quite healthy. While they are moulting, too, I draw a large white curtain across the cage, to shut out the light, thereby enabling them to throw their feathers quickly. A little iron placed in the drinking water has the same effect.

Plenty of baths, both during the breeding and the moulting periods, will also be found to be very beneficial.

In purchasing, do not wait till March, when all the best birds are sold. I buy birds of an original strain if possible, and I see they are young and sprightly; I avoid all which I find sitting puffed out on the perch, or having dirty vents.

Interesting Advice to beginners.

(1) Do not buy more birds than you can comfortable manage; go in for quality rather than for quantity. (2) Do not pick up birds anywhere, but buy birds of one strain, from a reliable breeder wherever possible. (3) Keep to one strain (4) Study pedigree breeding. (5) Never pair two yellows together, as yellow blood in excess causes scantiness of feather, badly radiated crests, and bare patches on the head. Introduce yellow blood every third year; this improves the quality and length of feather which have been impaired by double-buffing.

To sum up, one probably comes to the conclusion that to breed a Crested Canary is a very difficult task. This proves to be quite correct, taking into consideration the numerous Crested breeders there are, and what few really good birds find their way on to the show bench. In conversation with breeders, who are fortunate enough to possess such good birds, the general answer is, "they are obtained in such and such a manner," or such and such a pair just "but." But my own opinion is that a great deal of exertion, patience and perseverance is essential if one is to breed a champion—a feat to feel very proud of, especially when it is the result of great care and study.

Parrots for Pleasure & Profit.

By C. P. ARTHUR.

Being full instructions on the Caging and Treatment in health and disease of the Grey, Amazon, and other Popular Parrots.

Cures for Various Troubles.

If a Parrot becomes too loose in its bowels, a little brandy or whisky in its drinking water and a piece of cuttlefish to pick at, will usually put it right. But if it is a case of diarrhoea, the best plan is to give sufficient Epsom salts in the drinking water to make it quite saline. I put about as much in an ounce of water as will lie on a sixpence. This should be given for one day, and after that a little whisky instead, also in the water. If the diarrhoea has not gone after supplying the whisky and the cuttlefish, then stronger measures must be taken, and I think nothing is better than five drops of chlorodyne in the drinking water. A glass vessel should always be used when anything is being put into the water, and the quantity of any medicine stated generally implies an ounce of water. For instance, five drops of chloridyne would be of no use in an ordinary Parrot's drinker, which sometimes holds nearly half-a-pint of water.

Parrots often catch cold, and should never be left in a draught, not even for a minute. But should you find your bird has a cold, keep it very warm, and if it coughs at all, give a teaspoonful of the following mixture in its drinking water: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and pure glycerine, in equal parts.

If the bird runs at the nose, take its ordinary drinking water away, and into an ounce of the usual water put four drops of tincture of opium and two drops of acetate of morphia, and let him have a drink of this three times a day. If this and warmth do not effect a cure, I am afraid its cure is very doubtful.

A Habit to Guard Against.

Parrots—Amazons and Eclecti especially—often get into the filthy habit of picking up their excreta from the bottom of their cages. This must be stopped as soon as it is noticed, or the consequences will be fatal, as it soon leads to enteritis. As soon as a bird is seen to do this, give it, in its drinking water, a strong dose of Epsom salts, and get a grid for the bottom of the cage—one that the bird cannot get its claw through, for Amazons, at any rate, will put their claw through, reach down, and take up a handful of the excreta and eat it. Parrots usually go through the moult alright, but it is a long process. The first sign is usually the dropping of two tail feathers. Perhaps a week goes by before another feather is dropped, then probably two wing feathers are shed, and so on. The head is usually the last part of the bird to moult. No special treatment is required, beyond keeping the bird out of all draught, and about twice a week putting Parrish's Chemical Food in its drinking water in sufficient quantity to make it the colour of pale port wine.

Concerning a Parrot's Food.

In keeping a Parrot great care should be taken to prevent anyone giving it scraps from the table—although this is often done—and you hear people who keep a Parrot say, "Oh, our Parrot is very fond of a bit of bread and butter, or buttered toast, or a bone to pick"—and so it may be—yet in nine cases out of ten it will eventually lead to the bird pulling out its own feathers and chewing the ends of them, and if a Parrot once takes to this, I believe there is absolutely no cure for it.

I should give a Parrot that had contracted this habit Epsom salts or liquid magnesia in its drinking water as a cooling medicine, and I would turn it into an empty room, with plenty of tree branches scattered round it, so that the bird might pass its time climbing about and gnawing them to pieces. This activity will make it forget the habit, but the chances are ten to one that as soon as it is caged again, it will go back to the old habit.

Parrots being by nature strict vegetarians, should never be given anything in the way of animal food, such as butter, meat, or milk sop of any kind, except in very special cases of illness, when a little boiled bread and milk may be used.

There is another form of feather-eating that some birds indulge in; they do not pull out the feathers to eat the soft ends as just described, but sit on the roost and appear to be cleaning the wing feathers in the ordinary way, but if carefully watched it will be found that they are biting the hard quill of the feather and splitting it up; the feather then stands out of place, and becomes a nuisance to the bird, so that he bites it off. This habit is caused chiefly by ennui. It is a habit similar to that formed by persons sitting in an arm-chair all day with nothing to do—biting their nails or twiddling their thumbs. To prevent the habit you must find your bird plenty of amusement.

Where there are persons always about, caged birds seldom take to this form of feather-eating; but Parrots that are much alone should be provided with bits of wood to amuse themselves with. A stick of firewood, about an inch in diameter, cut off in lengths of three or four inches, with the bark on, does very well.

The Breeding of Greys in England.

One sometimes hears of "King Greys": whether it is a separate species, or only a freak, I don't think is definitely known, but certain it is that the dealers sometimes get a specimen with a spangling of red feathers amongst the grey. Like the so-called "King Amazon," with yellow spangling amongst the green, these birds are supposed to excel all others in talking powers. Whether this is so or not I cannot say, as I have seen only one "King Grey." But I had a "King Amazon" which I sold when it began to talk, and it is now such a wonderful talker that the lady has refused £20 for it. So it seems likely that their talking powers account for their good reputation.

Given a genuine pair, I do not see any reason why Greys, or, for that matter, any other kind of Parrot, should not be bred in England. Greys are reported to have bred at Northrepp's Hall, the seat of Mr. Charles Buxton. The pair bred in a hollow branch and brought up two young ones, but I believe these birds were flying loose, and were not confined.

Not a year goes by but there are many instances recorded of Grey Parrots laying eggs in their cages, so there should be no difficulty in breeding Greys. If I were going to make the attempt, I should give them a good-sized aviary to themselves. I should get a small oak barrel holding about three gallons (a disused one from a brewery would do), lay it down, and saw it off right across the middle. Then I should get a piece of wood 2in. thick, turned so as to fit in the bottom half when the barrel is standing on end. This block should also be hollowed out like a basin to receive the eggs, gouged or turned out to nearly its whole thickness. I should then enlarge the bunghole, making it so that the birds could just pass in and out easily, but not larger than this. Then I should fix the top half to the lower with hooks and eyes, and fix this barrel on end high up in a corner of the aviary, either with a roost near the entrance hole, or with a branch fixed near it, so that the birds can climb into the hole. Then I would put just a thin layer of finely-sifted sawdust in the barrel; this helps to prevent the eggs from getting broken.

The same for Amazons.

The same arrangement would do for any of the Amazons. The birds should be kept in a cool room from the middle of April until the middle of May, which would be quite early enough for turning them out; and if a fine warm summer follows, with a pair of birds (say, three or four years old), I should say there should be no difficulty in breeding from them, as many foreign birds are now bred in England that come from countries as hot as Africa.

The Blue-fronted Amazon.

The Blue-fronted Amazon almost rivals the Grey as a talker, but one sometimes meets with a specimen that seems to be absolutely dumb, except for the power of screeching—and most Amazons can do their share of this.

The Blue-front is, if anything, slightly larger than the Grey, and much more brilliantly coloured. The back is dark grass green, and the under parts a lighter shade of the same bright green. The face and throat are a bright yellow, with a patch of brilliant blue on the forehead. A patch of deep scarlet adorns the shoulders. The wing feathers are dark blue and deep scarlet, while the tail feathers, although appearing on the closed tail only green, contain all shades between dark green and bright yellow, as well as bright scarlet. The bill is a dark slate colour, and the eyes are a reddish amber.

Blue-fronts vary very much in size and colour, some specimens being small, dark-coloured birds, with the back feathers edged with slaty black, this marking extended right up to the crown. The larger birds are brighter green, with scarcely any marking on the feathers. I am inclined to think the larger birds are hens; at least I have one of them that I know to be a hen.

Amazons require more teaching than Greys, as they are not so adept at picking up anything they hear. But there is one thing they soon learn which I don't think a Grey ever learns; that is, imitating two people in conversation. They do this to perfection, although no distinct word can be detected. To teach an Amazon it is best to be where the bird cannot see you, and repeat distinctly what you wish it to learn, and as soon as it tries to imitate you, reward it with some tit-bit that you know it likes. Amazons will talk before strangers much more freely than Greys; in fact, they seem to like "showing off" to strangers, spreading their tail and wings and parading backwards and forwards on the roost, showing their beautiful colours. They will often then say everything they have learned. Whereas, in the case of a Grey, when talking its best, the appearance of a stranger is often sufficient to make it dumb at once.

An Amazon's breath always has a peculiar, though not altogether unpleasant, smell. One that I had usually smelt rather "strong," and when it came to the wires to me, I sometimes said, "Oh, you do smell, get away."

One day a lady came in, wanting to see my birds, and after inspecting the aviaries, went into my bird-house. This lady left as much perfume behind her as a motor car usually does, only of a more pleasant nature; I don't think I ever came across a lady so highly perfumed. The smell filled the bird-house as soon as she was inside. Catching sight of Polly, she said, "Oh, what a lovely Parrot." She made straight up to Polly's cage, and said, "Oh, Polly, you are a darling; won't you kiss me?" Polly put his bill to the wires and then drew back, saying in such a hearty manner, "Oh, you do smell; get away." The lady, of course, seemed dumbfounded, and I hardly knew what to say; but she recovered her composure in a moment and said, "Oh, Polly, you are rude; can't you tell me anything better than that?" Polly then, in a sort of confidential tone, said, "Wipe that egg off your mouth." The lady immediately turned her attention to the other birds, I believe in fear of what the bird might say next. For taming and treatment, and as regards food, see above on Greys. Amazons are very fond of washing, and will generally keep their plumage in beautiful condition.

The Double-fronted Amazon.

This is a fine, handsome bird, the size of a large Blue-front. With the Double-front, or Le Vaillant's Amazon, as it is sometimes called, the whole of the head and neck are yellow, but the pale flesh-coloured bill gives it a sort of sickly appearance; at least it is so to me.

They are said to make wonderful talkers, even rivalling the Greys; but I have tried two or three specimens, keeping each of them over twelve months, yet neither of them learned a word. Perhaps I was unfortunate in my birds; but after my experience with them I prefer the Blue-fronted. Young Double-fronted Amazons have the neck more or less green, but as they get older they lose some of the green feathers with each moult, eventually getting the whole of the head and neck pale yellow, not, I think, such a rich yellow as the one depicted in Dr. Greene's "Parrots in Captivity." The claws are also flesh-coloured, and the eyes are very beautiful.

At the end of about a fortnight, or perhaps a little longer, I could see the youngsters at the mouth of the hole, and they seemed to feel the heat very much, as they kept their beaks open. About ten days later I saw No. 1 sitting on the top of a fox tree in the open run. Nos. 2 and 3 followed the next day. Here, again, the Pagodas differed from the Andamans, for whereas the young Pagodas flew straight out of doors, as to the manner born, the young Andamans remained inside for nearly a week before venturing out of doors. Every night the young Pagodas came home to sleep, and generally passed the night on the top of their nest box, but they were out of doors all day long.

For the benefit of my readers who do not know the Pagoda, I append a brief description. In size they are rather smaller than an English Starling, very trim and lightly made. The head has a beautiful sweeping black crest, which falls low down on the neck like a dragoon's plume, the breast and face are salmony brown, wings and back ashen grey, tail black with white tip, rump white, flights inclined to black, Jackdaw eyes, beak yellow with blue base, feet yellow.

There were, as I said, three youngsters; they are brown little things with Jackdaw eyes, a black spot on the crown where the crest will one day be; yellow beaks, but no blue on them, and pink feet. I have had both the Andamans and Pagodas photographed, as it is well in bird-keeping to have some permanent records to look back upon of past triumphs.

They say that confession is good for the soul; therefore, let me make one. If men are honest, they will tell you that their success in life is more of a wonder to them than it is to you! I think I will now draw to a close, as our Dissenting friends say after a fifty minutes' sermon, or you will be saying to me what the old Princess Lieven did, who, hating to be alone on a long journey, offered a seat to an old priest, who talked so incessantly that she could only relieve her feelings by putting her head out of the window every ten minutes or so, and crying out to the winds, "Il m'ennuie, il m'ennuie."

Chapter XXII.—My Malabar Green Fruitsuckers.

This is a fairly rare bird, and but seldom imported, and then only by twos and threes. They are consequently rather expensive, and only within the reach of the rich or reckless. I am, unfortunately, only one of the latter.

Some months since a friend of mine in the Indian trade wrote and told me that he was bringing home a pair of Green Fruitsuckers; would I take them? My readers will not need to be told how I answered that letter. It is all very well to talk of retrenchment. It reminds one of the story of the Duke of Buckingham, who, when financial difficulties began to threaten him, manfully resisted all proposals at retrenchment, and then a friend, forseeing disaster, suggested that it was superfluous to keep, as well as a French chef and an English roasting cook, an Italian confectioner, exclaimed, with generous fire, "Good gad! mayn't a man have a biscuit with his glass of sherry?" Well, that's how I always feel when a new bird is offered. I may have hundreds of others, but this is my poor little biscuit.

The birds on arrival were in very fair condition, for softbills, after a long voyage, and I was highly delighted with my new venture. They were marvellously tame, and would sit quite unconcernedly on my finger, and let me stroke them without any symptom of fear. I at once put them into a big roomy cage, and proceeded to attend to their wants. Their feathers were a bit sticky and messed up by the mixture they had been fed on; so I let them have a good tub, and they were soon busy preening their feathers.

The food bill was a difficulty, as such expensive birds can't be played with. Some people might say that Fruitsuckers are not expensive; but I call any bird that costs 30s. so. At first I gave them my own soft mixture and bananas; they did very well on this, but the expense was prohibitive, as we can only get bananas when I go to Leeds; so I set about finding some cheaper substitute. I finally settled on plain boiled rice, steamed perfectly dry; so that every grain is separate. They would not eat it, "stodgy." Besides the rice, I gave them a pot of stewed apples, nicely sweetened with sugar, and they are a pair of perfect beauties—every feather in its place, and as tight as wax.

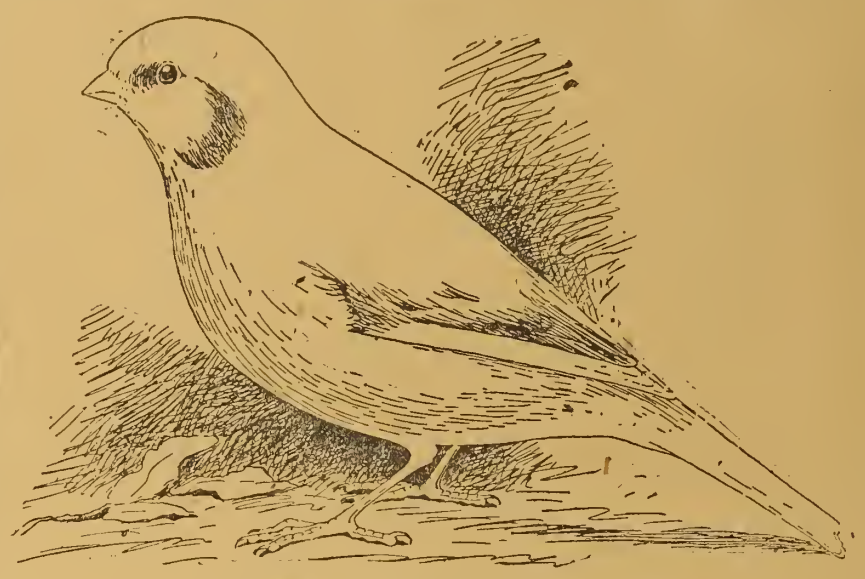
The Voice of the Charmer.

Another certain sign of sex is the beautiful and varied song of the cock. Those who have not had the pleasure of hearing him have no idea of the extent of his powers. The hen only utters a harsh scolding note, "that 'arsh it sounds like the tearing of oil-cloth," as I once heard a 'bus conductor in London say of a young female's voice, who was trying to warble, though "slightly elevated," at 12 o'clock p.m., at Piccadilly Circus.

I daily give the Fruitsuckers some mealworms, and they are very keen after them. They have long prehensile tongues, very much like the Australian Honey-eaters, and they use them in the same way.

They are quiet, inoffensive birds, and I don't think they would hurt willingly a good able-bodied bluebottle fly, unless they ate him. Let me here narrate a little story. Some years ago, a dealer had about three of these Green Bulbuls on sale, very fine and healthy; a rival dealer had none, but not to be bested, as we say up here, what do you think he did? He inserted an advertisement in all the papers, "Green Bulbuls—fine—30s. each; don't pay any more"! Need I say that when the other unfortunate dealer asked considerably more for his genuine birds, he was regarded by the unenlightened public in the light of a barefaced swindler; and the other as a benefactor, who had put the public on their guard.

I put the Fruitsuckers for the winter into a big indoor aviary, where they had plenty of room to exercise; but were in a measure protected from severe frosts, although there was no artificial heat, and I could not see that they suffered at all, although they are Indian subjects. In the summer I exchanged them into a big outdoor aviary, but there, although they did well, they were very difficult to see, owing to the similarity of the colour to the surrounding greenery.



That outdoor enlargement was the destruction of my hopes of baby Bulbuls, for, for some reason or other, the hen died suddenly. An outdoor aviary seems preferable to an indoor one, but relatively it is not. "I once knew a man," said Dr. Johnson, "who always wore a nightcap instead of a wig; abstractedly the nightcap was the better headgear, but relatively it was the worse, for when he would go abroad, the boys ran after him and hooted him." It is much the same with an outdoor aviary; abstractedly it looks ideal, fresh air, exercise, freedom—but we forget the climate—some night there comes what Shakespeare calls "a nipping and an eager air," and then bang goes some valuable bird; and away go your hopes of a medal.

There is, I suppose, no quality so winning as that which makes a man, in the Apostle's phrase, to "rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep." A friend who called that day was singularly wanting in this respect. He coldly remarked that the odds were that I should never get another hen. I never have, but then he needn't have said it in that cold, beastly way!

The end came as it generally does with birds. One morning I noticed the hen a trifle "thick"; the next day she seemed better; but the third day she was dead. It seemed to illustrate the traditional course of royal maladies. "Le roi est malade. Le roi se porte mieux. Le roi est mort."

And now I had better end off, lest I weary you. The editor wrote a most kind letter lately, hoping that I would long go on writing for CAGE BIRDS, and saying (I hope he will be forgiven) how much he personally enjoyed these papers. Now, when my readers hear this, they may feel as Sam Wilberforce, sometime Bishop of Oxford, did; when told that he had to listen to the same Deputation for two months on a stretch, "he fairly longed to scream."

Variegated Hen Norwich Plainhead.

This Hen secured First Prize for her owner, Mr. A. W. Hart (Fulham) at the recent Metropolitan Show.

For those who have never seen a Green Bulbul, I append a description that will fairly make them break the Tenth Commandment, though at the same time I am bound to admit, as Shakespeare said of Cleopatra, "As for her state, it beggared all description."

The cock is a glorious fellow, a beautiful grass green in colour, the face round, the eye, chin, and throat a rich velvety black; a shining hyacynthine blue stripe on the cheek; the forehead bright gold, shading into the green of the crown; the wings green, with just a suspicion of turquoise blue on the shoulder butts; the flights brown; tail, greenish black, tipped with greenish grey; bill, black and long and slightly curved; feet, lead colour; iris, brown.

A Lady Seldom Seen.

The hen is a very rare bird, and I have only seen one. There is a certain feeling of what Aristotle referred to as rejoicing in the troubles of others, a vice which he rightly stigmatises. The fruit-grower feels temptation to it. The dweller on the hill, for instance, must be more than human if he is without a sensation—let us hope an involuntary sensation—of satisfaction, when he finds that some late frost has touched the orchards in the valley—so the bird-keeper feels an unholy joy when he succeeds in getting something which his neighbour has not. Thus, my joy was fulfilled when I got that hen Bulbul. The hen is considerably smaller, and of a different shade of green too impossible to describe, but easy to see in the actual specimen, but she has certainly not got a green forehead, as asserted by Dr. Butler, but a yellow one, a little duller perhaps and slightly narrower than her mate's. It is perfectly easy to tell if you have a pair by their actions; as two cocks would act precisely like the celebrated cats of Kilkenny—they would kill each other.

*Baby Birdie's Misfortunes.

Baby Birdie had been unfortunate; he was born very early in the year, and one stormy night was blown out of his nest. Flo and her brothers and sisters running about the garden next morning found the poor little frightened half-fledged bird fluttering with pitiful cries among the bushes, and she picked him up from the ground only just in time to save him from the claws of the stable cat who was prowling about in search of a meal.—Sent by Walter Lord (age 9), 67, Little Clegg Road, Smithy Bridge.

*Ingenious Swallows.

Some Swallows had a nest, which opened in front, and were persistently annoyed by attacks from Sparrows. Instead of closing up their front door and making a side entrance, they resorted to strategy. Whenever the Sparrows thought to take them unawares they always found one of the parents keeping guard; at least so it seemed, for come whenever they might the Sparrows found one of the Swallows' tails sticking out of the hole. When the Swallows migrated the mystery was solved. The tail was really nothing but three feathers, so ingeniously placed that they quite deceived not only the Sparrows but human being as well.—Sent by Lucie Beatrice Few (age 14), 70, Buckley Street, Wigan.

The Benevolent Parrot.

In the garden of a neighbour who owned a Parrot there were a number of standard rose-trees, around all of which was a circular wire-fence covered with convovulus and honeysuckle. In one of these fences a pair of Goldfinches had built their nest, and were constantly fed by the children of the house. Polly soon noticed the constant visits of the children to the rose-tree, and the gifts of crumbs and seeds that were regularly taken, and Polly set off to the tree, and after looking at the birds for a little while, went back to her cage, brought a beakful of her sopped bread, and put it into the nest. A striking example this of the kindness of one bird to another.—Sent by Alfred Hesford (age 14), 79, St. Ives Road, Rusholme, Manchester.

EXTREMES IN COLOUR.

SELF-GREEN YORKSHIRE. CLEAR BUFF YORKSHIRE. CLEAR YELLOW YORKSHIRE.

The Novices Notebook.

This page will consist of topical hints, addressed chiefly to beginners, concerning every branch of the hobby of bird-keeping, and the notes will be contributed from time to time by various leading experts.

Belgians and Scotch.

A useful tip may be given here regarding these breeds. Do not cease training until the birds will "pose" without having the cage lifted up. The birds will almost invariably begin to pose first when the cage is gently lifted, and when they promptly fall into position on being moved one is apt to consider training is complete in that particular bird's case. But the feeling that has been abroad of late that these varieties are often improperly judged, because the cages are not handled sufficiently, should convey a lesson to breeders not to be satisfied with a bird that poses readily enough when the cage is handled, but to carry training a stage further, and make them pose quickly by simply tapping the cage gently.

Then one will be sure of the birds being seen in position at a show, even when the judge fails to handle each cage. It will also help to make handling unnecessary, which is certainly a desirable end, whether it refers to handling by judges or anyone else.

The Mammoth of the Race.

The Lancashire is also in a minor degree a bird of position. Training is therefore desirable in their case. This should be directed to getting them perfectly steady on the perch under close inspection, standing firmly on the perch, bolt upright in body, with tail dropping straight down. It is practically the Yorkshire body in a grossly exaggerated or enlarged form from head to base of tail, and the Belgian tail.

Above all, the bird must be taught to stand well up on its legs. Any suspicion of squattiness or weak legs is intolerable in a Lancashire. Size and substance are of prime importance, so that generous feeding should always be the order of the day within reason, and frame forming foods should be a feature of their diet.

Another Connecting Link.

The Dutch Frill, though scarcely yet popular in the show world, is another kind of link which connects the birds of position with those of feather properties. Feather is of first importance, but "pose" or position can no more be overlooked when it is popular, than it is in the Yorkshire of to-day. A system of training for position in accordance with the recognised Continental standard, as elaborate as is carried out for our own typical birds of position, should, therefore, be adopted for them.

In the one solitary case of the German—the King or Crown Prince of song—training for any typical points of position is of no moment at all. Song, and song alone, counts in their case, and although this entails one of the highest forms of training or tuition, it is out of the question here.

The Chubby Bird of Colour.

To go on to the Norwich, we have first and foremost the bird of colour. It is undoubtedly one of the (if not quite the) richest natural colour breeds we possess. Yet notwithstanding this a bird with nothing but colour in its favour will meet with but very fitful and temporary success on the show bench, even in the most favourable combination of circumstances.

Colour certainly goes a long way towards success, and to a great extent when this fails as a natural feature of the bird, it can be provided by skilful feeding; but colour alone without shape and substance will never "set the Thames on fire" in the exhibition arena. A thick-set, chubby bird, almost, as it were, inclined to adiposity, is the much desired shape of the bird. Therefore, a bird good in every respect save a very slight suspicion of slimness, not infrequently has its chances considerably improved by being fed liberally on soft food for a few weeks at the beginning of the show season, in order to get it to lay on a little superfluous fat, which, providing it is not carried too far, or far enough to affect its sprightliness and ease of motion, will add just the required little bit that was lacking to make it a good chubby shape, and thereby materially improve its chances of scoring in the prize list.

A Fat-producer.

A course of bread and milk feeding, such as giving a piece of bread about the size of a cherry, which has been soaked in milk, pressed nearly dry and sprinkled with soft sugar, daily, in addition to the usual seed diet, is the best means of attaining this end. In some cases a liberal supply of hemp and linseed is given for this purpose, but neither method is quite free from grave objections, and a course of bread and milk will be found most effective for the purpose, and about the quickest of all methods of laying superfluous fat on a bird.

Once again I must point out that great care must be exercised not to carry this feeding-up too far. In itself, superfluous fat is always objectionable, and if it goes beyond a certain point, it becomes a menace to a bird's health, besides which, the bird grows sluggish and inactive, and these faults naturally count against it in competition.

In the show cage it should be got tame and steady, but always pert and watchful, as though it were ever on the alert for an opportunity to hop away unseen. It should stand well across the perch, but in a bold and defiant attitude, and show not the least suspicion of crouching or squatting down with its breast near the perch.

Practically all the compactly feathered and chubby breeds are also required to stand well across the perch when in show position, more or less in the typical pose of the Norwich. Of these, the Lizard, and the London Fancy, the Border, the Cinnamon, and the Crest and Crestbred are types. The two first-named are essentially birds of plumage, requiring certain specified standard markings, so that mere position is a secondary consideration. The training given to Norwich will in all respects apply to these birds.

The Border may almost be described as a kind of connecting link between the birds of colour and position. Colour in itself is nominally a negative feature, but the sprightly, jaunty carriage of the bird makes it come rather near to the more typical birds of position. In its pose it should stand a little higher on its legs than the Norwich, but like the latter bird, be well across the perch.

Training the Briton.

"First get a show bird" is a good axiom for the would-be trainer to observe. This, however, need not be a very serious matter, nor yet a question of a considerable outlay of capital. All that is needed is a fair amount of cool judgment and discretion, and the privilege of examining a goodly number of fresh-caught birds, either before or after they come into the dealer's hands.

The rest is all a matter of careful selection of the biggest, boldest, brightest-coloured, and most distinctly-marked specimens. This rough material can always be obtained from either catchers or dealers for a few shillings a head over and above the ruling market price of ordinary common singers. But in all cases strive to pay a personal visit to inspect and make the selection yourself. Then proper feeding and management, in order to ensure a good quick moult, will ensure your having a specimen with fair average chances of scoring a win on the show bench when properly trained.

Wild Versus Hand-reared Specimens.

As no distinction or preference is expressed above as regards wild-caught or hand-reared birds for showing, it will be best to refer to it before progressing. It is a most difficult point to decide, because so much must depend upon the owner on the one hand and on the individuality of the bird on the other.

Thus in practically all species there are individuals which, whether hand-reared or not, are notoriously wild and shy. A hand-reared bird does not necessarily mean an invariably tame and sociable bird. As a matter of fact, it is no uncommon thing to find a wild-caught bird of any given species to be decidedly steadier after three months of captivity than another specimen of twelve months of age which has been reared by hand.

But, of course, these are exceptional cases. If a large number of hand-reared birds were taken haphazard and compared with a similar number of wild-caught specimens, the balance in favour of steadiness would almost certainly be very considerably on the side of the former. But by the same method of practical comparison the wild-caught birds would in all probability be able to give their opponents a goodly number of points for size, and still beat them. This is where the owner influences the decision. Provided the owner is a plodding, persevering person, with an endless chain of patience, and thoroughly understands the proper feeding and management of his charges, the birds will lose nothing in size or stamina from being reared by hand. They may even compare with wild birds in this respect to the disadvantage of the latter.

But the number of cases wherein these essential requirements are present are comparatively few and far between, and it thus remains that in the vast majority of cases hand-reared birds are distinctly inferior in size.

To Proceed.

What was written about the taming and steadying of the various breeds of Canaries applies equally well to all varieties of British birds. If one is dealing with hand-reared specimens, there must be just as much, if not more, discretion used to avoid their getting too tame. In most cases they will need no further attention than putting them into the show cage for several hours every few days, and set it aside where they will see folks frequently moving about, and every now and again spend some minutes fussing about and talking to it.

Some folk will doubtless marvel at your making such an idiot of yourself; but never mind, the loss is theirs, not yours. Poor creatures! They never knew the joy of winning a challenge trophy. Always be provided with some trifling tit-bit. A choice scrap of green food, or a few grains of some especially favourite article of food—no matter if its use is tabooed as a frequent article of diet.

For seed eaters, hemp, maw, niga, and sunflower shelled and broken into small pieces will be sufficient to ring the changes upon; whilst soft-billed and mixed feeders may be sufficiently propitiated by mealworms, spiders, hemp, and the chopped kernels of sunflower seeds, as already mentioned for seed-eaters. Such delicacies as big fat spiders are quite irresistible to nearly all soft-billed birds

Mealworms are almost as attractive, and much more easily procured at all times. Their getatableness (to coin a word) is merely a question of cash, as they can be obtained at any time during the year. Still, they are expensive luxuries when required in any quantity, but, even so, this is not the question here. And, after all, when one goes in for this branch of birdkeeping, the cost should be reckoned with at the beginning, and a rigid rule framed not to keep more individuals than one is able to keep well and properly when calculating the cost of keep at the highest average probable cost for the year.

A MOUSE-PROOF SEED TROUGH.

Sent by J. Broxup, 8, Pendle Street, Burnley.

I enclose a sketch of one of the simplest mouse-proof seed troughs for aviaries, etc., of which I know. It consists of two smooth plant (flower) pots, with a sheet of glass, or piece of tin placed in the middle. The latter prevents a mouse from either climbing or jumping to the seed, which is placed in a saucer on the upper flower-pot.—J. Broxup.

No. 261.

A NOVEL HEATING APPARATUS.

Sent by S. Maunder, 67, Mill Road, Gillingham, Kent.

I enclose a rough sketch of a contrivance I have found acts admirably for heating my outdoor aviary, and which I think is within reach of every fancier. It consists of a section of an ordinary drain pipe with a junction, which can be easily obtained from any contractor. The junction is passed just through a hole cut in the aviary, or bird room wall, so as to let the fumes out from the lamp placed inside. On top of the pipe I have an old saucepan without a handle, filled with sand, which, when heated, gives a splendid result. A piece of wood, "A," nailed slanting just over the junction, prevents the rain from running in. The junction may be connected by another pipe, so as to get the apparatus in the centre of the aviary. I think the accompanying sketch will explain.—S. Maunder.

HERNE BAY.

Cage birds were a very nice collection indeed at this show, which was held at the Albany, Promenade Central, on November 19th. The entry was considerably above the average, as was the quality, and was generally conceded to be the best show the society has held. Mr. W. A. Holness made a most obliging and painstaking secretary, and was ably assisted in the management by the following good fanciers: Messrs. Blackwell, sen., and jun., Carter, Mason, Hudson Bros., Horn, and Harris. Dr. T. A. Bowes, the well-known devotee of Border Fancies, is the president, and takes a very keen and active interest in its welfare. There was a good attendance, and everything betokened success. Mr. C. A. House judged.

LOWESTOFT.

The 21st annual show of the Lowestoft F.S., was held on Nov. 11th and 12th, in the Public Hall. The exhibits were nicely staged at a convenient height, and made a nice display. The entries for a county show came up well, and the quality was excellent, many grand birds being staged. The quality in the Novice Classes was really first-class; the winners would have played a conspicuous part had they being entered in the open. We have seldom seen Novice Classes containing birds of such type and quality. The local fanciers are certainly to be congratulated on the quality of their exhibits, and they undoubtedly provided one of the features of the show. The exhibits were well attended to by a good committee of ardent fanciers, of whom the Rev. Dickson is chairman. The hall is a capital one, being well lighted from the top, and is quite free from draughts. Mr. E. L. A. Crow, the hon. sec., was again at the helm, was most courteous and obliging, and had everything in perfect order. Mr. J. H. Payne judged.

WIMBLEDON.

The Wimbledon C.B.S. held their fourth annual show on November 17th and 18th, in the Queen's Hall, a building well suited for a cage bird exhibition, being of good size, well lighted, and close to the station. The show was under the patronage of the Southern Norwich and Yorkshire, and the Crested Canary Clubs. The entries proved a record for thie society, a fact that the new secretary and show manager, Mr. H. Smith, should be proud of. The entries numbered 525, some 60 more than last year's total. The bulk of them were Yorkshires, and some excellent birds were staged by such well known exhibitors as Messrs. Knight, Warley, Rennie, Bennett, etc. The Novice Yorkshire section, too, contained many good birds. In the Norwich section Messrs. Rennie, Kilby, and Young took the lion's share of the spoil, some of their well-known and typical specimens being on view. The British birds were good, especially the Goldies, very little ecparating the first half-dozen birds. In the Hybrid section, Mre. Aekham had another grand young Canary-Bullie out for an airing, and he landed one more first for this breeder of these charming birds. There was a nice display of Foreign Birds, Mr. Maxwell staging some of his best. The hall was beautifully arranged, and was visited by many bird lovers. The secretary, Mr. H. Smith, had everything in capital order, and proved himself a most efficient worker. He was ably assisted by Mr. A. W. Reade, tho aseistant secretary, and by his show committee, Messrs. Stoakley (chairman), Carson, Day, Dell, Dyke, Griffiths, Rorke, and Whittome. We noticed the President, F. Piper, Esq., taking a lively interest in the show during the evening. The judges were Messrs. J. Robson, and H. Norman, the former taking the Yorkshire and Norwich, and the latter the Hybrids, British and Forcign, and Members' Norwich.

LEYTON C.B.A.

Great was the advance in quality at the second winter show of the Leyton C.B.A., which was held on Nov. 14. Gratifying as this was, it has caused officials to look happy that last year's entry had been beaten considerably in numbers. DEAL.

The Deal, Walmer and District F.A. held their fourth annual show on November 18th, in the Drill Hall. It is not perhaps the best place in which to hold a show, the light being none too good. There was a grand entry, considering it was open to Kent only. Many good birds had to go without even a card. The Secretary, Mr. W. Wadhams, had the arrangements well in hand, and is to be congratulated on the success of the exhibition. Mr. A. E. Enfield, judged.

CLUB REPORTS.

SOUTH MANCHESTER C.B.S..

During the show on November 17th, a washing competition was held between two of the members, Mr. Washbourne and Mr. Stirrup. Mr. Washbourne washed his bird with brushes, and Mr. Stirrup with sponges. After the birds were dry, Mr. Aspinall and Mr. Norris judged them, and gave the prize to Mr. Washbourne.—J. C. SPILSBURY, Secretary.

DUNDALK C.B. AND P.A.

Annual general meeting, held Oct. 22nd, in the Town Hall. The election of officers resulted as follows:—President, Mr. J. D. Rowe; vice-presidents, Dr. Lavery and Mr. S. Hellognagh; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Keating; hon. secretary, H. Niblock, Seatown Place, Dundalk; committee, Messrs. M. Byrne, G. P. Tivthill, J. Murray, P. Grimes, and L. Goodman. The annual show will be held in the Town Hall, Dundalk, on January 20th, and 21st. Mr. Battyo is the judge elect.—HERBERT NIBLOCK, hon. sec.

LARKHALL C.B.A.

Meeting held in Miners' Hall, November 14th, for the purpose of paying out prize money and specials won at the recent show. Mr. Gavin Burns afterwards made a presentation to the worthy President, Mr. Joseph Rundell. In a felicitous speech he asked Mr. Rundell to accept a handsome gold-mounted umbrella, suitably inscribed, as a token of the respect and esteem in which he is held by the members. Mr. Rundell replied, making special reference to the enthusiastic and harmonious manner in which the business of the society was gone through. The rest of the evening was spent in song and sentiment. Messrs. Burns, Gold, McEwan, Johnstone, McLuckie, and McDermid ably sustained the musical part of the programme.—JAS. POLLOCK, Sec.

DULWICH O.S.

A most instructive washing demonstration was given at headquarters, on October 29th, by Mr. G. F. Woolhouse. Mr. A. E. Rogers was elected chairman. Mr. Woolhouse briefly replied to the chairman's introductory remarks, and proceeded to wash some birds, taking us step by step through the process. So well did he explain the method that even the rawest recruit amongst us could now with perfect confidence and success wash a bird. He asked if someone else would like to show their skill, whereupon Mr. Rogers vacated the chair in favour of Mr. W. Goodwin. Mr. Rogers had washed birds before, and was a past master in the art. He was followed by Mr. Garlick, a veteran in the Fancy, and he soon proved to our satisfaction that his hand had not lost its cunning. The evening being still young, Mr. Edgar Goodwin gave a grand display of limelight views which delighted his audience and drew many exclamations of admiration. A hearty vote of thanks was passed to those gentlemen who had so ably entertained and instructed us during the evening. Mr. Woolhouse responded, and said he still adhered to his statement that he was always at the command of the society, and it gave him the greatest pleasure to do all in his power to help and instruct others. After a vote of thanks to Mr. Rogers for occupying the chair, an enjoyable meeting was brought to a close.

WIBSEY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Experiences with the Yorkshire Canary.

On Oct. 17 the members attended to hear Mr. W. Cruise (West Bowling) give his lecture on "His Experience as a Breeder and Exhibitor of the Yorkshire Canary." In the course of his lecture Mr. Cruise gave some very good advice to the novice fanciers, and some of the younger members missed something good in not being present to bear this well-known and successful fancier's views. He strongly advised novices to attend shows if possible, and study the winning birds, going from class to class and comparing the various birds staged. He also laid great stress on keeping both birds and cages very clean. He had bred his best birds, he said, from medium-sized ones; he believes in medium-sized hens, as typical in shape and position as possible. Mr. Cruise allows the hen to bring up her own young, and removes the cocks into another room when they are not in use. He believes in running an old cock bird with two hens, and a young one with one hen. About the middle of January he opens his cage doors, and allows the birds to fly loose in the room for a month or so, and he finds this a very good thing for bringing birds into breeding condition. He fixes perches, say, six inches long, on the front of his cages, when the birds are flying about, and he finds they get in the habit of going into the cages at night. When his hens are sitting he gives them mixed seed twice a week, and, after hatching, egg and biscuit and a little green food. When the young are learning to pick, he moistens their food a little, and places it on a board, and when they start picking he crushes all kinds of seed and puts it in the egg-glass along with the egg food. At the conclusion of his lecture Mr. Cruise answered the following questions:—Why do you object to bob holes in the cage?—Mr. Cruise did not like them because he thought they spoiled the position of the birds who had a tendency to use them to sleep in. Why do you cut your rope 2ins. long for nesting; do you not thing the strands too long, and liable to get into the bird's feet?—Mr. Cruise always used manilla rope, which was more springy than ordinary hemp, and not liable to wrap in the bird's legs and feet; 2in. lengths made better nests. Do you use linings as well as nestings?—Felt got too hot, and he always put a little swansdown in the bottom of the nest, and allowed the birds to build for themselves, if they would, as it kept them occupied. What would Mr. Cruise do with a bad feeder?—Remove to a fresh place, or cover up, so that she was in semi-darkness. Did he think that non-feeding was caused by the hen being out of condition?—Yes, and he generally altered their diet and gave them a little Epsom salts. Where did he put his nest pans when breeding?—On the end of the cage, half an inch above the perches; he had all his nest pans made of tin with gas piping round, and as they stand off the cage half an inch this lessened the chances of red mite.—Did he think red mite were white in their first stages, before getting on to the birds?—They might be white when forming on the scales of a bird, but he had not seen any in his room for five years. Did he think it possible to be altogether without red mite?—Yes, certainly, if there were no crevices in the cages, and they were kept very clean. Did he believe in inbreeding, and how near should the relations be?—Yes, with birds as perfect as possible, and no nearer related than cousins or grandfather or granddaughter.—Mr. Stobart said he had tried a remedy of Mr. Cruise's for stopping inflammation in young birds, and had found that it was not wise to fill the water glass more than three parts full of water for youngsters; else they would drink greedily. A vote of thanks to Mr. Cruise concluded the meeting, Mr. Cruise extending an invitation to any fancier to visit his rooms at any time.—E. W. JOHNSON, Secretary.

ARBROATH SCOTCH FANCY C.B.

Annual general meeting held in Crockatt's Rooms, Catherine Street, on November 11th, the President, Mr. C. S. Crockatt, in the chair. There was a large attendance. The secretary submitted the balance sheet, which had been audited by Messrs. Watt and Gove, and it showed a surplus of £4 7s. 5d. on the right side. It was unanimously adopted. A very harmonious meeting was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the President.—J. S. NAPIER, Secretary.

EDINBURGH WESTERN O.S.

Meeting held in Rugott Hall on November 5th. Owing to the absence of the president and vice-president, Mr. Whitefield consented to act as chairman. The financial statement was then read, showing the club to be still advancing. The balance was smaller than that of the previous year owing to the extra expense incurred in the purchase of screen and other extras, which we would not have to pay for years. The report was very satisfactory. This being all the business the chairman dissolved the society for the year. The following were elected as office-bearers for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. W. Whitefield; vice-president, Mr. W. Telfer; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Robert Lile; auditors, Messrs. J. Bowman and M. W. Telfer; committee, Messrs. J. Todd and P. McNiven. The chairman moved a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring officials, which was responded to, and a pleasant meeting closed. Twenty members rejoined.—ROBERT LILE, Sec.

LOANHEAD & DISTRICT C.B.S.

Meeting held in the Mason's Arms, on November 14th, Mr. A. Jardine, President, in the chair. The secretary read the financial report for the year, which showed an income of £17 6s. 1d., against an expenditure of £9 13s. 2d., leaving a balance, after paying £7 11s. 11d. for prize money, or 6s. per class, of 3s. 11d. Nine new members were admitted, namely, Messrs. R. Tister, T. Bickerstaff, D. Flockhart, D. Dalgleish, J. Holmes, P. Noble, R. H. Douglas, J. McAdam, and R. Haldane. The election of office bearers resulted in the President, Vice-Presidents and Secretary being unanimously re-elected. The following four members were appointed to form a committee, Messrs. D. Small, J. Yule, W. Masterton, and R. Hardy Douglas. The President then rose to thank Baillie Frichael, in the name of the members, for the handsome cup which that gentleman had presented to the society. He had pleasure, he said, in asking him to accept a bird and cage as a token of their appreciation of his kindness. Whilst its intrinsic value was not of much account, he could assure Baillie Frichael that it had been subscribed for by all the members. Baillie Frichael, in responding, said that as they had honoured him with the post of Hon. Vice-President, his interest in the society would be greatly increased. A musical programme was then gone through, which brought a happy evening to a close.—WALTER B. SMART, Secretary.

BURY AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Something about the Washing of Birds.

Monthly meeting held at the Bee Hive Inn, on November 10th. The attendance was easily the largest of the whole year—a fact which augurs well for the success of our forthcoming show. A washing exhibition by Mr. O. Stringer (Manchester), proved a great attraction. His requirements consisted of three large bowls of boiling water, a jug of cold water (to reduce former to the various temperatures), a small cloth, and an old silk handkerchief. While engaged in his preliminary operations, he was also giving advice. He spoke of the advisability of one's being alone during the washing process. It was better, he said, to catch the bird in the dark; this obviated the possibility of the loss of feathers. He did not recommend any special starting place, but if soap was rubbed on the top of head and left until last the dirt would be softened, and could then be easily removed. He next showed how the bird should be held—allowing the tail to rest on the wrist. By means of an ordinary shaving brush he applied plenty of soap and water to the tail, being careful not to let the feathers get crossed. He told us not to be afraid of using soap; we should put plenty of it in, in order to get the dirt out and, of course, we should later remove the soap or else the bird would be spoiled. Turning the bird over, he washed the breast and under the wings, explaining how essential it was that the bird should be held very lightly but firmly. The neck and head were the most important parts, and much confidence was required, while, on the other hand, over-confidence was very dangerous, for three seconds too long would be sufficient to kill the bird. After washing the bird all over, he thoroughly cleaned his brush, and utilised it for swilling the bird with the water in the second bowl. We need not be afraid of this swilling if we kept the water away from the beak, for there the danger lay. The swilling process was repeated in the third bowl, and then as much water was removed by the silk handkerchief as possible. In wiping we should, he said, be careful to stroke the feathers in one direction, and ruffle them as little as possible. The point to be remembered in wrapping was to give the bird a rest, as at this stage it was in a very exhausted condition. He carefully showed how the bird should be wrapped, and then placed it near the fire and in such a position that the head would dry first. The bird was left thus for 10 or 15 minutes, and then placed in a cage, also facing the fire. It was explained that if the bird was allowed to completely dry in the rays, or in front of the fire, the feathers would be very harsh; this would give the bird an unfinished appearance. It is better to allow the bird to shake itself dry, and at the same time shake the feathers into their right place. He emphasised the necessity of using plenty of soap and water, and brushing in a downward direction. On no account should we work round with the brush, as this caused the bird much pain. In washing the beak, we might use the finger, thus having more control during this delicate operation. The best way to ascertain whether all the soap had been removed was to slide the finger down the back of the bird's neck. If free from soap the head will be drawn back; if not the finger will slide easily. In conclusion, he warned them to guard against draughts, for when the bird is abnormally hot, the danger is very great. During the discussion that ensued, Mr. Stringer said that if anyone present aspired to success on the show bench, he should be able to wash a bird properly, because a judge would ignore a dirty bird, even if it were superior in other qualities. Mr. Brough expressed his appreciation. Mr. Hall proposed a vote of thanks, which was ably seconded by Mr. Brearley, and supported by Mr. T. H. Brooks. Mr. Stringer briefly responded, and a most successful meeting terminated.—T. E. HOLDEN, Secretary.

I should like to thank you, writes Mr. G. Knott (Ilford), for the valuable assistance I have received from time to time through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. When I commenced bird-keeping two years ago I practically knew nothing of birds; in fact, I no more knew the difference between a Norwich and a Yorkshire than the man in the moon. Last year I commenced breeding for the first time and bred 5 Goldie mules and 4 Canaries, and didn't lose any. This year I tried the Linnet mule, and have been successful in rearing 4 out of two clutches of eggs. The other eggs were unfertile. My success I attribute to your competent and painstaking staff of advisory experts, and also to the splendid articles which have appeared.

The Plover-catching Industry.

A case of considerable importance to the industry of Plover-catching in the Lincolnshire Fens was heard at Bourne Police Court on November 19th, when, at the instance of the S.P.C.A., James Robinson and Bertio Mowbray, of Spalding, were summoned for cruelty whilst engaged in catching Plovers in the neighbourhood of Bourne. The society took exception to the instrument known as the "landwatch," in which the decoy Plovers are placed, it being contended that this caused unnecessary suffering. The bench held that no unnecessary suffering was caused, and dismissed the case.

PRIZE MONEY PAID.

[Will exhibitors who have not received their prize-money please communicate with the respective secretaries at once.]

Malton, Nottingham, Whitehaven, Matlock, Sligo, South-west London, Queen's Park, Camborne, Darvel, Consett.

Allow me to thank you for putting the photo of myself, wife, and birds in last week's CAGE BIRDS., for I think it is a splendid likeness, and all I have come in contact with call it a good one. Your coloured plate is also grand, and you seem to go one better every time. May CAGE BIRDS continue to do so is the wish of—J. RUKIN (Rawtenstall).

Kindly allow me to thank Portsmouth Show for the prompt way they have paid me my prize money. I think it is a great credit to them. As for my winning first and special in an open show for the first time (this is only my second year of showing and colour-feeding), I have to thank CAGE BIRDS for this and I recommend it to all young beginners, and wish it all the success it deserves.—H. SCHNIEDER (Winchester).

THE SHOW SEASON IS PASSING QUICKLY.

If you want to secure a life-like picture of your exhibition birds.

For the present show season we have made such arrangements as will enable any exhibitor in the country to have his birds portrayed either upon the front cover or in the inner pages of CAGE BIRDS. Mr. H. Norman, the premier artist of the Fancy, intends visiting a number of large provincial cage-bird shows, where his services will be freely available (by arrangement with us) for the purpose of sketching prize winners of every variety. A list of such shows, with the dates, is herewith appended.

How to Give Your Instructions.

Orders for the sketching of exhibits should be placed at once with our Manager, at 154 Fleet Street, London, E.C., who will be very pleased to communicate terms, etc. The original drawing will be given to you after it has been reproduced. Exhibitors can place their orders for sketching birds conditionally upon their winning a prize. Should they be unsuccessful, the order will be treated as not having been given.

REMEMBER: The Show this week is Leeds, Nov. 27 and 28.

Write us at once to sketch your winners there; or, after you know you have won, write or wire Mr. Norman, c/o the show, or interview him in the show hall.

In addition to the shows given underneath our artist will be attending all London fixtures appearing in our Show Dates Fixed column, including, of course, the Great National Crystal Palace Show, which we hope to illustrate on just as extensive a scale this year as we have in the past, and, if possible, more fully than ever before.

November 27th and 28th.—Leeds.
December 31st.—Edinboro' (Scottish National).

I was delighted to see my Song Thrush on your frontispiece last week, writes Mr. Chas. Price. My thanks are due to Mr. Norman for such a good portrait. My address, by the way, is Kidwelly, Carmarthen (not Caruarvon). This Thrush has never been out of the money since I started exhibiting it. Your last double number was a treat for British bird fanciers.

The Yellow Marked Norwich cock, shown at Nottingham by Messrs. Adnitt and Driver (South Normanton), and standing 1st in its class, was, we hear, claimed at catalogue price £10 10s., by Mr. W. H. Howe, of Wellingborough. The plucky purchaser deserves every success with him; the bird is one of the best we have seen for many a day, and it should take some stopping.

Several very interesting articles are included in this month's issue of "Bird Notes"—the journal of the Foreign Bird Club—not the least interesting being that by Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, B.A., on "The Nesting of the Nightjar in Captivity." Mr. F. Howe contributes some notes on the assumption of seasonal plumage in the Orange Bishop, and Mr. R. Suggitt on the Red-headed Finch. "My Aviaries and Their Inmates" is the title to Mr. S. Beaty's contribution. Most of the articles are nicely illustrated and very readable.

Migration of Thrushes, etc.

From observations taken at an Irish lighthouse we are told that the number of Song Thrushes passing is in excess of the Redwings, and that the Blackbirds are equal in number to the Thrushes and Redwings combined. This is another strong proof of the great migration which takes place among our common species.

Mr. P. H. Harris, London, W.C., writes complimenting us upon the very moderate charges we have instituted for our "Portrayal of Prize-winners" scheme, and thinks that we should be kept very busy booking orders for it. He also suggests that a small account written by the owner of the bird giving previous wins, exhibits, etc., would add immensely to the interest and success of the idea. It has been our intention all along to cover this suggestion. We should like every exhibitor who contemplates having his bird sketched under this principle to bear in mind that he will be entitled to a brief notice of the bird's wins on the lines suggested by Mr. Harris.

CANARY QUERIES.

Doubt and Hope.

"Doubtful."—It is not at all unlikely the bird your friend bought for a cock, and which you evidently thought last season was a "wrong 'un," is of the right gender after all. It might have been a late hatched bird, and consequently had little or no opportunities of learning its song before your friend purchased it, and being kept entirely isolated from all other birds would account for its neither singing nor laying this last season. The fact that now you have it, and keep it where it has the society of other birds, and it has begun to twitter so soon, is rather strong proof of its being a cock. It is nothing unusual for a hen, kept under the conditions of this one in the past season not to lay an egg all through the year.

What is wrong?

A. A K.—If you had described some of the bird's symptoms, and said how you fed it, and where it was kept, it would have been much more satisfactory than simply saying the bird is suffering from inflammation, and asking for a remedy. You do not even say where the inflammation is—in bowels, lungs, or elsewhere. Under these circumstances it would be folly to attempt to recommend any definite treatment. You had better write again, and give the information asked for, and in the meantime you can probably do no harm by limiting it to a diet of plain Canary seed, with a small piece of bread and milk daily, and give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and twenty drops of brandy in the drinking water each day. Keep it comfortably warm and free from draught. As regards the other bird which you say wheezes, but appears in full health and vigour, I do not think there can be much seriously wrong with it. Keep it free from chills, as well as the other one, just comfortably warm, and for two or three days give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in its water, and follow up this with ten drops of glycerine, and fine each of syrup of squills, tincture of tolu, and ipecacuanha wine in the drinking water every second day for a week or so Give a few grains of linseed three times a week for a fortnight.

Treatment of Stock Birds.

E.S.B.—Now the moult is quite finished and you have decided upon the stock for next season's breeding, you cannot do better than turn into the flights those you do not intend showing, so as to give them as much space for exercise as possible. Of course, you must keep the sexes separate, and if you can keep them in separate rooms, or, any way, out of sight of each other, so much the better. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and twice a week give separately a little summer rape, allowing about half a teaspoonful per bird, once or twice a small teaspoonful of egg food per bird, or, if you desire more changes, once a week egg food as just named, or an equal quantity of crushed sponge cake, and once a small piece of bread sopped in milk. On each of the other days in each week give a scrap of green food or some kind of ripe fruit as a substitute. Now and again you may throw in just the least sprinkling of hemp, or a few short oats, rolled oats, or split groats. As a rule the plainer the diet, as long as it is a suitable one, the better the general health and stamina of the stock. The last-named items are in reality more suited for the young stock of the large heavy breeds than for general use

Mating for Colour.

X.Y.Z.—See reply to another querist about introducing cinnamon blood to improve colour in Norwich, in which breed there is unquestionably any amount of pure material to meet all demands for colour breeding. But you do not make it very clear whether the bird in question was bred off a cinnamon-marked Norwich cock or a pure cinnamon. If the former there would be little or no objection to breeding with it if it has a sufficiency of typical Norwich qualities, and the clear yellow hen you suggest as a mate for him will be quite the best thing you can do. One that fails in natural colour, even if a little coarse in feather, will form the best mate.

Loss of Feathers.

"Jelly."—Your bird which you wish to show later on should have a half teaspoonful of egg and colour food at once, and continue it daily for a week, and afterwards give it three times a week until the tuft of feathers just lost in a squabble are well through again. You should have begun giving the colour from the day they were lost, in order to ensure their coming again the same colour. In fact, as a precaution against the occasional loss of stray feathers during the course of the season, a little colour food should be given about once a week right through the season. If no feathers should be lost to require renewal this trivial amount of colour will not do the very slightest amount of harm, though it probably assists in keeping the original tone of colour up to concert pitch as it were.

Growth on Thigh.

An Old Reader.—It is impossible to say what is the nature of the growth without seeing it. If, as you suggest, it is a congenital deformity—"an extra thigh" as you term it—it must have been there when hatched, and it certainly seems strange it should never have been noticed until after the moult had taken place. You do not say whether the bird's health is affected in any way, so I presume it is not seriously affected. If may very probably be an abortive feather growth, which has developed during the moult, and may dry up, and drop off of its own accord in a few months. In any case I would strongly advise you not to interfere with it without more definite knowledge of its real character. If the bird's health is in no way affected, leave it entirely alone; but if the contrary is the case, and the bird is a valuable one, get a veterinary surgeon, or your medical man, to look at it and advise you how to act.

A Healthy Squeaker.

F. W.—I can hardly understand your bird being troubled with a continuous squeaky noise in its throat all day, which, curiously enough, disappears at night, the bird being yet apparently in the best of health, and capable of holding its own in company with any other. One thing is pretty certain: it is not troubled with asthma, nor, I think, with anything very serious. As you think it is a cock, which is probably correct, are you quite sure the noise is not a kind of subdued twittering song, which may sound like a squeaky noise at a little distance, but would be recognised as a twittering if listened to near at hand? If this surmise is not correct, I should say the bird is rather plethoric from feeding too well. Try effect of limiting its diet to plain Canary seed only for a fortnight, and giving as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in its drinking water three times a week during the time, and a fair-sized spray of watercress every second day.

A Trio.

S. Wood.—1. If you want to breed with the odd Roller cock next season it would do it no harm to let it have a few weeks in the flight with the other cocks. It would only help to strengthen and invigorate it. But you would almost certainly find its song deteriorate, assuming it is a trained singer, and as you would not be able to keep the cocks together more than a couple of months or so from now, you will have to decide whether it is worth while taking this risk, or keeping the bird caged for its song during the next few weeks. 2. Common Rollers bred in cold room and brought up without any attempt whatever at coddling would succeed well enough in an outdoor aviary with British birds, but you must not expect them to retain any pretence to high-class singing abilities. In all probability they will deteriorate into just ordinary common song birds. 3. German paste is an old-fashioned and, in the main, utterly unsuitable, food for softbilled birds. Its value as a food for Canaries is entirely of a negative kind. I do not think it is ever given to them, and if it was I am sure the results would soon be disastrous if they ate it.

Panting and Colour-food.

"Ga Volt."—1. The Finch mixture in conjunction with colour food is sufficient to ruin the health of the hardiest Canary when caged, and is doubtless largely the cause of the bird's illness, although I suspect the bird has been exposed to some draught or a variable temperature, which has upset the normal course of the moult. Keep it in an equable and comfortable temperature, free from draught, and as a staple diet give plain Canary seed only. Twice a week give separately a few grains of hemp, and twice a week, half a teaspoonful of summer rape. Every day give a sprig of green food, and give no other food at all as long as it is having the soft food with colour feed, which, of course, you will continue to give in addition to the above until the moult is quite finished. In the drinking water give twelve drops of syrup of buckthorn every second day for a week, with pure water on the alternate days. The next week give four drops of tincture of steel in the water every second day, and on the alternate days twelve drops of chemical food. Then go back to the first week, and repeat the two week's treatment over again. 2. As regards your query about colour feeding being detrimental, and lowering the bird's chance of life it can only be so when improperly carried out with impure materials and an excess of hot pepper. Pure tasteless pepper, without any admixture of hot pepper, or with only a small trivial proportion, may safely be regarded as absolutely harmless to the health of a bird.

Paint and Choice of Breed.

M.J.T.—1. If properly done the painting and varnishing are in no wise injurious. It is only when the work is badly done and common or improper materials are used that it can be objectionable. Any good hard drying paint or oil enamel laid on thinly, the surface of the wood being nicely smoothed beforehand, and two or three coats given instead of one (each coat being allowed to dry before the next is put on) may be used with perfect safety. If a shiny surface is required a coat of oil varnish may be given as a finish. Varnish, however, I consider out of place inside a cage, as the shiny surface detracts a good deal from the appearance of the bird occupants. The plumage shows up much better against a dull lustreless background. 2. Your desire for a softer singer than the Norwich would be most fully met by breeding Rollers, but they have no "beauty points" whatever apart from their song; so only half of your requirements are met. The Yorkshire, upon the whole, would perhaps suit you best. It is quite a high-class bird, and its song is not quite so harsh as the Norwich, but the difference is not so very striking. The Border Fancy has also many beauties of its own, is a trim little bird, and a softer singer. It may be described as an edition de luxe of the German, with a greater variety of markings thrown in. The Lizard, a dark-coloured bird with beautifully spangled plumage, might also suit you, but is a very difficult breed for a beginner to take up with on account of the difficulty of breeding a perfectly marked bird. You could get just an ordinary pair of any of these varieties, matched for breeding, for 25s. or 30s., but for really good birds of known strain you may have to give £4 or £5 for a pair, or even more.

Growths on Foot.

F. C. E. Murray.—The growths appear to be almost entirely enlarged scales, which are frequently a cause of temporary lameness in birds which have reached the age of yours. The small substances underneath the front claw may be small accumulations of dirt and sand from the cage floor which have adhered to the foot and grown hard, or merely a thickening of the skin due to age. Catch the bird gently, having first got ready a little olive oil made very warm by holding the bottle containing it in hot water, or standing a small shallow vessel containing it in a saucer of hot water, so that you can hold the bird's foot in the oil whilst it is being kept warm—as warm as can be comfortably borne with the finger. Wash the foot quite clean in warm water, dry carefully on a soft rag, and hold the foot immersed in the warm oil for a few minutes, and occasionally help it to work its way well into the cracks around the horny scales; then as it does so gradually work off the hard horny scale without causing any bleeding. If carefully done the scales will come away when sufficiently softened without much difficulty, when the foot may be carefully dried, and slightly smeared with a little cold cream or pure vaseline. Be careful not to do it too rapidly or too much at a time and thus cause the claw to bleed.

Roller in a Bad Way.

G. B.—Your feeding leaves much to be desired, and is doubtless partly responsible for the bird's serious condition, though its age and the place where it is kept may also have something to do with it. On the latter points however, you say nothing. Keep it in a fairly warm place, where the temperature is not extremely variable, and quite free from draughts. Keep cage quite clean, and well strewn with clean, gritty sand, and let it be a fair sized box cage. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part rape as a staple, and give separately twice a week a few grains only of hemp, and three times a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it each time. Every second day give a small spray of watercress, or a scrap of banana, or some similar ripe fruit, and, if you have any, a mealworm on each alternate day would be most beneficial. In the drinking water give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for one day only, and after this give twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days twelve drops of chemical food by the same means. Then discontinue the medicine for a week, and give pure water during this interval, after which, if it appears necessary, begin again and give the same medicine for another week or fortnight Continue until the bird seems quite well; then go on to the ordinary general diet.

Breeding Mealworms.

C. B Morgan.—Get a wooden box, not less than six or eight inches deep, and of any size to suit your convenience; make all the joints secure from warpings, and close enough to prevent the very tiny young worms from escaping. Make the lid fit closely for same reason. Some breeders also nail a narrow strip of tin around the top of the sides and ends on the inside to prevent the worms creeping to the top, but this I never found of much practical use. Half fill the box with sundry scraps and cuttings of old flannels and woollens, pour in sufficient bran and various meals to cover the bottom to a depth of a couple of inches, turn in fifty or a hundred mealworm beetles (this is the quickest method of getting a stock of your own), or a few hundreds of worms; fasten down the lid, and keep the box in a fairly warm place. Every few weeks the box should be opened to see if more food is required, and at these times a few solitary drops of water may be scattered about the top. Do not, however, add any appreciable moisture, and never put in any kind of animal substances. In about twelve months you will have mealworms of your own raising. It is very slow work starting a supply. Some of the largest and fattest mealworms, by the bye, I ever saw, I raised myself on coarsely ground oats, husk and meal thrown in box altogether as the only food.

Rollers Not Rolling.

G. W.—Your diet is all wrong, and is quite sufficient to ruin the health as well as the song of any Canary. Still, irrespective of this, I am inclined to think your birds are two hens. Keep cages clean and see they are quite free from red mites. Do not keep them too near the fire by day, or they will miss it too much in the small hours of the morning. At the same time find a place for them where they will be tolerably comfortable and away from all draught. Feed on a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple. Twice a week give a few grains of hemp, separately, and twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, well mixing four drops of sherry with the latter each time you give it for the next three or four weeks. Give a small sprig of watercress two or three times a week. Give nothing else in the way of food for the next three or four months. In the drinking water for two days give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and after that four drops of tincture of steel in the water twice a week for a fortnight. If they do not make any pretence at singing after a month of this treatment, I should say they are certainly hens. It would, of course, be an advantage if you could let them hear a good singer. If they are cocks the tuition will do them good as well as incite them to emulation, and if they should prove to be hens no harm will have been done.

Bird Fainting.

Novice.—This is due solely to a highly-strung nervous condition, and nothing you can do in the way of administering drugs will be of the slightest benefit. A good many Canaries are affected in this way more or less, and when it gets excessive, as it is in your bird, there is always a certain risk of the bird dying suddenly from fright when anything is being done about it. The best thing you can do is to gradually accustom the bird to seeing you near its cage, and, at first, just lightly touch the cage very often with the tip of your finger, every now and again leaving a tiny scrap of tempting green food behind, and when the bird takes no notice of the touch, and appears to look out for the tit-bit, gradually go on to take more and more liberties with the cage. When you are going to clean its cage first hang a tempting spray of watercress in the wire, and let him begin to eat it, or hold a spray in your lips for him to see whilst you clean it, and when replacing the sand tray, put a few grains of hemp or inga on the sand for him to see as the tray goes in. Never do anything about his cage in a hurried, flurried, or noisy manner. Go about everything with method and quietness, and "tweet" to him, trying to get him interested in your doings. I once had a Yorkshire affected almost as badly as your is, and tamed it for a pet. Once it got over its nervousness it was most fearless.

A Trio.

Sambo.—1. The seed sample you send is not English rape, which is much larger and black in colour. It seems to me like a very decent sample of German summer (sweet) rape. English rape is bitter to the taste. Charlock, a common substitute, is hot (mustardy) to the taste, and the husks have a shiny appearance. 2. It is a very good plan to let would-be Hybrid couples run together through the winter. 3. The hen Chaffinch has been known to breed with the cock Bramblefinch when in captivity, not though, in a cage, so far as I know, but in a fair-sized aviary.

A Good Chaffinch.

Bob.—I agree that your Chaffinch is a "good" bird to be so nice and quiet and take to captivity so kindly—I hope he is good in every sense of the word. Anyway, you have a bargain at ninepence. If a Chaffinch is not worth that, when in good plumage, then he is worth nothing at all. I can't recommend you to take the advice of the friend who told you to "give him some hemp seed." A little now and again is all very well, but hemp is not good as a regular thing—sunflower is much better. Let the stock mixture be: Canary and teazle three parts each, linseed, sunflower, summer rape, and charlock one part each. Maw, wild seed mixture, niger, thistle, dandelion, etc., can be given now and again, as a treat, with a mealworm or two every day or so. A little ripe fruit is often relished. I have never found Chaffinches very keen on green food, personally, though sometimes they'll nibble at a sprig. All sorts of live foods (flies, etc.) they delight in.

The Blackcap Warbler.

Blackie.—I think the price asked is very moderate, and as the Blackcap Warbler is in song you should certainly close the deal. They are not at all difficult to keep, providing only that their food is of good quality, and fairly well varied. The change of cage and situation would be sure to send him off song for a few days at least. The stock food should be that I recommend for small insectivorous birds, viz., powdered Osborne biscuit, three parts; best ants' eggs, two parts. dried flies and powdered silkworm pupæ, one part each; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, all the live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, small beetles, smooth caterpillars, green fly, ants' eggs, etc.) one can possible obtain as in season. To the above stock mixture I frequently add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, or part of a hard-boiled fresh egg, finely minced, and, more occasionally, a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Good cream cheese is a splendid food, too; give a little, finely chopped, and mixed, of course, with the above biscuit food, or just laid on top of it. Ripe fruit should also enter into the menu; banana, very ripe pear and apple, strawberries, grapes, elderberries, blackberries, raspberries, garden currants, etc., are all more or less appreciated—you will soon find out your bird's likes and dislikes. Remember that the Blackcap is passionately fond of fruit, which should enter freely into its dietary, either mixed with the soft food or, preferably, hung up in the cage, or wires, or given in a separate dish.

Russian & Siberian Goldfinches.

Putney.—I thought it would not be long before the annual query turned up relating to the treatment of foreign Goldfinches—the season has commenced. Your bird cannot be a genuine Siberian if it is so very little larger than an English Goldie—the real bird looks fully twice as big. No doubt you have a Russian; it is a bit early yet for Siberians. These foreign Goldfinches appreciate the same seeds and delicacies as our British Finch, but need indulging less freely with fattening, stimulating foods—especially so during hot weather. A good stock mixture now would be hemp and teazle, three parts each, canary two parts, and linseed one part, with just a slight sprinkling of charlock and summer rape. Give a little maw and niger frequently, also a good feed of white sunflower seeds (cracked if necessary)—not all at one time, of course, but one or other daily. Thistles, hardheads, dandelion, flowering groundsel and chickweed, wild seeds, etc., are all good for them, and appreciated. Many Siberians are lost through wrong treatment when first bought, owing to the unfortunate experience of the buyer. They are immediately put in a cage with food and water hung outside, consequently they starve or die of thirst, never before having seen a waterhole, much more should always be put inside to them, and it should be seen they get at the same. Ingn (niger) seed is their staple food during importation, and they must have an unlimited supply of this, and maw seed, at first. When they have got the taste for sunflower seed (it comes quickly, for they are very fond of it, and it is a grand food for them) gradually wean them off the niger. Should a bird seem to droop at any time, give it at once a dose of sulphate of soda for one day; as much as will lie on a shilling, dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water. Repeat the day after, if necessary. Follow this with a course of citrate of iron and quinine crystals, as a tonic, a tiny pinch (just a few granules) dissolved in the same quantity of water. Watch its effects on the bowels; it is constipating when given too strongly. Also, don't give grit freely at first. They will simply "gorge" it; and then comes trouble.

Colour in Finches.

Colonel.—Yun must not hastily assume that the exceptionally rich-coloured Goldfinches and Bullfinches you see on the show benches have been colour fed. As a matter of fact, colour-feeding has been rather to mar than to benefit a show Goldie. All the winners are birds selected originally because they were unusually brilliant in colour—a great point, this, in the making of a show-bird. Then, if they start to moult early, and finish in good time, and are well fed and tended, they are certain to retain this brilliancy (often in a more highly-polished form), after moulting in captivity. They improve appreciably in size, too; though here, again, it may be said that large birds are looked for in the first place. Plenty of wild seeds will help the Goldie to get "up in colour"; and the same, with a liberal addition of berries (black, privet, rasp, mountain ash, etc.), the Bullie. Some birds, of course, are given colour-food mixed among crushed seed.

Blackbird with Fits.

A.E.—Weakness is in all probability the cause of the fits, and the weakness is due to the improper fare provided for the bird. Dry bread is no earthly use as a food to keep a Blackbird in health; and even the other food you mention requires supplementing with other things. Unless you improve the bird's diet, you cannot hope to improve its health. Put a small teaspoonful of Parrish's chemical food in its drinking water daily for three weeks or so. A really first-class way to feed either Blackies or Thrushes is to give this stock mixture, which any good seller of bird foods will mix for you (store it in time): Game (or Pheasant or Partridge) meal, six parts; ground silkworm pupæ, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Get the game (or other) meal without grit. If you have any difficulty in doing so, finely crushed puppy cakes (or puppy meal) make an excellent substitute; or the "broken" biscuit obtainable from the grocer. If the latter be used, add an extra part of meat meal and silkworm pupæ. Damp quantity required for daily use with a little water, or grated raw carrot, or cold boiled potato, or finely chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season. Vary them frequently, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake, or half a hard-boiled egg, finely minced up, twice or so a week. Give three or four mealworms daily, and any other insects you can lay hands on, also ripe fruit and berries frequently, and according to season. Blackbeetles and snails (especially snails dropped into boiling water for a few minutes, then chopped up) are much relished.

Brevities.

In Same Room (A. Wilson).—One can never tell what individual birds may or may not do. My own experience, however, teaches me that it is invariably bad policy to have cock and hen of the same species in the same room, when paired to mates of another species.

What Bird? (T. Booker).—I should say your bird is simply a Lesser Redpoll with a tendency towards albinism. Redpolls, with more or less white feathers in their plumage, are not at all uncommon. I have seen several this season, including one with an all-white head.

Stock Food (Mavis).—For stock seed mixture, follow advice given "A Novice" this week.

Goldfinch Ailing (Perplexed).—Let the bird be in a fairly large cage by himself, and treat as advised "J. W. Saywell" this week, when, I think, you will find him brighten up again.

What Bird? (C. Hawker).—I think your bird must be the Hedge Accentor (commonly known as the Hedge Sparrow)—a bird many people are unfamiliar with. It is insectivorous, and should be fed on the lines advised "Blackie" this week; a little Canary seed is eaten with relish now and again.

All Together (W. Beal).—Am sorry, but I cannot hold out much hope of the successful breeding of Goldfinches, Linnets, and the like, in a spare room, all flying together. Your better plan would be to restrict the hens to Canaries, though a Bullie hen or two would be admissible.

A Hind Toe (Enquirer).—If you take off the hind toe, the bird will still be unable to grip the perch properly; its three front toes will simply slide off it. Get a piece of rubber tubing from a chemist (such as is used for feeding bottles), and run a small piece of this over the front toes, leaving the back toe inside—that is, carry it up the leg at the back. Leave this on for at least a fortnight, and when cut away, possibly the toe may then keep in its proper place.

A Question of Sex (A.L.N.).—They may all three be hens. To make absolutely certain of a cock Lesser Redpoll, an example with a red breast should be obtained.

Goldfinch Ailing (J. W. Saywell).—In two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, dissolve a small teaspoonful of citrate of magnesia (get an ounce or so from the chemist). Leave this on until bowels have been well moved, then in the same quantity of water give a small teaspoonful of best whisky or brandy daily, for two or three days. Let him have plenty of niger, maw, and thistle seeds to eat.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Grey Parrot Moping and Sick.

L. F.—I do not remember details of your previous query, but the symptoms you give all point to the bird having been improperly dieted. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps or any kind of animal food. If she will not eat sufficient of the dry seed mixture, give her a little maize daily, boiled till you can smash it between your fingers (leave it whole), strain all water away and soak into it half a teaspoonful of Parrish's Chemical Food. Give it a dose of Dinneford's Magnesia, one teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water and after an interval of two days repeat the dose. Do not leave the water in the cage, but offer it at intervals of say every two hours, and on each occasion permit it to have a good, but not excessive, drink. Seed mixture for the present: Canary and white millet, two parts each, oats, and hemp one part each, well mix and keep a supply continually in the cage; also a piece of cuttle-fish. Also supply at intervals ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuit and a little sponge cake may be given. Note.—Under any circumstances give the boiled maize for a month, or even a little longer; it only keeps fresh one day, and the food vessel must be scalded out for each occasion. If the bird gets very weak, a few sips of chilled water containing two or three drops of brandy or whisky will act as a useful stimulant. While I do not say the case is hopeless, much care will be needed if you are to save the bird. Keep it warm (not hot or too dry heat) and out of draught, and it probably will slowly recover condition.

Procuring Gouldian Finches.

P. H. Sellars.—There are very few, if any Gouldian Finches on the public market at the present time, and though I know of several aviculturists who have bred these birds I am rightly not permitted to mention any special dealer or breeder; you will readily see the force of this. Put an advert in our columns "Wanted, Gouldian Finches," and it would be almost certain to catch the eye of some of the above, and if they are disposed to part, you would hear from them. Am afraid the only way I can give you more definite advice is through the post; for conditions see rules. I hope you will have luck with your new hobby. You would find Masked, Long-tailed and Ruficne-tailed Grass-finches very handsome and interesting, though not so showy as the Gouldian Finches. The three first are perhaps the most robust species, and consequently the better for a beginner, that is if you are a novice at bird keeping.

Macaw in Moult.

W. A. N.—Before I can give you a definite reply you must repeat your query and tell me how you have been feeding and treating the bird generally. In the meantime, for one day only, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in two tablespoonfuls of water, and let it have nothing else to drink but this for one day, follow this, that is the next day and onwards, by making the drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's chemical food. Spray the parts of its plumage that it is in the habit of pulling, with quassia solution every other day, choosing the middle portion of the day to do this, and keeping it carefully out of draught till dry. The quassia will make the plumage distasteful and possibly check the feather pulling. Try and keep it occupied with, say, cotton reels, piece of branch, also a piece of cuttle-fish; it will probably chew up and toss these about and forget its plumage. If you supply the information asked for above I will try and help you further.

Amazon Parrot Query.

Anxious.—There are very few Blue-fronts that do not talk to some extent; continue to make a fuss of it, handle it often, talk to it in a general way regularly (drop the constant repetition method for a time), keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, in fact have it in your midst as much as possible. It will at any rate be almost one by itself if it does not utter a few words ultimately. The seed diet is more wholesome than the soft food; the usual seed mixture (as advised in this column), with ripe fruit, plain biscuit, nuts, and a little green food will suffice to keep it in health. As it is a young bird, it will assist it to develop if you make its drinking water the colour of pale port wine with Parrish's chemical food for a couple of months, or even longer, giving it clear water, say once a week. If there is any constipation, making the drinking water just saline with Epsom salts for one day will give relief. Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food.

Breeding Moustache Parrakeets.

G. G.—I have heard quite talented talkers of this genus, and also others which did nothing but whistle a little and utter an occasional squawk. There is no reason why yours should not prove a talker if you take pains with it; keep it where it will hear plenty of conversation, yet not where it will get scared every now and again by rapid movements in its vicinity; also teach it by constantly repeating to it short words and phrases, but you must keep at one word or phrase and not vary them till each is learned—there is no royal road, only patience and perseverance with training these birds. Your birds may be immature and may not attempt to breed for a couple of years. Give them a large cage and a small barrel or suitable size log nest, but I fear you stand little chance of success unless you can give them an aviary large enough for them at any rate to take a short fly, fix up a couple of nesting receptacles and watch with what patience you can for the birds to make use of them. Put out in the spring; they can be left out of doors all the year round. As regards diet the following mixture: Canary, hemp, maize, oats, wheat, dari and sunflower seeds, with ripe fruit, nuts, plain biscuits, and a little green food will suffice to keep them fit all the year round; cuttle-fish, grit and water for drinking and bathing must be regularly supplied.

Lovebirds and Parrakeets.

"Diogenes."—(1) Blue-winged Lovebirds, or more properly Passerine Parrakeets are certainly probable breeders in either indoor or outdoor aviaries, but they do not breed with the same freedom as Budgerigars; in fact the records of their breeding in captivity are comparatively few and far between, but I know of one instance of their rearing young to maturity in a comparatively small cage in a bird-room. (2) I never use saw-dust; it is not necessary if your nesting receptacles have concave bottoms, with the lowest part of same in the middle of the bottom of nest log, box, or barrel. I consider the very best nesting receptacle for a Rosella or similar size Parrakeet is a 4-gallon barrel, well cleaned out and hung up longitudinally. Of course if you use flat bottomed boxes you had better use a depth of say about three-quarters of an inch of sawdust, but even then some of the eggs will get from under the bird and spoil. It matters little whether they are under cover or in the open, I should supply both, and let them make their choice, but the boxes in the open must be weather-proof and the top should over-hang sufficiently to keep out driving rain, etc.

Procuring a Grey.

H. L. A.—You are quite right in your assumption; those poor birds which are fed on a bit of everything either come to an untimely end, or become miserable dyspeptics, and feather eaters. I cannot recommend special advertisers, so I am in a bit of difficulty to give you a definite answer. (1) Of course during cold weather, if it has to come a distance, the journey is rather a risk, yet this risk is taken all through the winter by birds going to and from shows, but these are packed under very best conditions, so unless you can get a good bird locally I should say wait till spring. (2) I can only refer you to advertisement columns, and say, do not buy a bird till you have seen it and have it on deposit system, and insist on a week's approval. Do not be tempted to buy a bird that has been improperly fed, however fit it looks; the mischief is there though latent, and the change of quarters and journey may be quite sufficient to put it in action. (3) The only Parrot I keep indoors is a Hawkheaded Caique, it is in the recess by fire place, and on the opposite side of the room to window, in the corner of the recess farthest from fire. Your bird, in my opinion, died (I am not questioning the P.M. in the least) from the effects of the insanitary conditions of importation, such infection often remains latent for several weeks before becoming apparent. This is the difficulty, with getting young greys, you lose several before you manage to get one established. If I have not met your need—it is the best I can do in this column—you must repeat query, and have a reply per post.

Keeping Budgerigars Outdoors.

J. M. P.—(1) It is poor policy to overcrowd, or even to fill up your accommodation to begin with. If you have any luck with the birds, and you are full up, some of the young get maltreated because they are "treading" on one another's toes" as it were. I should advise not more than three pairs to begin with, and procure each from a different source; then the progeny of the respective pairs would be unrelated, and could be safely left to interbreed without any fear of deterioration of stock. Why not put in a pair of Rosellas with your Budgerigars? (2) Hall's washable distemper is about the best in my opinion, and a pale sea green shows up most species of birds, as well as any, and this is what I advise. (3) Of course newly imported birds cannot be put into an outdoor aviary at this time of year, but if you get your stock from various out-door aviaries as you see them advertised, they are better without artificial heat than with it. However as you are establishing your stock, there can be no harm in your using a little heat the first winter, but do not raise it above 50 degrees F. by artificial means.

Brevities.

Bicheno's Finch (F. T.).—I fear the particulars I can give are very meagre, but I will try and get you fuller particulars. This charming, but delicate (when first imported) little Finch is named after James Ebenezer Bicheno. Who shall say how a name should be pronounced? Rightly or wrongly I have always called these chaste little birds Bich en o Finches!

What Bird? (W. Baker).—I confess to being completely "tied up" with your description; could you make a rough diagram (no matter how rough) showing the approximate shape and bulk of the bird, getting shape of bill as near as you can? Then mark in patches the colour areas, either lettering the various patches, or drawing a line from each extending outside the diagram, at end of which place name of colour. I should say it was some very uncommon species, but if you will kindly supply diagram I shall be able to get over the difficulty.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A Special Prize (R. Ellwood).—No doubt the money prizes were referred to. These specials seem always to give secretaries trouble. Why not drop a postcard direct to the secretary concerned in your particular case?

Question of Carriage (E. Wade).—Under the circumstances described, we do not quite see how you can be held liable for the carriage on the outward journey.

Evesham Show (E. M. B.).—We are very much obliged to you. A report had, however, been arranged for.

Husk Catchers (A. Spencer).—This matter was fully dealt with in our issue of October 31st last.

Photographs (C. J. Mulligan).—Shall be pleased to receive the photographs, and to publish one of them if suitable for reproduction in our columns.

Dead Birds (A Working Man).—Like many other readers, you do not seem to understand that the law of libel obtaining in this enlightened country will not permit the publication of letters such as the one you send. Further, for birds delivered dead, you are entitled to claim up to 5/- each from the railway company. Whether the birds were dead when packed is not a matter we can decide; the railway company must look after its own interests.

Value of Special Prize (F. Myers).—We think this is a matter which concerns only yourself and the society. It is difficult to see how the latter can be blamed for something given by a third party, and which probably was never seen until the time came for despatching it. Why not voice your feelings direct to the secretary?

A Dinner (H. W. Cook).—We should think the best step you could take would be to write direct to your fellow secretaries, and let them bring your proposal to the notice of their members.

FAVERSHAM.

Our section was not a large one at the show of the Ospringe and Faversham F.A., which was held in the Manor Hall on November 24th and 25th. Some very useful exhibits turned up, and the entry was fairly good. Messrs. H. C. Wright and J. Lambert were the members of the committee specially responsible for our section, and they attended to their duties well, whilst Mr. W. C. Bray made a most excellent secretary. Mr. C. A. House judged.

NOR. YELL. (6): 1, spl best in show, Lambert, very nice shaped, rich level-coloured bird of good feather; 2, Wm. Attaway, splendid shape and nice even colour; 3, Wraight, capital colour and feather, good shape; 4, Cornelius; hc, Allen. BUFF (7): 1, 2, 3, Lambert, slashing clear, rare shape and feather, a variety of most excellent colour and quality, and a capital eye and wing marked; 4, hc, Coruelius; vhc, Allen; hc, Attaway. NON-FED (6): 1, 2, Attaway, two topping yellows, of rare shape and nice silky quality of feather; 3, vhc, he, c, Keen, variegated, buff, rare shape and quality. YORKS. CORRESPONDENCE.

THE SAID-TO-BE CANARY-CHAFFINCH MULE.

SIR,—I don't like asking for space in your valuable paper to reply to Mr. Verrall's twaddle re my bird, so I shall let the matter drop. But I will write you later and tell you what birds I have had fertile eggs from this season; perhaps it will open his eyes.

JUDGE BAITING EXTRAORDINARY.

SIR,—At a recent metropolitan show, an exhibitor, who is fast attaining notoriety as a bad loser, surpassed himself. Exhibiting in five classes, he had been awarded two firsts, two seconds, three thirds, and special for second best bird in section. Getting second and third in one class, he, in the presence of many fanciers, somewhat irately demanded of the judge why the second bird was placed in front of the third? A quiet but convincing reason to everybody but himself was given. "I will never show under you again," quoth he. Should he go further and fare worse, what will happen to the unfortunate judge?

QUERIST.

A PUZZLE FOR OUR READERS.

Where Ought They to Compete?

SIR,—I shall be much obliged if some of our champion exhibitors will tell me what classes the following birds should be exhibited in:—No. 1, yellow cock, ticked both eyes; No. 2, yellow hen, marked on head and a feather in either side of tail; No. 3, yellow hen, slightly grizzled on both wings. The yellow cock was exhibited in the unevenly marked cock class, and the head and tail marked hen was shown in the unevenly marked hen class. But the judge said they were both in the wrong classes. The hen slightly grizzled on both wings was shown in the yellow ticked class, and the members came to the conclusion that if it is grizzled on both wings it is a ticked bird. The following was the classification:—1: Clear or ticked yellow cock, cinn. or green; 3: unevenly marked yellow cock, cinn. or green; 5: clear or ticked yellow hen, cinn. or green; 7: unevenly marked yellow hen, cinn. or green.

BABY BRITISHERS AT LEYTON.

SIR,—Your correspondent in last week's CAGE BIRDS puts his question in "Twitterings" so pointedly that there is no evading a reply. The above class arrived at the show in charge of their fond Mamas, but, unfortunately for me, too late for competition. Now, sir, you cannot tell a good Crest-bred or a baby without handling (I object to the use of the word "nursing" on the part of your correspondent), and I claim to be experienced in handling both. Speaking from memory, the above exhibits were quite up to the high standard one expects to see at Leyton, and I had no difficulty in bracketing them equal first (in my mind, of course, for I did not take the mothers into my confidence). As I wended my way home I pondered on the wise dispensation that makes each baby born into this world better than its predecessor—it is ever the best baby in the world! May the Leyton babies grow up into good fanciers. I fancy your correspondent was not a disappointed exhibitor, but simply mad that he had nothing to compete in the same class. He has my sympathy.

J. S. CLARKE.

P.S.—This is my final and only reply on this subject. Fanciers who have written and telephoned please note!

LLANELLY SOCIETY AND A MISSING BIRD.

SIR,—I notice in CAGE BIRDS, Nov. 14th, a letter written by Mr. D. H. Tedstone, and what his object is I fail to understand, unless it be to damage the Llanelly Society. This is only one of many letter he has written to the Fancy Press about the great loss of birds he has sustained at various times, and that certain fanciers have helped him by lending him birds for breeding, and that now the Neath Committee has given him £1 1s. for his loss at their show. I have allowed his letters to pass without comment; but his continually bringing in Llanelly in all his communications calls, I think, for a reply. At the Llanelly show held last January, Mr. Tedstone entered his birds for competition. On his case being opened, one of his cages was found to be without a bird in it. Mr. D. A. S. Longden, the well-known judge and exhibitor, was the representative of the Welsh C.B. Club (of which Mr. Tedstone is the secretary) at the show. Mr. Longden, in his official capacity, assisted in unpacking the birds of the W.C.B. Club, and it was he who unpacked the birds belonging to Mr. Tedstone, when it was found that one cage contained no bird. I have received Mr. Longden's permission to use his name in making the above statement. The Secretary wired at once to Mr. Tedstone that one cage was empty, and received the following startling reply: "Is Mr. Beard, Llandrindod, at the show?" What that had to do with the missing bird is a problem we have so far failed to solve. The Llanelly Society is composed of fanciers who try and follow the old maxim, "Do unto others as you would like others to do unto you," and if the bird had been lost while in our charge we would have treated Mr. Tedstone fairly. Amongst Welsh exhibitors Mr. Tedstone's voluminous correspondence has become a by-word. Fearing that some of our English friends might think there was something wrong is my only reason for replying.

A YOUNG BIRD PROBLEM.

SIR,—Is there any means of telling a young bird that has been flighted and colour-fed from an old one? Can any reader say? This question is being asked, as at the last Plymouth show a protest was lodged against a Light Mule, shown as a 1908 bird, but which was colour-fed throughout, and which certainly gave it the appearance of an old bird. But the exhibitor said it was five months old, and he had flighted it himself. The Committee disallowed the protest, and awarded the cup to the bird in question, saying it was impossible to tell a young bird from an old one under such circumstances, and that the could only take the word of the exhibitor.

THE FORTHCOMING (1909) CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—Mr. Acland's letter appears a day after the last Committee meeting prior to the publishing of the schedule for above show. I am most pleased to inform Mr. Acland and the public generally that the following extra classes have been added to the schedule for the Jubilee Show:—

CANARY SECTION:—Lancashire Plainhead, Novice; Lancashire Coppy, Novice; London Fancy, Open; Frills, Open.

BRITISH BIRD SECTION:—Bullfinch Hen; Yellowhammer; Chough; any other species Insectivorous or Seed-eating, Resident or Migratory, Birds larger than the Grey Wagtail and Wheatear (these birds now being ineligible to compete in the two preceding classes).

FOREIGN SECTION:—All species of Tanagers.

With the addition of the above classes, the schedule stands as at last National Show. The great contest between the Norwich Plainhead Club and Southern Norwich Plainhead Club will be held at this show, with four extra cash prizes in each of the eight classes, and no extra entrance fee.

J. W. RAMSDEN, Show Manager.

BIRDS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN PURPOSELY "OVERLOOKED."

SIR,—I would like to call the attention of fanciers in and around the upperward of Lanarkshire, through the columns of your most valuable paper, to the treatment I received at Biggar Show on Nov. 21st. I sent two entries by the 7.30 a.m. train from Lanark on Saturday morning, which arrives in Biggar about 8.45 a.m., in plenty of time for judging, which was advertised to start at 10 o'clock. I went up in the afternoon to see the show, and what was my surprise to find that my birds had not been staged. I looked around the hall, which is by no means a large one, and could not find my box. I then went to the secretary and asked him if my birds had not arrived. He told me that he had not seen them, and that they must have went astray on the railway, as they had not come. I went to the station and enquired for my box; the clerk told me that it had arrived that morning and been taken along with eight others to the hall. I went back to the hall and there, sure enough, was my box, not 3 yards from the door. Now I come to the business I should like to have cleared up. As I packed my birds at 6.30 on Saturday morning, they had had nothing to eat or drink since dusk (say 5 p.m.) on Friday night, and it was close on 3 p.m. on Saturday afternoon when I took them out of the box. If, as the secretary says, they had been overlooked, then they were without seed or water for 22 hours, a thing, sir, which I don't believe, as I stood beside them for over an hour after I had unpacked them, and they never attempted to drink or pick, which proves that the birds had been taken out of the box and allowed to feed. I called the attention of several gentlemen present to the fact, and they agreed with me that the birds had been feeding all right. Moreover, the bottoms of the cages were strewn with husks of seed, and I will take my oath that they were perfectly clean when I packed them. I don't blame the secretary for this, as he came and apologised and returned my entry fee. But I do say that if some of the Biggar fanciers are afraid of outside competition, the best thing they can do is to run a show confined to Biggar alone. That they then would be liable to swindle each other is the belief of JOHN REILLY, JUNR.

RETIREMENT OF AN OLD, RESPECTED BRITISH BIRD JUDGE AND FANCIER.

Some Details of Mr. Cook's Career.

Last week we were called upon to announce the retirement of Mr. Sam Cook, one of our oldest and most respected lovers of British birds, and well-known as a judge. It gives us pleasure to put before readers a few details of his career, which have been very courteously supplied by Mr. Cook himself.—EDITOR.

SIR,—With pleasure I comply with your request to send you a short account of my life and exhibiting; also judging. I was born on the 30th July, 1839, at Walnut Cottage Manor Place, Walworth Road, London, S.E. (near the Surrey Gardens). I have kept cage birds of all descriptions from childhood, also pigeons of many varieties. I have now set up in my possession a black Baldhead pigeon that my father tossed up at Brighton when I was about 12 years of age, and which a cat pounced upon and killed as soon as it returned home. I always kept an old loaded pistol ready to destroy cats; and as soon as the cat in this instance caught the pigeon, I shot it dead. Of course there was a bit of trouble over the matter, but, boy-like, I argued the cat should not have killed my pigeon; so the matter ended. At that time I worked with my father, who was a bricklayer, born in Walworth Road. I continued to do so until the Labour Strike commenced in 1859, when, as there was no work to be done, I applied to Sir R. Mayne, Metropolitan Police, for a position in the force, and on 18th June, 1860, I was appointed a police constable of the D Division—Station, Marylebone Lane. At the end of December, 1864, I was promoted to sergeant, and pensioned from that rank on 24th January, 1885, at the rate of £65 17s. 4d. per annum. So you see my bird craze was not my living, as some persons think it was. Not that there is any disgrace to belong to the Fancy, as some folks consider. On 10th January, 1871, I married, and moved into my present address in May, 1871. I had only one brother, named James, and he died in 1839, so readers of CAGE BIRDS will understand that the Cooks who are now exhibiting cage birds are no relations of mine, as has often been suggested when I have judged at some of the shows.

I commenced exhibiting in June, 1874, at a bird show (called the East London Show) held at the opening ceremony of a new infant school in Wellclose Square, E., by T.R.H. the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, and promoted by the Rev. Dan Greatorex. The birds were judged by Messrs. Jenner Weir and E. Sandell. I exhibited a dark Canary-Linnet Mule that I bred, and was awarded h.c. Of course that led on to further attempts in after years. I shall now just take out some of my winnings at the Crystal Palace, and only name the other places. I exhibited at the Crystal Palace from 1874 until 1896 continuously, except in 1875 and 1876. In 1874 I got c for dark Linnet Mule. In 1877—14 entries—I got two vhc's and one c. In 1878, 1 entry, 2nd Goldfinch in a class of 62 birds. The same bird was awarded 1st Weymouth and Bournemouth, 2nd Kingston-on-Thames, 2nd Cardiff, 2nd Oxford. 1877, 1st Dorchester and Reading. 1878, besides one vhc and four hc's. In 1879 24 entries, 1st Skylark, in addition to two vhc's, two hc's, and one c. In 1880, 30 entries, 1st Skylark, 3rd Gold and Greenfinch Mule, besides three hc's. In 1881, 19 entries, three vhc's and three c's. In 1882, 7 entries, 1st prizes with Redpoll, Siskin, and Lesser Whitethroat, and one vhc. In 1883, 19 entries 2nds Silver Grey Starling and ordinary Starling, two vhc's, and two hc's. In 1884, 24 entries, 1st Whinchat, 2nd Grey Wagtail, 3rd Blackcap, 4th Stonechat and Grey Wagtail, 3rd Starling, one vhc, and one c, also silver medal for points. In 1885, 12 entries, one vhc, two hc's, and one c. In 1886, 9 entries, 3rd Bullfinch, 4th Starling, one vhc, and one hc. In 1887, 16 entries, 1st Starling and Grey Wagtail, 3rd Grey Wagtail, and one vhc. In 1888, 14 entries, 3rd Starling and four vhc's. In 1889, 8 entries, 2nd Lesser Whitethroat, 4ths Swallow and Song Thrush, and one hc. In 1890, 21 entries, 1st Pied Flycatcher, 2nd Swallow, and five vhc's. In 1891, 7 entries, 1sts Gold Crest and Swallow, 3rd Yellow Wagtail, 4th Blackcap, with two vhc's, also silver medal for Gold Crest and aviary for Swallow. In 1892, 6 entries, 1st Norwich Canary, 4th Red start, 1st Longtailed Tit. In 1893, 13 entries, 3rd House Martin,, 4th Sand Martin, 2nd Redstart, one vhc, and one hc. In 1894, 21 entries, 1sts Starling, Tree Creeper, and Redwing, 2nds Redpoll and Redstart, 3rds Woodlark and Nightingale, 4th Skylark, five vhc's, one hc, one c, and Crystal Palace silver medal. In 1895, 9 entries, 1st Nightingale, 2nd Redstart, 3rd Blackcap, 4ths Siskin and Grey Wagtail, with two vhc's. In 1896, 5 entries, 1st Robin, 2nds Siskin and Willow Wren, 3rd Lesser Whitethroat. I have also exhibited with success several times at shows in various parts of the country, viz., Cardiff, Isle of Wight, Bournemouth, Leek, Weymouth, Croydon, Gravesend, Faversham, Bristol, Watford, Bedford, Edinburgh, Canterbury, Winchester, Southampton, Sudbury, Norwich, Long Melford, Epworth, Burton-on-Trent, Croydon, Yeovil, Tonbridge, Oxford, Swindon, Reading, Farnham, Acton, Rochdale, West Kent, Wolverton, Cheltenham, Bedford, Egham, Brighton, Ipswich, Pullborough, Tunbridge Wells, Bromley, Kingston-on-Thames, Northampton, Cirencester, Bath, Newbury, Southport, Lincoln, Coventry, London Cage Bird Society, L.C.B.A., Ware, Wakefield, Nottingham, South Manchester, Dorchester, Alexandra Palace, Aquarium, Lord's, and People's Palace. I have also judged at L. and P.O.S., L.C.B.A., Portsmouth, Lewisham, North London, City and Suburban, London and County, Stoke Newington, the British Bird and Mule Club Show held at Balham, and at Crystal Palace from 1902 to 1908, except in the year 1905. I have always taken a keen interest in birdy matters, and it was my intention to give up judging at the 1909 Crystal Palace Show, at the same time as my old pal, Mr. J. Hills: but as matters have turned out, it is not to take place according to my wish, hence the reason of my announcement of last week.

SAM COOK.

THE WINNING HAWFINCH AT NOTTINGHAM SHOW.

SIR,—It is being circulated amongst British bird exhibitors that the Hawfinch ("Midland Chief") that I am exhibiting this season, is the one that I exhibited last season, and which was claimed by Mr. Axe at the Scottish National Show. Exhibitors are under the impression that I have bought it back from him. I wish to contradict it. The bird I am exhibiting is one that I selected out of twenty young birds that I had last season, and have moulted it myself.

H. J. CHICK.

A TIP FOR SHOW SECRETARIES.

SIR,—I should like to offer a word of advice to those secretaries who, when sending the show labels out, tuck the flap of the envelope inside, and stick it to the enclosed label, affixing a halfpenny stamp on the envelope. On receipt of labels sent in this way recently I was surcharged a penny. The envelope had the word "sealed" written thereon by the postal authorities. I thought this was rather a fine point: an open envelope to be endorsed "sealed." I went to the post office and interviewed the postmaster on the subject, and that official informed me that, according to the regulations of the Post Office, that way of sending labels was not permissible, and that, although the envelope was not actually closed up, it was sealed against inspection. An unsealed envelope, he said, must be left so that the contents may be easily and readily withdrawn. The fact that this envelope contained a stiff label, the flap being stuck to it, made it so that it could not be easily withdrawn and replaced. Therefore, he contended, the inspection officer was quite right in marking it "sealed"; it was "liable to be charged at letter rate." I may say that during the fifteen years I have been exhibiting, I have received scores of labels sent in this way, but have never been surcharged before.

LEAVING EXHIBITS WITHOUT WATER AT THE SHOWS.

SIR,—I was pleased to see the letter from Mr. Woollard under the above heading in CAGE BIRDS. I think if show committees were to adopt the system used at Wolverhampton, of putting only a little water in each tin before judging—just enough for the bird to drink—we should very seldom read in reports: Number so-and-so, "good bird, bit thick," or, "had been bathing," or "might have won." After each class is judged a steward should be deputed to fill each tin up.

YELLOWHAMMERS AT GLASGOW & WEST OF SCOTLAND SHOW.

SIR,—I see from your report of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show that Number One in Class 85 (Yellowhammers) was disqualified for alleged trimming of head. Now, as the bird belongs to Mr. M. Craig, Glasgow, who is vice-president of the above club, and who passes as one of the leading judges and exhibitors of British, etc., I would like to give him a chance to defend himself, as this is the second time, to my knowledge, his exhibits have been disqualified under somewhat similar circumstances, the only difference being that the judge, Mr. M'Quiston, gave Mr. Craig's exhibit at Edinburgh (Scottish National) show last New Year the award all right, but an exhibitor lodged a protest against it for alleged trimming, and the bird was disqualified. Now, it is about time this offence was made punishable, and not winked at. What chance has the novice against such trickery? I think a good plan would be to debar offenders from showing or judging for a year for first offence, all monies and specials won at time of disqualification to be forfeited. I admire Mr. Cochrane for his pluck, as it shows he is outside all cliques. I am not one who wants any wrangling, but I could not let this slip, and if Mr. Craig puts forward a good defence and clears himself of any fraudulent intent, I would be the first to wish him success.

A. M'ALLISTER.

SIR,—Regarding the disqualified Yellowhammer at the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show, being a novice in the Fancy, I was at this show on the Friday night, and saw a ticket on Mr. Craig's cage, a "disqualified" ticket by the judge, Mr. Cochrane; also marked so on cage label. But on re-visiting the show on Saturday the "disqualification" label had been removed, and a new one put on in its place. Now, had this bird belonged to a novice like myself, the label would have had to remain, and it would have been reported in CAGE BIRDS as a warning to others. But apparently if you are in the clique you can fake as much as you like, and nothing be said in the matter. I think, whether you be manager or not, you should be exposed all the same, and more so as this is the second time he (Mr. Craig) has been disqualified. I think twice this year is too much for any man like him and nothing be done in the matter to stop it. I think if any novice like myself had been caught at the same game the second time he would not have been very long in seeing it well published. Kindly put this in CAGE BIRDS, as I am a lover of fair play.

T. ANDERSON.

P.S.—The other place Mr. Craig was disqualified at was the last Scottish National Show, as will be seen if one looks up the reports of that show.

(Our correspondent appears to overlook the fact that it was recorded in our report of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show that a Yellowhammer had been disqualified for alleged trimming of the head markings.—EDITOR.)

THE YORKSHIRE BOWL AT BRISTOL F.A. 1907 SHOW.

SIR,—I notice in CAGE BIRDS, dated Oct. 31st, a statement by Mr. G. T. H. Maggs, in which he complains of some person or persons trying to do his association an injury. Mr. Maggs goes on to state that for the last 17 years they have paid full prize money. Now, I beg to state that this is wrong; Mr. Maggs has not paid full prize money. Last year Mr. Maggs sent us a schedule, and even then we did not intend to make any entries until he sent us a begging petition, in which he said, "Do you not want to win some of these bowls?" Well, in order to dry his tears we made a few entries, and won the Bristol Bowl. But we have not seen the Bowl (We presume the Yorkshire Bowl is referred to.—EDITOR), nor have we received the prize money. I notice he has put the winners of that bowl in his schedule for every year previous to 1907, which year he has omitted, and this year he has not sent us a schedule. We suppose shame, or inability to cope with his business, prevented him. We are not surprised at this, for we have never had to do with a more dilatory set of men.

SIR,—Several fanciers of Hampstead and St. John's Wood wish to form a Cage Bird Society, as there are none near here. Five of us have held several meetings and have discussed the matter, so if any brother fanciers are of the same opinion will they please communicate with me.

THE THREE-TIER METHOD OF STAGING.

SIR,—I notice at Manchester and Nottingham shows a comment is made at each on the new staging, known as the Three-Tier Staging. I am very surprised the men of Manchester and Nottingham have worked upon the drawings supplied by me, and have not had the manners to say, "Thank you." Although they have not the correct thing, the principle they have been able to obtain from the part drawing I supplied them with. I am the original designer and maker of the staging now known as the "Three-Tier Staging." I claim it is the best staging ever designed for a Cage Bird show. Now, seeing it is very probable that the Crystal Palace Show next year will be an extraordinary show as far as numbers, I make them this offer: if they would care to have the use of one dozen standards I shall be pleased to lend them, by their paying the carriage each way. This will give another attraction, and will also show the men of Manchester where their mistake is.

ALLEGED TAMPERING WITH BIRDS AT BERWICK SHOW.

A Reward Offered.

SIR,—I shall be glad if you will draw the attention of your readers to my advertisement under Borders, offering a reward, under the following circumstances:—I got four of my birds' drinking water tampered with at the late Berwick Show, and one of the birds has since died, viz., the Newcastle and Wallsend winner. The true version of the case is, that immediately I arrived at Berwick on Thursday, about 2 o'clock, I saw that they were "soft," and while standing looking at the buff cock I saw that he only dipped his beak in the water. After smelling and tasting it, I felt that someone had tampered with it. I informed Mr. Hay and a few others. I have sent the dead body on to your Mr. North for post-mortem examination, and trust he may be able to let me know the drug which has brought the bird to this untimely end. I think this is the most inhuman and dastardly trick that could be played on any harmless creature, and I will spend my last penny to bring the perpetrator to his deserts—if I can only keep my hands off him. I go into Berwick to-morrow to see the Chief Constable, and I hope to put him on the right track. I will leave no stone unturned to do so. What is my luck to-day might be some other fancier's to-morrow, and the sooner it is stopped the better.

ALLEGED UNJUST DISQUALIFICATION AT EDINBURGH EASTERN DISTRICT O.S. SHOW.

SIR,—You might be good enough to grant me a small space in your valuable paper to try and clear my character before my brother fanciers. The facts are as follows:—I have been a member of the Edinburgh Eastern Club for the past few years, and my hobby was the keeping of British birds, but latterly I have gone in for a few Norwich and Border Fancies. At last year's show I heard some visitors remarking that my birds would have been improved if they had been washed. Not being an expert in this line, I resolved to get a friend of mine to do the needful this year. Having had a fairly good breeding season with the Canaries, I thought of last year's remarks re dirty birds, so I enlisted the services of my friend (who also gave me the loan of some Norwich and Border show cages), and he washed every bird I intended sending to the show. I took up the birds the night previous to the show. Immediately I took the first bird out to stage it (a yellow Border), one of the members turned round and said I had never bred a yellow bird this season. But I at once said that I had bred scarcely anything else. On going to the show the next morning, what was my surprise to see all my cage labels with a pencil mark through them? On asking for an explanation, I was informed that it had been reported to the committee that I had brought birds for competition which were not my own breeding. I may also state the birds were never judged, being disqualified before that time. Now, Mr. Editor, I am prepared to pay to any charity £5 if anyone can prove that I have done such a thing. I have every intention of putting my case into the hands of a lawyer to try and vindicate my character in the eyes of the public, and fanciers in particular.

THE CAGE BIRD UNION ANNUAL MEETING.

SIR,—The Union's year expires at the end of January, when the Delegates' Annual Meeting should be held, and in accordance with the resolution passed at the last meeting, the delegates themselves are to select the venue of the meeting. I should be glad of suggestions from the delegates as to when and where the meeting shall be held, so that, if necessary, I may take a vote on it. Secretaries should also note that any notices of motion or suggestions which their members may wish to have brought forward for discussion at this meeting, should be sent to me two months before, as copies of same are to be sent to all affiliated societies six weeks prior to the meeting, to give them an opportunity of discussing the suggestions. Referring to your correspondents letters re Union members exhibiting at non-Union shows, if the writers, or any other members of the Union, will notify me, or any of the delegates, of the names of the offenders, they can be dealt with. The matter of judges officiating at non-Union shows is one the Union has not taken up. The judges themselves can deal with this by suggesting that the show should be under C.B.U. Rules; this I know has been done in many instances.

THE VALUE OF BIRDS AT NOTTINGHAM SHOW.

SIR,—On reading your report of Nottingham Show, I noticed the remark re the value of the birds. I have been looking through the catalogue, and I find the total number of birds entered 723; of these 563 have the selling price stated, and the value comes to £6,855 6s. 6d., being an average of £12 3s. 6d. per bird. The highest class total was that for 16, Buff Dark Crests, which came to £429 10s. The two next highest were also in the Crest section; then came class 6, Buff Unflighted Norwich, £232 9s. Taken on the whole, the Crest section totalled £2,749 9s. 6d. Glancing through the names of those who sent birds, and did not state the price, I find the following, all of whom got amongst the prizes: Messrs. Severn, Cooper, Beardall and Walker, Fox, W. H. Howe, Dr. Herd, Smithurst, T. J. King, G. Colledge, Dobson and Son, Taylor, Burgess, Barnes, E. Godley, Bently, Birchley, and Millsum. Truly a formidable lot, and I feel sure had their birds been included the average would be 33 per cent. higher. I trust these few figures will be of interest to your readers, and I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

AN EXPLANATION FROM SUNDERLAND SHOW.

SIR,—Allow me to explain to exhibitors at Sunderland Show who did not receive their catalogues on Saturday morning that it was through no fault of ours. All catalogues ordered were posted on Friday night, as soon as we received them from the printers. We had two of them weighed, and were told by the post office people that they would only require a halfpenny stamp. I was very much surprised and annoyed to receive on Saturday morning a note from the post office stating that 33 of the catalogues had been held back for being insufficiently stamped, while the remainder of them had been passed as correct. I trust that this explanation of the non-arrival of catalogues will be satisfactory to exhibitors. I may say that Saturday night at Sunderland was a very wild one, the wind and rain being something terrific, and the committee very wisely decided to detain many of the exhibits until Sunday night. The birds detained were all staged at one end of the room, and carefully attended to during Sunday by the secretaries and members of the committee, who despatched them all on Sunday night, with the exception of those birds which they were requested to hold over until Monday morning.

W. REID, Joint Hon. Sec.

THE LATE ENTRY NUISANCE.

SIR,—Every week when looking through CAGE BIRDS I am struck with the increasing number of shows extending dates and appealing for entries. Each year this gets worse, and an increasing number of shows have to resort to "whip-up" cards and late advertisements. Now, I wonder if exhibitors realize the immense amount of extra work, to say nothing of the worry, they give to show secretaries? Unfortunately, show officials cannot afford to stick to a hard and fast rule and not accept late entries, or I am afraid some of our shows would not require much staging for the cages. Take for example our late (Cheltenham) show of 509 exhibits. The entries were advertised to close a week before, and on the Friday—four days after the date of closing—I had received 180 entries; Sunday brought 200, and Monday (two days before the show) 100 more, some actually arriving by the last post. Now, how on earth do exhibitors think the catalogues are to be made up and the labels sent out? As it happened, I managed to get all off in time, and we have a most long-suffering printer, or we could never have managed. I suppose all, or nearly all show secretaries, are like myself, engaged in business all day and can only give a few hours at night to the show work. I can quite imagine someone saying, "More fool they to do it"; granted, but if it wasn't for fools like us there wouldn't be any shows for wise men to send their birds to. Let me, in conclusion, for the sake of the shows still to be held, urge exhibitors to send their entries in by the date advertised. It will save so much anxiety, so many mistakes, and so much working till the small hours of the morning.

VETERAN JUDGES AND THE CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW.

SIR,—If there is anything of sentiment in connection with the last judging engagement of the ever-popular Joe Hills at the Jubilee Show at the Crystal Palace, one wonders what must have been the feelings of the Committee who elected the judges when they turned adrift the next veteran of the C.P., co-worker, exhibitor, and judge, the time-honoured, time-tried, Sam Cook. For such a one to be thrown out at the culminating year of his long career in connection with the Palace and nearly all London shows, seems to me to be a mortal cut at sentiment in connection with the show and those connected with it. I can remember an instance when Mr. Cook was elected over the veteran Mr. Hills, and with true sporting chivalry at once retired in favour of Mr. Hills. Why other judges with a few months' experience in comparison should be elected in his place is beyond my comprehension. In view of the show being the Jubilee Show of the Crystal Palace, and the other circumstances, all differences (if any), personal (if any), judging qualifications (if any), monetary considerations (if any), should have been waived, and his honoured name should have been side by side with that of Mr. Hills at their Last Post. As Mr. Ramsden must admit, there is nothing wanting in qualification, personal, or otherwise, to have prevented his being elected to judge at the Jubilee Show at the C.P., and I know I am not alone in thinking that he was morally entitled to the appointment.

NUTHATCH.

A POINT ABOUT THE RETURN OF POSTAL ORDERS.

SIR,—We advertised a bird for 5s. in CAGE BIRDS, and by return we got a big batch of letters, many containing P.O.'s, but none of them contained a stamp for reply. It would cost us over 5s. to answer all and send back P.O.'s, so that if we do so, we still lose the price of our advertisement, and get nothing for the bird. Are we bound to send back the P.O.'s?

WELSHMEN.

(Our correspondents are not legally compelled to return the postal orders unless a stamped envelope is sent for the purpose. They should forward a postcard to each of the senders, stating that the bird has been sold, and that their postal order will be returned on receipt of three-halfpence in stamps, failing which they will cash the order and return the balance after deducting poundage and postage. —EDITOR.)

Several letters unavoidably held over.

YORK.

Usual contest held at the Crown inn, North-street, November 21st, when 12 birds competed. Result: 1, Wilson; 2, Lamhert; 3, Smith; 4, Massheder. Judge, Mr. W. Perry; timekeeper, Mr. Cooper.—J. W. SMITH, Hon. Secretary.

LEEDS.

Usual contest held at Shannon-street, Leeds, November 21st, when 19 birds sang. Judges, Messrs. Fisher and Towers. 1st and 3rd, Hardcastle; 2nd, Stead. Also November 22nd, when 27 birds sang. Judges, Messrs. Summers and Cooper. 1st, 2nd, 4th, Stead; 3rd, Hodgson.—WILSON NAYLOR.

PENTONVILLE, N.

At the Bee Hive, Cynthia-street, Pentonville-road, during the week, some good singing was heard. Messrs. Uncle, Mabbitt, Tommy Burns, Meacock, and Morrison proved winners. Handicap, marble clock for Chaffinches next week.—WM. MORRISON, Time, keeper.

ROLLERS AT LEEDS.

The first of a series of contests which are to take place fortnightly at the King's Head, Shannon-street, Leeds, was held on November 23rd, at 8. Being interested in Rollers, I wended my way to Shannon-street, where I found a large number of exhibitors and fanciers had turned up to hear the birds exhaust their "repertoire," some of them doing so in a pleasing manner. Being only a listener, I did not know all the exhibitors' names, but gathered that the 1st prize went to a Mr. T. Horner, a lovely, soft, pure-toned bird, with a beautiful bass roll, in particulars which made this bird an easy winner. The 2nd and 3rd prizes went to birds which were rather shorter in their tours. The judges gave every satisfaction. Some real good may come out of these contests if Roller Fanciers will turn up in good numbers. On making inquiries, I gathered from one of the judges, Mr. C. Cooper, that the birds are judged for length of tours, purity and form, or as some present termed it, length turns, and form or delivery. The birds were judged in a similar manner to the method adopted by the B.R.C.C., only much quicker, ten minutes being the time allowed for the birds to sing. Thus ended quite a pleasant evening.—C. TOWES.

AYR.

The Ayr O.S. held their 47th exhibition and competition on Nov. 21st, in the Volunteer Hall, Alloway Street. This society, having dropped the poultry section, had ample accommodation for all exhibits and visitors and on that account alone this old established show must be voted a success. The hall is a lofty one, well lighted and cosy. Unfortunately the weather was of the most unconcenial sort, and was the cause of a very poor and disappointing "gate." The club is run by a hard-working class who cannot afford to run the show except on self-supporting principles. The officials and committee are a most enthusiastic and energetic body, and we congratulate them on the very careful manner in which they attended to the staging and comfort of the exhibits. It was unfortunate that pressing business should have compelled the unavoidable absence of the secretary, Mr. Thomson, but this misfortune only made it more apparent what a hard working and capable official is the respected president, Mr. Colin Paterson, who seemed to be in two or three places at one and the same time. Mr. James Smellie (Riccarton) judged the Canary classes, and Mr. P. McQuilston (Ayr), all other classes, and their awards met with general approval. The quality of the exhibits was, on the whole, very good indeed.

BLACKWOOD.

Blackwood O.A. held their fifth annual show in the Southfield Hall and St. John's School, on November 21st. The show was open to all-comers. The entries were in excess of last year's, and the quality showed a splendid average. In the Scotch Fancy classes were some grand-sized birds; Borders were strong in numbers, and the quality good. Office-bearers: President, Mr. S. Pate; vice-president, Mr. J. Hamilton; treasurer, Mr. J. Jackson; secretary, Mr. James Ritchie; committee, Messrs. Pate, Chalmers, Carr, Hamilton, Muir, Hardy, Johnstone, Buchanan, Hainey, Brownlie, Walker, Marshall, Lynch, Sommerville, Clayton, and Small. The caged birds were staged in the schoolroom, which for light is perfect; but the accommodation is limited, there being a large turn-out of visitors. The exhibits were nicely staged, the management making the very best of it under the guidance of the secretary, Mr. James Ritchie, to whose efforts the success of the show was largely due. Mr. D. Holden (Muirkirk) judged the nine Scotch Fancy classes; Borders were handled by Mr. J. Thomson; Norwich, of which there was a grand array, and British were judged by Mr. Allan Chalmers. Those gentlemen got through their tasks in good time, their judgment in placing the winners being well received. For the best hen in the Scotch Fancy section the silver medal was won by Mr. Joseph Higgins; for most points in Scotch Fancy section a silver jelly dish was won by Mr. J. Burnside. In the Border section the silver cup and medal for best Border in show was won by Mr. J. Brownlie. The B.F.C.C. silver medal for best Border in show (confined to members) was also carried off by Mr. Brownlie. There were 31 classes for cage birds. The show was a complete success.

MORRISTON.

Held November 18th. Fine weather favoured this fixture, which was very well attended. Morriston Society are in a strong financial position, which, after this year's success, should be further enhanced. The number of entries far surpassed last year's total, and the quality in most classes was much above the average. The Nor., Yorks., and Borders were very strong, and in Mules, British and Foreign competition was very keen. Thanks to Mr. D. Jeremy, the able and courteous secretary, and his capable assistants, things were neatly and quietly carried out, and every exhibit received every possible attention. Mr. Jeremy is undoubtedly the right man in the right place, and is deserving of every praise. His committee consists of the following: Messrs. D. M. Powell (chairman), Henry Lewis (vice-chairman), Williams, Lewis, Longdon, G. Phillips, Kirby, Jones, Morgan, Rees, Wilcox, Stamp, T. Phillips, and Jenkins. Some of the cruck exhibitors were represented with clinking teams. The Society are to be congratulated on their choice of a hall; the light was good, and every exhibit in the place could be properly seen without the necessity of handling. Messrs. H. W. Battye and J. B. Evans judged, the former doing the Canaries and the latter the remainder. Satisfaction seemed to be the order of the day.

GALASHIELS.

Galashiels O.S. held their 48th exhibition and competition on November 21st, in the Volunteer Hall, a most suitable hall for the occasion, it being lofty, large, and well lighted from the roof. It is also very free from draughts. Galashiels has always held a premier position as a Scotch Fancy show, and this one upheld the reputation. There was a good muster of Scotch fanciers. Exhibitors from all parts generally meet here, and they were in attendance in goodly force. Mr. McLennan had the pleasure of being the successful exhibitor to win the cup for best Scotch Fancy. The cup thus becomes his own property, he having won it three times in succession. Norwich and Borders turned out in fairly good numbers, although we have seen larger entries of them here; but quality was well represented. Entries totalled about 260 in all, this being somewhat shorter than last year's, which is a pity, as a harder working secretary than Mr. Alex. Smith and his committee it would be hard to meet with. President, Mr. A. Tod; secretary, Mr. A. Smith; assistant secretary, Mr. J. Brown; treasurer, Mr. C. S. Denny; committee, Messrs. Park, Welsh, Stark, Fox, Melrose, Cleghorn, Crosbie, Morrison, Ford, Gray, Brown, Tait, Deans, Brydon, Smith, Lugton, Melrose, Lees, Dobson, Gunbert, Lees, Litster, Lindsay, Keddie, Currie, Hislop, Pringle, Daggetty, and Whyte. These are well-known fanciers, and deserve great credit for the eneient manner in which the exhibits were staged and looked after. The following were the judges: For Scotch Fancies, Messrs. David Brown (Edinburgh) and Robert Wright (Greenock); for Borders, Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso); and for Norwich, British, etc., Mr. A. Hay (Tweedmouth), and their awards were generally well received.

DULWICH O.S.

The members of the Dulwich O.S. are to be heartily congratulated upon the success of their first open show in the Imperial Hall, East Dulwich, on Nov. 24 and 25. Nothing but success could be anticipated with a treasurer second to none in Mr. W. Goodwin, hon. secretaries of energy and experience like Messrs. Rogers and Muzzoni, and a committee of fanciers consisting of the following gentlemen: Messrs. G. F. Woolhouse (chairman), S. J. Kent (vice-chair), J. Foster, F. Cain, C. Mabey, R. Pocock, J. Smith, W. R. Wall, F. Waterman, J. Wilmot, R. Bruty, A. Rees. The society had adopted as its motto, "Progressive and up-to-date," and in all details of the show they had acted up to their professions. The hall is a splendid one; the arrangement of the staging was both convenient and comfortable, the light at night was splendid, the birds well cared for, every courtesy was extended to enquirers; indeed, all went merrily as a marriage bell. The entries were numerous, about 000 exhibits facing the judges. In the Norwich Plainheads were some grand exhibits, both in the open and in the members' classes, the rose bowl for best in open section falling to the well-known ticked yellow of Mr. Spillman's; the "You and I" challenge cup for best open Novice Norwich fell to a rattling buff shown by Mr. A. Keech. Yorkshires were splendid in quality, and the rose bowl for best in open section fell to a rattling clear buff shown by Messrs. Greaves and Crabtree. There were some topping birds in the open novice and members' classes. Mr. Mundell had something to do to "sort them." Crests and Crest-breds were not numerous in the open classes, but were good; entries in the open novice section were splendid. Borders came up well. The Mules, British and foreign made a grand display, both in point of numbers and quality. Mr. Vale, who judged, must have had a hard task. The members' classes in this section were also splendid. The attendance was excellent, many fanciers from all parts of London visiting the show, and we hope that success will attend the financial side. The committee, like all other mortals, could not command success, but did their best to deserve it. Mr. W. Mundell judged Yorks.; Mr. G. Gardner, Norwich; Mr. Robson, remainder of Canary classes; Mr. W. H. Vale, Hyb., Brit., and For.

Winners of extra specials were as follows:—In the open Yorks. section Messrs. Greaves and Crabtree won the rose bowl for best bird. In the open champion Crest section Mrs. Haysom won the rose bowl, also the spl for best ladies' exhibit. Messrs. Duncan and Logan won the rose bowl in the Border section, and Mr. C. T. Maxwell those in the open British and open Foreign sections. Gold medal for best Hybrid went to Mr. C. J. Ward.

Mr. W. H. Vale's Classes.

The small insectivorous British bird class was a picture, containing three Black Redstarts, besides Gold Crests, Jenny Wren, Pied Flycatcher, Nuthatch, etc. The Bird of Paradise was, of course, the chief attraction in the Foreign bird classes, and surrounded the whole evening by an admiring crowd. The Sulphur-breasted Toucan also came in for its share of admiration, as did the Green Jays, and the sweet little Cuba Finches. In the Hybrid section were noticeable the almost clear yellow Siskin Canary, and the Redpoll-Bullie, both gems of the first water. To find five Canary-Bullfinches in a class is surely remarkable.

SLIGO.

The eighth annual show in connection with the Sligo C.B.S. came off in the Town Hall on November 18th and 19th, when there were 287 exhibits in 36 classes, showing a decrease of 50 compared with last year's total. As this show was the opening of the competition for the Y.C.C. of Ireland Challenge Cups and also the N.P.C. of Ireland Cups, great interest was taken in both competitions. Entries from the latter club, however, came up somewhat badly. The Plainheads made a fine show, some real good ones being put down, especially the buff cock which took cup for best exhibit in show. Yorkshires made a grand display—130 birds in 13 classes facing the judge. Irish exhibitors are seemingly going to make the Yorkshires "hum." The novice Yorkshire classes were a grand lot. Mules came up fairly well, and the Britishers made a nice display; some of the Goldfinches, we believe, will do much better later on. But the classes did not seem to fill; why do not our southern exhibitors send birds out and support? They themselves get good support from Sligo. The secretary and show manager, Mr. C. J. Mulligan, had everything in proper order; the cards were up at 2 p.m., and catalogues and awards were posted at six to country exhibitors. Mr. H. S. Naylor (Bradford) judged, and gave every satisfaction.

HAMILTON.

The Hamilton Cadzow Onk O.S. held their annual show in the Town Hall, Hamilton, on November 21st. This hall is very suitable, being neither too large nor too small for the staging. We learned that the entries were about 150 less than last year's total, a fact that can only be accounted for by the presence of a show at Blackwood, which is but a few miles away, and also a show at Ayr, which also would contribute to the shortage. Norwich were not at all strong, there being only 74 in twelve classes. Crests and Crest-breds were really good and stronger, there being 80 in two classes. Mr. Muir, of Kilmarnock, judged these classes, to the satisfaction of everybody. Borders were not at all bad in quality, and although there were 116 in fourteen classes, one expected to see far more at a hot-bed like Hamilton, where this variety has many admirers. Messrs. Jas. Culderwood (Dumfries) and W. Hamilton selected the winners, to the satisfaction of the majority. Mules and Hybrids were good, both in quality and quantity. Britishers were strong in numbers. Messrs. J. Mason (Peebles) and J. Taylor (Greenock) were the judges of the Mules, British and Foreign, and their awards were well received. Mr. McQuiston's Bullfinch won special for best British bird. The show was opened by Provost Polloch, and was well patronised by the general public. Qrtr.-Mst.-Sergt. Cant makes a most admirable secretary, and no doubt the Society feel proud of him. The committee all worked well for the good of the show, and we thought it a pity their labour was not better rewarded than it was.

WHARTON WINSFORD (Cheshire).

The 4th annual open show of the Wharton, Winsford, and Dist. Society was held in the Town Hall on November 21st. The room is a splendid one for a show of this kind, being quite free from draughts. Our section was comfortably staged on the platform and along one side of the hall, and formed a very attractive and pleasing display. British always turn up in strong force at this fixture, a large number being kept by local fanciers. The Goldfinch class was a strong one, and contained some gems, as did also the Linnet class. The A.O.S. Small was a very interesting collection. The cage bird section was in the hands of Mr Hemmings, and right well did he attend to the wants of his charges. Mr. R. Ollier, as hon. secretary, is a gentleman of the right stamp for this post, attention to his duties and obliging to all being his motto. Mr. A. G. Davies judged.

SUNDERLAND.

A Magnificent Exhibition.

Sunderland C.B.A. held their 19th annual exhibition on Nov. 20 and 21, and it proved a record success. Norwich Fanciends opened the programme and brought together a splendid lot, every class being keenly contested, some real eye-openers being on view, and the honours were well divided. The unfeathered classes were heavy and contained some good ones likely to uphold their owners' reputation another year. Crests and Crest-breds were a grand collection, and here were seen some of the leading exhibits of the season. To pick them among the winners is a difficult task, but one cannot pass without comment the stormer shown by Mr. R. Armstrong, and rightly named "The King of Kings," a real topper for a youngster, with a marvellous head piece. Cinnamons followed, and such a collection has never been seen in the North before, many real good ones having to be left out altogether. The quality throughout was of a very high class order, while the winners were exceptionally good; a magnificent collection, in fact a show in themselves. Yorkshires were strong and contained the cream of the Fancy, many well-known winners again doing battle, the clear classes being extra good in quality. Borders were down in numbers, but the class of birds on view was good, Mr. Whitlaker having forward a good team. He won the B.F.C. medal with a good buff cock. The Lizards were a nice lot. The Mules and Hybrids, on the whole, were good, while the British were a grand collection. These classes were keenly contested by the various exhibitors, and we noticed several winners having to take a "back seat." The Foreigners made a lovely section, and here again we saw many well-known winners. Mr. Roe judged Crests, Liz., Yorks., Brit. and For., and Mr. Cameron Norwich, Borders, and members' classes, and their awards were well received throughout.

The management of the show was ideal, everything being grandly arranged, and the staging the correct height. The Foreigners were kept nice and warm. The hall is an ideal one for a show, being lofty and well lighted, while an even temperature was always kept up. The society are fortunate in possessing two such gentlemen as Messrs. Reid and Maddison for secretaries, as they were really splendid in their endeavours to please the visitors and exhibitors. They got through in first-class style with their duties. They were ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee of good, experienced fanciers, with Mr. J. Farrar at their head and Mr. G. Clark in the vice-chair, and as treasurer Mr. J. Riseborough, trustees Messrs. W. Oglesby and R. Armstrong; committee, Messrs. W. F. Swan, A. Elliott, H. Gordon, Dr. O'Neal, C. Waters, H. Fenwick, G. Davison, J. Copeland, and A. Walker. A splendid stall of requisites was shown by Mr. Keenlyside, who had on view at reasonable prices practically everything required in connection with the Fancy.

WELSH CAGE BIRD CLUB.

The Welsh C.B.C. Show was held at Brecon on November 18th, in the Parish Hall—an admirable hall for such an event, light being all that could be desired. Mr D. H. Tedstone, show manager, and Mr. G. T. Jones, show secretary, had everything well under command, leaving nothing wanting. They were most ably assisted by the local committee. There was also a good sprinkling of Welsh exhibitors, amongst whom we noticed Messrs. J. H. Jones, Pritchard, Harber, Gregory, Card, Cross, D. Jones, and Brown. The show was opened by the Ven. Archdeacon E. L. Bevan, M.A. The Norwich were the features of the show, both in quality and quantity. They seem to have taken a decidedly strong footing in Wales, and the improvement during the last two or three seasons is very marked. Yorkshires were also a decided improvement on last year's. Borders were also well represented, and Scotch were better in quality than quantity. Special for best Canary in show was captured by Mr. D. Jenkins. Challenge cup for most points in Yorkshires was captured for the second time by Mr. G. Gregory. Club medal for best team of three by a novice was won by Mr. J. W Card; gold medal for best team of three went to Mr. J. Pritchard; spl for best Yorks. went to Mr. G. Jones. A Toronto medal was added to the laurels of Mr. J. H. Jones with two slashing Scotch, and a lovely long-tailed Grassfinch, that for best British being captured by Mr. C. Price. The cards were placed by Mr. T. L. Castree.

HULL.

The City of Hull C.B.S. held their 14th annual exhibition on November 20th and 21st. The new Corn Exchange, wherein the exhibits were staged, is an ideal place, excellently lighted, lofty, well ventilated, and very spacious. Our Hull friends are highly favoured in being able to command such a grand room. Entries turned up well, totalling 450 upwards, passing last year's by 50. The staging was all that could be desired, the benches being neatly draped, and foliage here and there promising an excellent effect. Mrs. T. R. Ferens (wife of one of the local M.P.'s) was down to officiate at the opening ceremony; after which she was to be the recipient of a smart yellow Norwich in a gilded cage, presented by the society. The Committee of management consists of well-known practical fanciers in Messrs. Pepper, Banks, Barwick, Brumby, Longhorn, Spruit, Walker, and G. Harland, all of whom lend capital assistance, and are to be complimented. The very courteous Hon. Treasurer, is Mr. G. W. Oliver, and the Auditors Messrs. King and Jobling, a trio of most useful officials. Mr. F. F. Potter acts as Secretary, and in right capital manner discharges the secretarial duties to a nicety, and keeps the ball rolling in fine style. A better man for this not too enviable office, it would be difficult to find. Much of the success of the fixture was due to his work. Stewards were Messrs. G. Harland, J. Calam, T. Perkins, R. Barwick, T. Parks, H. Oliff, J. Precious, and A. H. Lightfoot, and each and every one did all in their power to help things along in the way they should go. Judging was over in good time, and prize cards displayed promptly. The Judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), and J. C. Barnes (Sheffield), and their awards were well received.

The Norwich Plainheads made a fine display. The yellow cock owned by Mr. G. Jeff. and the yellow hen, the property of Mr. G. Harland, being voted gems. Mr. W. H. Moore took premier honours in the buff hens with his noted clear unflighted. Some splendid Yorkies, as straight as rushes, and feathered to perfection, were to be seen. Fine specimens were shown by Messrs. W. H. Spencer, Ogden Bros., Alderson, Watts, Lindsay and Drabble. The Gift Class was well supported, and the society's thanks are tendered to the donors. The Novices placed on view a few very typical and stylish birds. The Mules and British were generally acknowledged to be a fine collection. Messrs. A. Somerfield, W. C. Harrison, J. P. Stamp, and A. Jackson, put down some beauties, while Mr. J. Cheetham benched a pair of superb Blue Mountain Lories. The members' classes contained some right stuff, colour, type and quality being in strong evidence. Principal winners, Messrs. Oliff, Frith, Precious, Girling, McKay, Mason, Gowden, Potter and Stamford. Specials: Hyde's was captured by Mr. J. Calam; that for best yell. hen 1908, went to Mr. G. Harland for best unflighted Buff (Members'), Mr. H. Oliff; for best C.B. (Members'), Mr. J. Calam; Champion Cups (Members'), Mr. G. Harland, and H. Oliff.

DOVER.

There are plenty of bird shows in the county of Kent, which is quite all right, because there are also plenty of good show birds without going outside the county, and no lack of enthusiastic fanciers. The Dover division was well to the fore on November 17th and 18th, when the show of the Kent County C.B.A. was held, and when the competition was very keen. A long list of 32 specials bears ample evidence of hard work on the part of the executive and of much friendly feeling on the part of the donors, who are mostly resident in the town. The Mayor of Dover graciously opened the show, after a few introductory remarks by Co. Norris, M.V.O., one of the society's vice-presidents. He was supported by the enthusiastic chairman, Mr. N. Campany, the vice-chairman, Mr. E. C. Rayner, and the committee of bird-lovers, including the busy honorary secretary and treasurer, Mr. G. Sanderson, who is deserving of great praise for the success of the show. The Market Hall is an excellent place for a cage bird show, being spacious, well lighted, and free from draughts. Mr. J. Nortb judged, and gave general satisfaction.

BIRKENHEAD.

Annual show held November 14th. Entries were, unfortunately, small, owing to a stoppage in the finishing off of birds. But there was a good number of visitors. The arrangements were ably carried out by the committee, and the cage birds were nicely staged out of the way of draughts. Crests were a nice lot. Yorkshires were good, especially the greens, and Norwich made a capital class. The British classes contained some very choice and smart exhibits. Mr. Richardson had the secretarial duties in hand, and his past efforts were on this occasion even excelled, everything being ably conducted, and the exhibits were comfortably staged in an ideal hall. He was well assisted by Mr. Harding, the assistant secretary.

BRADFORD WEST.

The Bradford West C.B.A., held their annual fixture in the Whetley Lane Schools, Girlington, on November 21st, and as usual the entry and attendance upheld the high standard attained by this society, which is considered one of the class events in the Bradford district. A grand schedule had been issued, containing a class number of 38 classes, and resulted in a grand entry of 613, birds, giving an average of slightly over 16 per class throughout the show. In consideration of its being a single day show the society took the wise step of obtaining two assistant judges, so that the public could be admitted in good time. Mr. A. Ambler was the official judge of the Y.U., and took as his quota the whole of the Open Yorkshire Classes including, of course, the Yorkshire greens. Mr. Beswick had been selected to judge the Norwich greens, Norwich Plainheads, Norwich Novice and the British birds, etc., and Mr. R. Sutcliffe officiated for the Yorkshire Novices and the selling classes. The awards of all three gentlemen were very well received. The arrangements were in the hands of thorough fanciers with Mr. H. Clegg at their head, in the position of secretary, and what friend Clegg does not know about working a show is not worth knowing; he has as his assistant, Mr. S. Lister, with Messrs. Greaves, Crabtree, Clegg, Mallll, Stirk, Clark and many others as stewards, the names themselves being a guarantee of efficient working. The Yorkshires throughout were a grand lot, both in numbers and in quality, the thirteen classes containing 208 birds, an average of 16 per class. The Yorkshire greens also came up well, 66 birds being on view in the four classes. Norwich greens were grand birds, but rather few in number, totalling 41 in four classes. Norwich were a complete failure—12 birds in two classes. British, etc., were a very interesting lot, averaging slightly over 12 per class in the four classes. In the selling classes no less than 67 birds were on view in the three classes. Novices came up well—141 Yorkshires in 6 classes, giving over 23 per class, and some toppers amongst them. Novice Norwich exhibitors staged 27 birds in their two classes. The principal winners of the specials given for the various sections were Messrs. Bailey and Swanger, W. H. Shackleton, Wilcock, Ogden Bros., Clayton, Nimmo, Deacon, Lawson, Duncan, Chick, Parkes, Farrar, Hammond and Lunc. Pickup, etc. CAGE BIRDS competition points were "notched" by Messrs. Helliwell and Blackburn and Mitchell. The clear yellow of Mr. E. Radley's is generally acknowledged to be one of the very best out, whilst in clear buffs the two of Mr Shackleton's held an almost unbeaten record. In Yorkshire greens, the Yorkshire contingent scored pretty freely, but in Norwich greens practically all were from Liverpool, the hot-bed of the Fancy for this variety. The British bird fanciers much enjoyed the exhibits of the section, the Hybrids of Messrs. Nicholson and Walsh, the hardbills of Messrs. Duncan, Chick, Hirst, the Redstart of Mr. Chick's, the Bearded Tit of Mr. Duncan's, and the pretty Wren of Miss Fishburn's, all having their adherents. At the close of the show all exhibits were packed up and on their homeward journey by about 8 o'clock—quick time to clear out over 600 birds.

WIGAN.

Wigan and Dist. C.B.S. held their annual open show on November 20th and 21st, in the Orange Hall, King-st. Entries came up well, about 320 being staged. The Norwich classes, as is usual at Wigan, were well filled, and contained many well-known specimens. The Yorkshires, although not so numerous as we like to see them, were a nice lot. British birds were a fine collection. Mr. A. P. Hurst's well-known Goldfinch and Linnet, Mr. Johnson's clinking Yellow Bunting, and Mr. T. H. Mort's Thrush are specimens far above the average. The amateur and members' classes also contained many choice birds. The challenge cup presented by the Society for most points gained by a member was won by Mr. J. Bennett, Mr. W. Dyer securing Hyde's special. Of the management we cannot speak too highly. The secretary, Mr. W. Ridge, is the right man in the right place, and has all the duties of a secretary at his finger ends. He was well supported by the chairman, Mr. W. Dyer, the treasurer, Mr. J. Shurrock, the vice-chairman, Mr. C. Crabtree, the assistant-secretary, Mr. Jno. Bennett, and the committee, Messrs. Roberts, Holden, Rheid, Young, Webster, Large, Lawler, Williams, Riding, Richards, Berry, Vicker, Hodkinson, and Bull, all of whom worked hard to make the show a success. The attendance, we were pleased to see, was very satisfactory, and we trust the show will work out all right financially. The judges were Messrs. A. Wellings (Prescot) and H. Tams (Longton), and their awards were very favourably received.

SIDMOUTH.

The 13th annual show of the Sidmouth F.S. took place in the Drill and Market Halls, on Nov. 19th. Favoured with ideal weather the show was a huge success. The feathered exhibits were shown in the Drill Hall. The presideut, Mr. J. D. Laag, opened the show. There is an influential list of vice-presidents, backed up by a strong committee. Prize money was fully guaranteed, and no amalgamation was allowed, consequently some of the classes had to be cancelled. Mr. J. Robson judged the cage birds. The secretaries were Messrs. Collier and Clode, who are to be congratulated on their successful management.

READING.

The 7th annual exhibition of the Reading and Dist. C.B.S. was held at the Palmer Hall, Weststreet, on November 18th. There was a distinct advance in the number of exhibits, and more so in quality, for in this important respect the prize-winners compared favourably with those in any of the larger open provincial shows. Mr. J. Robson judged. Mr. Charles, the efficient secretary, with Mr. Brooker, the chairman, supported by an enthusiastic committee and stewards, had everything in order by opening time. A long list of over thirty special prizes is evidence of a lot of hard work on the part of Mr. Charles and the executive, every class or group getting a share. Unfortunately, according to the catalogue one or two of these specials appear to be given to best birds, whereas by the conditions stated in schedule their allotment should have been determined according to the number of points gained; thus the cup is credited to the first prize yell. Norwich, Lewin, but as this exhibitor scores only twenty-nine points in the Norwich against Mr. Yates' thirty-seven, the cup must belong to the latter. (The secretary writes: "Winner of cup, classes 1—4, should be No. 40 and not No. 6; and No. 231 should have special prize, and not No. 236.—EDITOR.) There were about 250 entries in all.

PERTH.

The City and County of Perth O.A. held their annual open show in the Co-operative Hall on Nov. 21st. The hall is an ideal place for a cage bird show being high, well lighted and free from draughts. The Scotch Fancies opened the programme; it is a matter for regret that this variety is being so poorly represented on the show bench this year. Of the 12 classes provided only two were full. The feature of the show was the Norwich and British classes in which there were very large entries. The various sections were well staged, and credit is due to the management for the splendid arrangements made for the comfort of the birds. In Mr. Kerr they have a truly courteous secretary, who knows his work, and it goes without saying that there was nothing wanting as far as he was concerned. Mr. D. Brown is president, and is well supported by an able committee, viz., Mr. J. Dugall, vice-president; Mr. A. Borrie, treasurer; Messrs. G. Wyllie, A. G. Forrest, G. Mitchell, A. Borrie, W. Sharp, T. Bolt, J. Smith, T. B. Gray, W. C. Smith, W. Cullen and J. Watson. The judges were: for Scotch Fancies, Messrs. D. Low (Dundee), and G. Fulton (Glasgow); for Crests and Yorkshires, Mr. C. Campbell (Glasgow); for Norwich Plainheads, Mr. A. Roberts (Thornliebank); and for British and Foreign, Mr. R. V. Raine (Cathcart). The quality of the exhibits was exceptional. On the whole the awards of the judges seemed to give satisfaction. The show was well patronised during the day by the general public.

WORCESTER.

The members of this newly formed society are to be congratulated on the magnificent success of their first show, held Nov. 19, for such it was in every sense of the word. Not only did the quality reach high water mark but the entries were grand, giving an average of nearly 16 per class, and a total of 370. The six Yorkshire classes had an entry of 126, and were a truly grand collection; many birds fit to win in ordinary classes had to stand cardless. Norwich, Crests, and Crest-breds were good classes for quanty, and amongst the exhibits were many of the highest class. The British and Mule classes were splendid, the quality being on a par with the entry. In the former section were found the winners of the Silver and Bronze Medals given by the L. and P.O.S. for best and second best birds shown by members—in Mr. Chick's Redstart and his Hawfinch. The Corn Exchange is an ideal place for a show, in fact, one of the best in the Kingdom; there was plenty of room, and it was well lighted from the roof. The exhibits were staged in single tiers and nere was the only fault we could find in au otherwise admirably managed exhibition, and that was the extreme height at which most of the exhibits were staged. The staging was nicely draped, which gave the show a very spick and span appearance. Mr. A. E. Bishop makes a most admirable secretary, and considering this was his first year of secretarial work, he must be heartily congratulated upon the manner in which he carried out his duties, judging from which anyone would have thought him a veteran at the work. He received valuable assistance from Mr. Hughes, who was busy at clerical work early on the morniug of the show. The exhibits were well looked after by a good, hard-working committee, amongst whom we noticed the Malvern hon. sec., Mr. W. D. Johnson. All worked with a will, and when we left it only needed a good gate to crown their labours and make the venture a huge success. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

OUR COLOURED PLATE.

Some Observations from two well-known fanciers of the Yorkshire Canary.

Concerning Mr. Norman's beautiful coloured plate of Yorkshires, which we are privileged to put before our readers with this week's Double Number, we have received a few lines from two well-known lovers of this graceful variety of Canary, who have had an "advance peep," so to speak, of the same. One is Mr. F. Easterling, who may be styled the Southern representative, and the other is a gentleman of considerable fame in judging and exhibiting circles in the North, who prefers to conceal his identity beneath the curious nom-de-plume "Two Whiffs." Here is what they have to say:

A Bird of Singular Grace and Beauty.

There is much that is of peculiar interest at any time in a close study of the Yorkshire Canary, or, as it may be appropriately called, the pet bird of the keen fanciers who dwell in the County of Broad Acres; and there is much to captivate any non-fancier as well as to stimulate even the case-hardened Canary breeder. The Yorkshire is a bird of singular gracefulness and beauty, and that gracefulness and beauty have been fostered and developed as the reward of much patience and perseverance expended by the breeders of the variety, over a period of many years. There never was a truer expression in the English tongue than the phrase "Nothing succeeds like success." The success of breeders of the Yorkshire Canary is phenomenal, and as a result the growth of the bird in popularity has been phenomenal also.

I have always been a lover of this elegant member of the Canary family, but I must freely confess that your excellent coloured plate, an advance copy of which you kindly sent to me, has greatly added to my interest. It conveys at one glance valuable lessons in perfection and in colour contrasts. There are three separate representations, either one excellent in itself, and all splendid on the whole. If, however, I may be pardoned for making an invidious selection, I should say the artist has scored his greatest success in his depiction of the clear buff. The picture shows the clear buff and the clear yellow, which are looked upon by most Yorkshiremen as the acme of perfection in the breed; and he has added to these, by way of contrast, the green bird. Thus he has given us an object lesson not only in style and contour and in pure colour, but also in the deep fount from which that colour springs.

A First Thought.

My first thought, on looking at the picture, was: how cleverly and clearly the artist has caught the idea when the natural beauty of the bird would seem to convey. Take yon clear buff. See the splendid angle at which the bird is posed. Plenty of leg is shown, without "stocking" or roughness of thigh feather. The bird is, as it ought to be, clean cut all down, stands well up from the perch and in nowise crouching or across it. There is the splendid length of wing, so essential in a good Yorkshire, giving great length and taper of side also. The tail root and the tail are natural and nicely finished off in "plenty of length behind the leg." There is no squareness to spoil the outline; everything is as it should be, nicely rounded. The flights show a perfect tipping at the ends, while the covering to the wings is excellent, and naturally drawn. Then there are the graceful neck, the well-filled in back, and sweetly pretty head and beak—all forming one harmonious whole, and furnishing a model of a stylish Yorkshire such as is needed in the bird flesh in order to capture premier honours in keen competition to-day. We all know that style in a Yorkshire is one of the essential features to be cultivated in order to secure success on the show benches, and I venture to say that in the clear buff in the group is to be seen a model of style at once natural and obtainable. I do not think "our" artist, Mr. Norman, has been quite ideally as happy, so to speak, in his delineation of the clear yellow. It is hardly so well "cleaned out" at root of tail, but he has presented to us the true elegance of the Yorkshire as faithfully in the clear yellow as in the buff. The green, too, is of much value, as showing the difficulty there is in obtaining the perfect outline which is to be got in the clears; yet the green stands there, an object lesson on the necessity for infusion of that colour-producing blood which is responsible for the production of the many variegated stock birds which are mines of gold in every breeder's room. Even though there are classes for greens and variegated birds, yet these are not generally accepted as show birds, but more especially as stock birds. Would that they received a great deal more encouragement than they do. But they are produced to-day with a rapidly advancing approach to that perfection of style obtained in the clears. Now and again, too, greens are seen of the most stylish proportions. I have noted this particularly of late.

But I am satisfied that the primary lesson which our artist intends to teach us in the picture under notice is the value of blending the "extremes" in the process of producing the "ideal." We are to learn that not only need we breed Yorkshires for style, but also for the development of natural colour.

Object Lessons.

Another object lesson to be deduced from the picture, I take it, is the necessity for training exhibition Yorkshires, in order that the best points, which the breeder may have taken such pains to obtain, may be brought to the greatest advantage in a show. It is in the training of the Yorkshire that so many otherwise successful breeders fail. Our artist has given the keynote of "position" in his splendid sketches. Everyone of the specimens is, I am sure, as true to life as it is possible to get. The green shows us that difficulty which is almost ever present with it—an apparent coarseness, and lack of the correct taper from the shoulders. The breeders of Yorkshire Greens have long been alive to the difficulties in the way of obtaining style allied with purity of colour. But surely they are coming by their own, and not only so, but bringing gold to the doors of the breeders of the stylish birds also. Say what you will, style is greatly beautified by the addition of colour, and colour can only be bred in as the result of using either variegated or green birds. So the artist, knowing full well that variegated birds come from greens, has gone to the root of the matter and pointed out the contrast not only of style but of colour, by depicting a green amongst the clears.

Another point to be seen in the picture, as I view it, is the necessity for an entire absence of superfluous feather in an ideal specimen. In order to come near the ideal, the exhibitor must aim at a long-drawn, rounded body and the absence of loose feather. There is the cleaned off chest—whether that is bred so, the gods alone must decide—the cleaned off thighs, the cleaned off rump, the close whip tail, the long and well posed leg. All these are needed—nothing else will do.

Further, the sketch conveys to my mind the perfection of training, condition and finish. It shows how great is the necessity for finish in the staging as in the training of a Yorkshire. I know a man who never troubles about his cages, no matter how devoid of cleanliness and finish they may be. He has an idea that the bird is judged and not the cage. In great measure he is right; but often, by way of regretful duty, a judge feels bound to punish an exhibitor for unduly handicapping a good specimen by staging it badly. No; condition cannot be dispensed with any more than training. Training alone will induce a Yorkshire to pose as our artist has depicted his subjects. So the sketch is an object lesson in that respect.

Need I say more than that I am delighted with the plate, and to hope that my few thoughts penned at random, dictated by a first sight of Mr. Norman's clever work, may contain the germs of information which may help perchance the young fancier to a better and closer perception, not only of what a Yorkshire should be, but how it should be obtained, and also trained for exhibition when secured. —"TWO WHIFFS."

Is Color-Feeding a Drawback.

The plate you have kindly allowed me to see is marvellous; the three birds depicted are one and all works of art. The buff shows all the true characteristics of a first-class Yorkshire. Having kept and bred most varieties of Canaries, there is none so fascinating to me as the Yorkshire; and what exhibitor of other varieties does not also like to see a good Yorkshire? How interesting to see it when gently handled, strut along the perch, "showing for all it is worth." Well may it be called the "Gentleman of the Fancy." How many fanciers have said to me: "If it was not for colour-feeding, that would be the bird I should keep." Beginners taking up this variety want to get good stock, and possess patience and pluck, with a good sprinkling of common sense. To breed an ideal Yorkshire is the work of a life-time, but, then, if winners could be bred wholesale much of the charm would be lost. Who would not like to breed a bird such as that clear buff, with such beautiful close feather, and shining like a sovereign fresh from the mint?

Don't be Shy.

In purchasing your stock, I would always say to beginners, go to some well-known breeder and exhibitor, state your wants and the price you are prepared to pay, and leave yourself entirely in his hands. But don't think you are going to get birds to breed you winners for a few shillings a pair; good birds command a good figure. Having obtained your stock, pair up exactly as you have been told, and from the produce select the best to keep for yourself. This is where you will need a little advice; and don't be afraid to ask someone of experience to pick out your best for you. I always found fanciers most willing to help me in my earlier days. But don't ask them if you do not intend to accept their advice, or else when you need it again you will find you will not obtain it. After a year at breeding, visiting the shows, etc., the beginner ought to have picked up a lot of useful knowledge to help him along.

Patience is a real virtue in the breeding of Yorkshires, for being of rather a nervous temperament they can be very soon spoilt for the show bench. In getting them used to the show-cage great care must be taken in sliding the door down, if it should be a bit tight, by holding the cage between your arm and pressing it against your side; then you can work the door gently and without jar. Pluck is another useful attribute. I fancy I can hear someone saying, what has that to do with it? Well, to be a successful exhibitor you need plenty of pluck. You must not know defeat; remember that judges are only human and do not all see alike. True, we have a standard to go by, but often they have several hundred birds to adjudicate upon, besides the awarding of specials, and the time they have is not sufficient to allow them to do the birds justice. Further, there are other times when the birds will not "show." So, if you "go down" at one show, have pluck enough to send out again.—F. EASTERLING.

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE

HARROGATE C.B.S. make a slight mistake in their schedule in regard to Norwich classes. They were successful in obtaining the patronage of the Open Norwich Plainhead Club, and their rules state that not less than "six open Norwich classes" shall be provided. The Harrogate Society only schedule five, and they wish it to be known that six classes are to be offered; instead of one class for Unflighted, schedule should read: Class 14, Unflighted Yellow Norwich; Class 14a, Unflighted Buff Norwich. Exhibitors should make their entries accordingly; show held December 5th.

BRADFORD West Show on Saturday last was a great attraction. They had a splendid entry, particularly in the Yorkshire sections, and some grand birds were to be seen. The Norwich Greens were nice but few in number, whilst the two classes for Norwich Plainheads were a failure, owing no doubt to the fact of the O.N.P.C. patronage being at Sunderland, whither the members sent their birds in quest of club honours. British, Mules etc., brought together a good and interesting lot, their corner being very well patronised.

THE supper and social of our Wibsey friends proved to be one of the best they have ever held, about forty fanciers and friends assembling to do justice to the fare provided, after which a very enjoyable evening was spent, and as the weather was about as wild and wet as possible, it must have been pleasant to spend the time in song and social chat.

THE discussion of ways and means for the rearrangement of shows under the Yorkshire Union, due to have taken place on November 14th, at the City of Bradford O.S. headquarters, had unavoidably to be postponed, but has been definitely fixed for December 5th, at 8.30 p.m. Mr. Chittenden will open the discussion. It is hoped that a good muster will turn up, when perhaps some good workable scheme will be evolved.

BRADFORD East had another big evening on the 17th inst. In a judging competition they had ten entrants, the result being a tie between Mr. J. Farrar and Mr. Northrop, the runner-up being Mr. Rushworth. The gift class resulted in a very nice sum being placed to the credit of their rose bowl scheme, which must now be nearing completion. A pair class was also on the agenda, and 13 pairs were staged, some splendid birds being on view. In fact, I heard a whisper that £10 was offered and refused for one of the pairs on show. At their next meeting on Tuesday, December 1st, Mr. J. Hartley will give a washing exhibition.

WAKEFIELD O.S. had Mr. J. Wilman as judge for their members' show on Saturday last. I am pleased to hear they are making great strides in this society, and doubtless friend Joe, with his long experience, would give them some good and sound advice on the Yorkshire bird.

FANCIERS, particularly those interested in the Cinnamon Marked variety, must not forget the whist drive and dance to be held at Windhill on December 1st, in aid of the prize funds of the C.M.Y.C.C.

"STRAIGHT 'UN."

WILD BIRD NOTES.

Rooks in the Wind.

The strong wind during the nights has brought down the last of the leaves, and the big elms stand bare, their smaller branches cutting sharply against the clear winter sky. So good has the weather been that the leaves have hung on longer than usual, and so we have passed gradually from summer to winter. The companies of Rooks flying to the feeding grounds at sunrise appear to feel the wind more than any other birds. Their flight is laboured and heavy. At times they fly close to the ground; then they rise upon a stronger gust than usual, hugging the farm buildings or skirting the field under the shelter of the trees. All the way it appears to be a hard struggle for them to get along, and at times they must be nearly exhausted with the effort. I have watched them from the shelter of a rick, as they crossed a field unusually exposed, and when it looked as though they never would manage it. Time after time have they been brought to a standstill, and then being caught sideways have been hurled backwards a few hundred yards or so instantly. They steer round and recover, and then, taking advantage of a lull in the wind, manage to cross to more sheltered situations.

Green Woodpeckers in the North.

The Green Woodpecker, a large and handsome bird, is mostly found in the woods and forests of the south, although it is reported to be fairly numerous in suitable localities in Yorkshire and Lancashire.

Heron and the Gun.

It is said that the Heron, like the Rook, knows when an intruder is carrying a gun and does not mind a stick being pointed at him. But as these birds are so shy and wary it is always a difficult matter to get near them without anything, so that such a statement can hardly be accepted as correct.

The Starling as a Songster.

The Starling is an incessant songster, but lacks the loud pipe of the Thrush, and the mellow flute of the Blackbird. Consequently his musical efforts are frequently passed unnoticed, although in the depth of winter he will frequently sing for half an hour at a time, perched upon the housetop, with no mate or companion near to encourage song.

The Bleating of the Snipe.

The peculiar sound call, bleating or drumming, which the Snipe produces when agitated and when upon the wing, does not appear to be wholly synonymous with its flight. The writer has this season heard of a case where the sound was heard proceeding from a bird perched upon a hillock out on the marshes. Of course one is likely to be deceived by sights and sounds when in the open, as there is always so much to distract one's attention, and the bird heard may have been an unnoticed one in flight; but still, it is worth recording, for the point is this: if the sitting bird produced the sound, it is not necessary for the Snipe to be in flight, and it does not follow that the sound is produced by the wings, for one can detect no agitation of these members.

The Fighting Titmice.

The little Blue Tits just now appear particularly quarrelsome, and one is at a loss to account for it. A pair will keep to themselves entirely during the breeding season, but in the winter they may be met with in small parties in the woods, and some half-dozen may frequently be seen at one time in the garden, so that it is rather difficult to see why these little battles should now be taking place. In the elm trees at the end of the writer's garden they are constantly calling and shouting defiance at each other, and when they meet in combat, it is possible to get quite close to them. The writer stood recently looking down at a couple fighting at his feet, and could easily have caught them with a butterfly net. They are active little fellows, and it is most interesting to watch them clinging to the stalk of a poppy, while they hammer quickly with their powerful little beaks to dig a hole in the side of the seed-pod to extract the contents. As they are insect and small seed (not grain) eaters, they must certainly be numbered among the useful birds.

Having completely sold out of "CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL" for 1908

We are now engaged in the preparation of the next volume—every advertiser in this Standard work of reference reaps a rich reward. Year after year the same breeders and traders are represented in its pages proving its unparalleled value for advertising purposes. Many men find it pays better than "CAGE BIRDS."

CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL

gives you a whole year's publicity at the smallest possible cost. This will make the seventh year of issue and every year's production is pronounced to be a long way ahead of its predecessors.

Every prominent breeder and exhibitor should make certain of seeing his name and address in this Annual. How often do you as a breeder want to know another breeders address and without the Annual what a trouble it is to find it! The list of fanciers aunually advertising themselves in this valuable handbook is no small index to its usefulness. If hitherto your advertisement has not appeared in it, make up your mind at once to place an order right away in it.

The breeding season for 1909 promises to be an exceptionally successful one. Special efforts will be made to extend the sale of the Annual amongst novices and contemplating purchasers.

I DON'T BELIEVE

in making idle boasts nor exaggerated statements in order to induce anyone to become a customer. I find the best way to make and keep custom is to give downright good value at lowest possible price, and to ensure this none but highest quality materials and thoroughly-experienced workmen are employed in building up my goods. Clap nets, made from genuine thread netting, ¾-inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/- pair; 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair; all guaranteed 5½ feet deep and strike 4 feet. All clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, and are fitted complete with pegs, poles, hemp lines, etc., ready for immediate use; all dyed with a special preparation which not only makes them invisible when set, but preserves netting as well, and nothing is spared to make them most durable and fastest working nets obtainable. Loose thread netting, as used in above clap nets, ¾-mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; 12 feet deep, 5d. yard; all post free. This netting is guaranteed finest obtainable, and must not be confused with the thick American cotton fishing netting now being sold for bird netting; my netting is made from 60s/3 cord thread; ask others size of theirs' and compare. Self-acting spring net traps, 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each; ditto, 18 inches long, 9d. each; carriage, 4d. extra. These net traps are by far the largest and most simple working nets on the market, and will catch and hold uninjured any bird from Wren to Rook. Sparrow nets, fitted on 19 feet bamboo poles, with pocket top and bottom, 6/6 pair; ditto, on 14 feet poles, 5/6 pair; single trap cages, 6d. each, double ditto, 10d. and 1/- each; treble ditto, 1/3 each; all have separate compartment for call bird. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, warranted to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, and require no attention whatever, 1/6 each; Goldfinch or Linnet cages, 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Lark Runner cages, 6d., 8d., and 9d. each, 4/-, 6/-, and 7/- dozen; singing box cages, 10d., 1/-, and 1/4 each; all metal hanging Canary cages, with glass round, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 6/-, and 7/6 each; Parrot cages, 4/6 to 25/- each; cottage-toped Thrush cages, 2/3, 2/9, and 3/6 each; round or square topped call cages, 3d each, 2/6 dozen; better quality, 4d. each, 3/6 dozen. The only genuine Japanese bird lime, guaranteed absolutely strongest and best made, stands all weathers and guaranteed to hold birds in the rain, ½-lb. 6d., ¾-lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6, post free. This lime contains a secret chemical which enables it to save the feathers when a bird is taken from twigs, so why buy inferior rubbish at higher price. For full printed list of all catchers' appliances and sample netting, send stamp. Penny tin drinkers, three dozen 1/3, six dozen 2/3, gross 4/-, three gross 10/6; zinc ditto, 9d. dozen, three dozen 2/-, six dozen 3/6, gross 6/-, three gross 15/-. Dealers, send stamp for trade list of cages, etc., it will pay you. Everything sent on approval at my risk; cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and money refunded in full if fullest satisfaction not given. Compare any article of mine with those obtained elsewhere at higher prices, and if mine is not by far the best smash it up. I will refund your money. (Imitators, kindly copy as usual.) Patronise the man who studies the working-man's pocket by not charging exorbitant prices for inferior rubbish, but sells a good article at low price. See British Bird and Roller Canary columns for further advertisements.

Plainheaded Norwich Hens Clear Yellow, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 2/6, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 1/9, 2/-, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads Matched for Breeding, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6. Travelling Cages 3d. extra.

Just compare the above prices with others, to say nothing of quality, but there is no guesswork here; it is not a game of chance, as with some, who, although they give themselves names, only have an idea of the value by the price other dealers charge them. Hence, don't expect the best bird at the big cat price; yet all are Best Value—that is my great point. For Testimonials see my last week's advertisement on page 430, or call and inspect thousands here.

E. Silk, Whitstable.

THERE ARE TWO WAYS

of buying Canaries, one is by sending your cash blindly, and putting up with whatever is sent you, and the other is my way, viz., deposit your money with the Editor of CAGE BIRDS, and having bird on approval for a full week before you ultimately decide to purchase. All Canaries sold by me are sent out on the distinct understanding that you keep them one full week on approval, and if bird fails to prove in every way satisfactory, you return bird and the whole of your money is promptly returned to you. I take all risks during the whole time, so you cannot possibly lose a pennypiece by giving me a trial. I have an enormous stock of pure St. Andreasberg Rollers, all direct from Leipzig, in full song day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet, silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, deep bass rolls, hollow bell rolls, piccolo trill, bell harp, and flute notes, etc., etc., and warranted entirely free from Titlark or other objectionable notes, price, 6/6 and 7/6 each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass, and hollow bell rolls, and are a cascade of everflowing melody, 10/- and 12/6 each; ordinary, loud, free Hartz cocks, in full vigorous song, 4/6 each, 28/- for seven; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple, 12/- dozen. All cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole importer of these birds, no other dealer can get one feather of this strain unless he purchases from me. See following few letters, full name and address given with each, so that any sceptical person can make any enquiries he likes:—"29, Clifford-road, West Stanley, November 10th, Sir,—Roller received in splendid condition, I am delighted with it, and for song I never had its equal. Please send another soon as possible. Yours, Wm. Roe." On November 14th Mr. Roe again writes, "Sir,—Received the other Roller, it is just what I wanted, splendid songster. I had a friend down, and he wants one the same, so please send on another, I will not be long getting you more orders." "1, Tweedale-place, Fort William, November 13th,—Sir, many thanks for sending me such a fine bird, it started singing morning after I got it. You will hear from me again. Yours, G. Kay." "107, Wheldon-lane, Castleford, November 14th.—Sir, Roller arrived safe, and a champion songster, he is too, I am more than satisfied with it. It started singing before I got it out of cage. Yours, H. Wilson." "Sunny Bank, Elkington-road, Bury Port, November 7th. Sir,—Please send me Roller at 7/6. I have been recommended by friends to whom you have supplied songsters that give every satisfaction, so hope the one you send will not be a disappointment, same as some I have had from other dealers. Yours, J. Williams." On November 11th Mr. Williams writes: "Sir, I have pleasure in advising you that Roller arrived yesterday. He is singing very nicely, and so far, I am quite satisfied." "Broom, Newton Mearns, Glasgow, November 6th. Sir,—Two Rollers arrived safe, and are singing nicely; many thanks for promptness. Yours, W. Wootton." "Dowlais, November 5th. Sir,—Received Roller safe, and healthy. This is the fourth bird I have had from you, and been satisfied every time. Yours, E. Jones." "88, Trafalgar-street, Sheffield, November 1st. Sir, —I appreciate your prompt attention to my order, and am very pleased with Roller, he started singing directly unpacked, and is a champion. Yours, A. Hickin." "28, Upper-row, Penywern, Dowlais, October 29th. Sir,—Received Roller in pink of condition, and he commenced singing as soon as unpacked. I am quite satisfied with him. Yours, Wm. Jones." Kindly note that these Leipzig Rollers are far better birds than can be obtained elsewhere at much higher prices, and I cordially invite all intending purchasers to test them side by side with those obtained elsewhere at higher prices, and if mine is not by far the best, return it to me, and tell everyone you know that my Rollers are not as represented. Could I afford to do this unless I was convinced that what I say is correct? I claim to be the largest retailer of Rollers in the Kingdom, and this trade has been built up solely by the merit of the birds, not by any lying boasts. Fresh arrivals twice weekly. Genuine dealers and clubs send for wholesale prices lowest in the trade. See British Birds and Appliance columns for further adverts.

THE LARGEST & BEST COLLECTION of Canaries in the World.

A very bold statement to make I fully admit, but it is not in the slightest an exaggeration; and more, it can be proved by INSPECTION. Leading judges, reporting critics, who travel everywhere when Shows are on, and who are in the know as to who is who, etc., have freely admitted, as they could not fail to do, that they had never seen such a collection under one roof; and even then did not see all, as they often have to be under more than one. See my advertisements under respective headings.

THE SHOWS.

SELKIRK.

Selkirk F.A. held their 47th annual exhibition in the Victoria Hall, on November 28th, and this year, owing to the influence of Messrs. J. Pringle and H. H. Brown, included a Canary section, which proved a great success. Norwich opened the programme, and were allotted 4 classes, and brought together an average of 8 per class, the spl. for best bird being awarded to Mr. Pringle. Borders were a grand collection, the 8 classes bringing together an average of 11 per class. Considering the many Scotch fixtures on this day, the executive were delighted with the entry. Owing to the Judge, Mr. J. W. Bruce, being now debarred from the B.F.C. patronage, the show was held under the rules, the society foregoing the medal, and allowing two medals to exhibitors who had never been successful in getting a B.F.C. medal this year. In the clear classes Mr. Aitchison's 2nd prize yellow hen secured the coveted special, while in the marked classes the medal was secured by Mr. W. H. Wright. The quality, on the whole, was extra good. The hall is an ideal one for a show, is free from draught, and well lighted, the Canaries being carefully attended to at the end of the main building. Mr. Storrie makes an ideal secretary, and was ably assisted by Mr. Alex. Brodie. Catalogues were on sale an hour after the finish of judging. The Canary stewards, Messrs. Pringle, Brown, and Mond, did everything in their power for the welfare of the Canary Section.

WEST OF SCOTLAND N. &c. B.A.

West of Scotland N. and B.F.C.M. and B.A. held their nineteenth annual show and competition in the Grand National Halls, Main-street, Gorbals, Glasgow, on November 28th. The President is Mr. T. A. Boyd; Vice-Presidents, Messrs. W. Hutchison and J. Lawrie; and the hon. secretary and Treasurer, Mr. G. Smart. The judges were Messrs. J. B. Adam (Bord.), A. K. Chalmers (Mules, and Brit.), T. L. Burnett (the remainder). The entries were in excess of last year's total by 80. The classes on this occasion numbered 42, in all; some of them were small, but the quality of the exhibits amply made up for any shortage in this respect. The Mule and Brit. Sections were a nice average lot; there were two silver cups for competition, in this section, which may be said to be a little out of the common, and several handsome specials. This association claims the proud distinction of being Scotland's first and oldest club of the Nor. Fey., and a silver medal goes with each cup. For most points in Nor. the silver cup given by the association was won by Mr. J. McNaughton; runner up, Mr. J. Scaife. For most points in Crests and Crest-breds, silver cup won by Mr. John Young, Mr. G. F. Adamson being the runner up. This cup now becomes Mr. Young's own property. For most points in Borders, the silver cup, also given by association, went to Mr. Young, Mr. J. Lappin Renwick (Hamilton); this cup, too, becomes Mr. Young's own property. For most points in Mules and Hybrids, the silver cup was won by Mr. J. Renwick (Hamilton); this cup too becomes Mr. Renwick's own property. Mr. Hutchison was the runner up here. For most points in Brit. Birds, the silver cup given by J. J. Manson, Esq., L.D.S., was won by Mr. J. Muir (Glasgow), Mr. J. Buchanan being the runner-up. Of the five silver cups, three were won outright on this occasion. There was a large turn-out of visitors, and breeders. Secretary Smart had all his arrangements carried out to perfection, assisted by an able and willing band of workers, whose aim and object were to make the show a success, and in that they were not disappointed. The judges' awards in the four sections appeared to give all-round satisfaction. The winner of Hyde's special was Mr. A. Duncan, Mr. R. Rennie being the winner of Ramsden's special. Mr. J. Lappin won the B.F.C.C. medal.

VALE OF LEVEN, DUMBARTONSHIRE.

The 36th annual show was held in the Co-operative Hall, Alexandria, on Nov. 28th. The Scotch Fancy Canary here has dwindled, and there were only two classes. The Norwich, Yorkshire, and Border Canaries and British birds were a good turn-out. The Yorkshires were judged by Mr. Gibb, and the other classes by Mr. Matthew Craig (Glasgow). The latter gentleman had his work cut out to get through his task; in fact, had to resume his judging after dinner. The president, Mr. Aitchison, superintended the entire show. In this he is a perfect model. The secretary, Mr. Conely, had everything in the best of order, and to him the credit for the success of the show is largely due. They were supported by a splendid committee of able and practical fanciers.

JARROW-ON-TYNE.

Second annual exhibition of the Jarrow, Hebburn and District C.B.S. held November 27th and 28th. The Mechanics' Institute is a capital place for such a function, spacious, lofty, and well lighted and ventilated, free from draughts, and nicely warmed. The show, under C.B.U. rules, had the patronage of the Northern Y.C.C., Northern C.C., Northern B.B. and M. and F.B.C., and Northern N.P.C. The schedule issued was a grand one, with excellent prize money and specials. The entries made a fine total of 550, 400 in the open section (beating last year's entry), and 150 in the members' classes. The staging was very pleasing, for every bird could be seen with comfort, and Messrs. G. Hagan, Wm. Bower, F. Furlong, T. Picken, R. Hutler, T. Carrick, P. Donnelly, C. Alty, J. Richardson, and W. Thompson, are to be complimented upon the arrangements. The president is Dr. Jennings, who, with his wife, officiated at the opening ceremony. The doctor is a good enthusiast, and has his heart in the welfare of the society. The chairman, Mr. J. Dutton, vice-chairman Mr. R. Hutler, and treasurer Mr. T. Picken, are three respected fanciers, and fill their important offices in A1 style. Mr. R. Blore, the worthy sec., is always on the go, and although quite a young man is equal to any "old hand." He is the right man in the right place, and Jarrow are exceedingly lucky to have him in their midst. We wish him every success in this none-too-thankful office. The stewards worked admirably, the cards being displayed promptly as each class was adjudicated upon. The management throughout, in fact, was really excellent. Everything went smoothly, and judging was over in good time. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Shelfield) took all the open section, and Mr. A. Brown (Gateshead) the members' classes. The following are their awards, which were well received.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

Far and away the best show of the three which the Southend Fanciers' Association has held was that which took place in the Kursaal on December 2nd and 3rd. All the arrangements were most ably carried out by the committee under the direction of Mr. Larman, the popular chairman, and Mr. Jones, who again officiated as secretary, proved himself to be indeed the right man in the right place, and thus everything passed off without a hitch. Mr. C. A. House judged.

PORTH.

Show held December 2nd and 3rd in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, a very suitable place for the purpose. The attendance was very fine, which is a very good augury of a financial success. Mr. R. G. Challenger makes a very capable and courteous hon. secretary, and is ably assisted by a body of splendid workers. Mr. H. W. Sheldon was very unfortunate in the late arrival of his exhibits—too late for judging. Some of the Norwich, Border, and Yorkshire classes were very hot, no less than 21 being in the Yorks, unflighted class, and some of the cream of the fancy were on exhibition. The entry totalled over 300. Messrs. J. Robson and T. L. Castree judged, the former doing the Canaries and mules and the latter the remainder. Winners of specials: Cup, Mrs. Jenkins; best Yorks., Mr. H. C. Smith; Border, Mrs. Jenkins; Mule, Mr. D. J. Leigh; fed Yorks., Mr. R. G. Challenger; and members', Mr. R. G. Challenger; member's cup, Mr. J. Norton.

GRAVESEND.

Open show held December 2nd and 3rd, in the Market Hall, which is extremely well adapted for the purpose, having grand top light and being capable of staging thousands of exhibits, single tier. The exhibition was opened in the afternoon by Lady Parker, on behalf of the President, Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P. for the district. Mr. S. C. Stevenson, the hon. secretary, had an immense amount of work well in hand, supported by able colleagues in each department. Mr. H. Stewart made a very efficient cage-bird steward, assisted by his painstaking junior, Mr. Terry. Messrs. Penlerick and Hunwick, Vice-Presidents of the society, very generously arranged a capital luncheon for the officers and judges at their house of business, where it is nothing unusual for sixty diners to gather daily. Mr. North judged, and his awards were well received. It is hoped that another year something more may be done to increase the number of entries.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

The City and Suburban A.C.B. put up another extremely fine show on November 20th and 21st, at their headquarters, the Church Institute, Marylebone, W. This popular Metropolitan society has acquired a great reputation for the number of birds staged at its members' shows, and their unquestionably first-class quality. The venture under notice was equal to anything they have done in the past, and in the British and Foreign sections an undoubted record. This "association of Canary breeders" will really have to tack another letter or two on to its name. The exhibits (428 in all) were very tastefully and well displayed, and the wonderful array of cups, medals, etc., in the society's large show case was also a notable feature of the hall, which, by the way, is an exceedingly comfortable and good room. The society is fortunate in having a splendid lot of officials, and the arrangements all round were as near perfection as mortal man can hope to obtain. Mr. V. Wynn, the secretary, is too well-known to need any commendation (the headway the society makes is his best testimonial). Suffice it to say that he achieved another thorough success in his own genial persevering way. Mrs. Wyse and Miss Shephard lent very acceptable assistance also. The esteemed chairman, Mr. A. C. Burn, unfortunately was in sore trouble, owing to the very serious illness of his only son, and the sympathy of all went out to him. The council and officers comprise Messrs. J. Burton, A. W. Curtis, F. Curry, H. Davis, F. Easterling, A. Lazarus, H. Offord, J. Pooley, W. Prance, W. Shepherd, A. E. Rouse, F. Wyse, R. L. Crisp, C. Prior, F. W. Thorpe, while Messrs. W. G. Sanders, F. Turnher, A. W. Hart, A. S. Wheller, and J. Dewhurst lent a hand. There was a very fine attendance, and the society looks like soon wanting a larger show-room. The "McGrather" shield and foreign bird cup were won by Mr. R. J. Watts (Watford); "Mayfair" cup by Mr. A. J. Marley; "Coronation" cup, H. Churchyard; Lazarus cup, H. Dickinson; Anonymous cup and Insectivorous cup, W. Frances; Wynn points cup, Mrs. Page; cup best unflig. Nor., Curtis; cup ditto Yorks., Crisp; "Thorns" and "Lassles" cups, diploma best bird in show, A. Lazarus. The judges were Messrs. J. H. Payne (Canarics), and G. E. Weston (Hyb., Brit. and For.).

Report of Launceston Show gives Watson first in Norwich Nonfighted; it should be myself, writes Mr. W. Collings (Devonport).

The Sunderland Show catalogue and report in the Yorkshire Yellow class state 2nd Crawford; this should be—T. C. CRAWHALL (Newcastle).

I have purchased Mr. R. J. Howe's Linnet, 1st and specials at Dulwich and Peckham, Northampton, etc., writes Mr. P. H. Harris (London, W.C.)

Hull Show report credits Mr. Howe with 2nd in the members' Yorkshire Clear Buff hen class, writes Mr. G. Girling (Hull); it should have been: 2, Girling, as I won that prize.

Wimbledon Show report credits Mr. Martin with winning first in the Unfighted Norwich class, whereas I won that honour with my Yellow cock bird.—HARVEY LUFF (Battersea).

I took v.h.c. in the Norwich class and 2nd in that for Norwich hens, in the recent Herne Bay Show, writes Mr. A. Rolington (Whitstable). The report only credited me with h.c. in both cases.

TWITTERINGS.

Hamilton Show report in the Mule class should have read: 3, Douglas, with a light Canary-Siskin.

We are retiring from the Fancy, write Messrs. Morris Bros. (Ilford), but, of course, we shall continue to read CAGE BIRDS.

Our Members' Show will be held at headquarters on December 10, writes Mr. R. Dear, hon. secretary of the Metropolitan C.B.A.

Whitburn Open Show, December 12th. Splendid classification and specials. Popular judges. See show advertisement.—(ADVT.)

St. Helens, December 10th, 11th, and 12th. Splendid prize money and classification. See schedule. Entries close December 5th.—(ADVT.)

I have resigned membership of all societies affiliated with the C.B.U., so as to leave me a free hand in showing, writes Mr. T. C. Crawhall (Newcastle).

Classes 5 and 6 of our schedule, writes Mr. J. Govan, secretary of the Stonehouse Society, take in Crests and Crestbreds. Fanciers will please note.

It was my buff hen that was first in class 24 in the Wimbledon Show, writes Mr. R. McLaughlin (Earlsfield), and not Messrs. Stone Bros., as given in the report.

Entries are short, and we are extending until Monday next, December 7th, writes Mr. Frank Jeffrey, hon. secretary of the Bromsgrove Society.

Our next open show, writes Mr. J. W. Philpott, hon. secretary of the Accrington and Dis. C.B.S., will be held on October 22nd and 23rd, 1909.

Our entries will not close, writes Mr. A. W. Ludlow, hon. secretary of the Stamford and Dis. F.A., until Tuesday, December 8th. I have only received a very few entries as yet.

The annual general meeting of the London and Provincial O.S., will be held at the "Raglan," on Thursday, December 10th, at 8 o'clock, writes Mr. J. W. Ramsden, the acting secretary.

Class 26 under Belgians in our schedule, writes Mr. Wm. Thornton, jun., secretary of the Edinburgh Open Society, should read: "Bred 1908" and not "bred 1907"; this was, of course, a mistake.

Fanciers visit the Metropolitan Members' Show on Thursday next, "Crown" Hotel, Lavender Hill. Like the open show the collection will be an eye opener. Note the day. Admission, three pence.—(ADVT.)

The Herne Bay report credits Mr. Smith with having won 1st and spl. in the Crested class, writes Mr. H. Epps (Herne Bay); it should be Epps. The mistake arose through Mr. Smith's number being upon my cage.

We trust fanciers will send for schedule of Ferryhill and Dis. C.B. Society's show on December 19th, writes Mr. R. Binks, the secretary, for we have worked hard to provide good prize money and a splendid classification.

Having only one entry up to the present, writes Mr. G. E. Spencer, hon. secretary of the Tamworth and Dis. C.B.S., we hope fanciers will help us, as it is our first open show. Otherwise we shall be obliged to cancel the fixture.

Please note in next issue of CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. G. W. Cuthbertson (Darlington), that owing to being delayed on their journey my birds did not arrive at Worcester Show until 12 o'clock, which was too late for competition.

Will exhibitors kindly notice, writes Mr. S. Andrews, hon. secretary of the Widnes and Dis. O.S., that in our schedule a printer's error occurs? Class 22 Border Fancy should read "evenly marked" and not "unevenly marked" as stated.

At Polesworth Show all our cage-bird classes have had to be cancelled, writes Mr. W. Wright, the secretary. People would not enter because we were not under C.B. Union rules. Had I known of this we would have put it right.

Lowestoft Show report omits my name as the winner of the cup and special for best Crest in show, writes Mr. J. Corke (Lowestoft). Your critique of this bird and my C.B. hen (1st prize) is very pleasing, as these birds are my own breeding.

The cup which is mentioned under "Specials for open competition" in our schedule and for most points in the show is intended to apply to members' classes also, write Messrs. Duffield and Jennings, secretaries of the West Bromwich and Dis. C.B.S.

A printer's error occurs in our schedule, writes Mr. W. Jackson, hon. secretary of the Pendleton and Salford O.S. The entrance fee should have been given as 1s. 6d. per cage, except in classes 29, 30, and 32, 1s. per cage, and class 31, 6d. per cage.

I have received an entry in the British-bird section from Colerne with 3s. P.O., but no name, writes Mr. Clem. Watson hon. secretary of the West Herts F.A. Show. Will the sender forward the birds and we will bench them and afterwards label them for return.

That fine natural-coloured Norwich hen belonging to Dr. E. T. Martin (Southport), which we portrayed on our front page last week has won first prize at Preston (our reporter said of her: grand shape and colour), and many other prizes in good company.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Vardy was unable to judge our show on account of illness, writes Mr. W. H. Bray, secretary Coventry Godiva C.B.S., and we had to rely upon Mr. W. G. Poole to judge the whole show. We only had a telegram on the Thursday night, so it left us no chance to get another judge.

We are giving 2s. 6d. special in each open class at Ludlow Show, on December 19th, writes Mr. P. H. Oakes, the hon. secretary, which I would particularly like exhibitors to note, as I missed putting this in my schedule. Also we are extending our entries to December 12th.

A lecture entitled "Favourite Foreign Birds" was delivered by Mr. J. W. Rose before the Bromsgrove and Dis. C.B.S. on November 25, and proved both instructive and entertaining. Mr. L. F. Lambert, the president, was in the chair, and there was a capital attendance.

Everything went off satisfactorily at Nottingham Show, writes Mr. G. E. Wilkinson, the hon. secretary. All birds were cleared off by 10.30 p.m., on the Monday, and lots of letters have come to hand thanking us for prompt return and splendid condition of birds when received home.

Our next monthly meeting will be held on December 7th, writes Mr. J. Dewhurst, hon. secretary of the West London F.A., when a series of questions and answers on the Crested Canary will be given. All prize money won at our annual show will be paid on the occasion of our annual dinner on December 10th, or posted next day.

Having engaged Mr. Jacob Mackley to judge at our Open Show on New Year's day, writes Mr. C. Atkinson, hon. secretary of the Guisborough and Dis. "Priory" C.B.S., we hope to have a humping entry. Colonel Chaloner has kindly offered us a valuable cup to be competed for, which will be an inducemcut, together with numerous specials.

OBITUARY

Mr. ROBERT BAULD (Fife).

It is with feelings of deep regret, writes Mr. R. Ballock (Gleneraig), that I have to inform you of the death of Mr. Robt. Bauld. He was known throughout Fife as a successful breeder of Mules, although he never found time to be able to figure at the shows very much. His heart always warmed at sight of a "guid Mule." It is not only as a fancier that our late friend was known; he was a very good authority on the game of draughts and will be greatly missed by the draught world. He was also chairman of a local institution which has made itself felt in the district under his able guidance. Brought up in a hard school himself, he was ever ready to comfort others and give them the benefit of his experience. His was an influence that will be missed by a community whose hearts go out in sympathy for the sorrowing widow and family. "He rests from his labours, but his works do follow him."

I will keep over till Sunday any birds coming from a distance, if notified on entry form, and despatch them Sunday night and see them into the different trains, writes Mr. A. Goodall, hon. secretary, St. Helens Show, so that birds shall not be delayed en route, as it has been found from experience that Sunday morning trains are not to be relied on.

We hear that for the open show on January 22nd and 23rd, the Halifax Society has engaged, at considerable expense, the Mechanics' Hall, which is centrally situated (near to the Town Hall), while the classification to be offered is of a very enterprising nature. The novices are to be well catered for. Our Halifax friends and their worthy secretary, Mr. Thackray, are hoping to be overwhelmed with entries.

The secretaryship of the Hyde and Dis. C.B.S. has been handed over from Mr. T. Allsop to myself, writes Mr. F. Barraclough, and all communications appertaining to the society must be addressed to me at 25, Railway Street, Hyde. Our next meeting is on Friday, December 11th, at St. George's Schools, when we hope all the fanciers of Hyde and district will attend and give us a bumping meeting.

Our classification appears in your advertising columns, writes Mr. J. Francis, hon. secretary Carmarthen Show, and I would call the attention of exhibitors to the fact that very few entries are to hand at time of writing and an extension to December 10th (first post) has been decided upon. I have every confidence that our old patrons will again favour us with their support, but the outlook at present is very gloomy.

An umbrella, value 10s., will be given for most points in British classes 60 to 73, writes Mr. T. Taylor, hon. secretary of Gateshead Show. This special was accidentally missed from the special list, and only an extra special of 3s. for second most points appears. The Fancy is well catered for both in the number of classes and the special prizes. Our special prize list comprises: Given by Gateshead Society, cups, specials, and extra specials, 98; given by specialist clubs, 84; a total of 182 specials, coupled with full prize money in every class; no cancelling or half-prize money.

We trust North Wales and neighbouring fanciers will give us a bumping entry at Ruthin Show, December 10th, writes Mr. W. Pierce-Williams, the show manager. The classification of the cage-bird section is quite an experiment as far as this show is concerned, and if we are supported it will encourage us to give much better next year. Mr. H. Tams is to judge, and there is a good special for every class. Every member of the committee is a genuine fancier. The railway company is giving special facilities for the occasion. We will accept entries posted on Saturday, December 5th.

Will show secretaries please note, writes Mr. George Thomson (late of Manor Street), breeder and exhibitor of Yorkshire Canaries, that I have now removed to 83, Dogfield Street, Cathays, Cardiff.

Entries are very short for Canterbury Show, telegraphs Mr. Sargeant, the secretary, just as we go to press. We will extend entries until Saturday, December 5th; for full classification see our show advertisement in last week's CAGE BIRDS.

On behalf of our members, writes Mr. A. Flint, joint secretary, Tideswell Show, I beg to thank you for the splendid report you gave us in CAGE BIRDS, also to thank those fanciers who so liberally gave us their entries, thus helping us to success. I may say that though a few of our classes came up short, we paid full prize money throughout the whole of the show.

I wish to thank CAGE BIRDS for the really splendid report of our show, writes Mr. W. Reid, joint secretary, Sunderland C.B.A. The feature of the show was of course the Cinnamon section. Visitors declared they had never seen anything like it, either in numbers or quality. I would like to thank all exhibitors for helping to give us a record entry. All prize money has been paid.

I was surprised and delighted on opening my CAGE BIRDS this morning to find an excellent drawing of my Dayal Robin, winner of 1st prize and special for best foreigner at the recent Bristol C.B.S. Show. Congratulations to Mr. Norman on having caught the pose so well, and the same to yourself on giving us such good value in your paper.—CAPT. PERREAU (Bath).

Bathgate and Dis. C.B.S. will hold their annual show on January 16th, 1909, writes Mr. R. Bald, the secretary. The judges appointed are Messrs. A. Sloan (Glasgow) for Norwich; Gollan Hyslop (Stirling), for Borders; John Brown (Edinburgh) and Samuel Ward (Glasgow) for British, Mules, and Foreign bird section. We have got the patronage of the Scottish B.B. and M.C., whose shield is to be competed for at the coming show.

At the recent Dulwich O.S. Show Mrs. Vincent's winning Bullfinch was claimed at catalogue price, much to that lady's regret. Mr. G. F. Woolhouse fulfilled the duties of show manager with complete success; Councillor Scott opened the show, promising both personal and financial aid when needed. The enthusiasm shown by the two lady stewards, Mrs. Mazzoni and Mrs. Bussey, was infectious. In addition to the work of the committee already noted, Messrs. G. W. Saunders, G. Warley, W. Edmonds, and W. Rippon rendered splendid service. The society's challenge cup was won by Mr. W. Morris, the runners-up being Messrs. C. T. Maxwell and C. J. Warley.

The Welsh National.

The novice Yorkshire classes were by an oversight left out of our schedule, writes Mr. R. J. Truscott, secretary Welsh National Show, but classes 11 to 16 will be repeated, as Open Novice Classes, numbered 11n, 12n, etc. We hope fanciers will not overlook sending for a schedule of our fixture and patronising us with entries, for on the excellent management CAGE BIRDS complimented us highly last year. We offer a very fine classification, both for Canaries, Mules, and British birds, and good prizes.

International Border Contest.

Enclosed I forward table of points for contest between the Scottish Border Fancy C.C. and the English and Welsh B.F.C.C. at the recent Glasgow and West of Scotland Show. In class 47, Green or Cinnamon Buff cock, Mr. Hadwin is credited with third, but Arnot and Jamieson were third in this class; it is a printer's error. Sorry there was such a poor turn-out of the members of the English and Welsh Club. The scoring was: Class 33 Border Fancy C.C. 15 points, English and Welsh B.F.C.C. 6 points; Class 34, 14-0; 35, 36, 37, and 38, 15—0 in each; 39, 15—5; 40 15—0; 41, 15—4; 42, 15—0; 43, 15—3; 44, 45, 46, and 47, 15—0 in each; 48, 15—8. Total 239 points for the B.F.C.C., 26 points for the E. and W. B.F.C.C.—M. JAMIESON, hon. secretary, B.F.C.C.

Read: and be Wise.

My advertisement in CAGE BIRDS a fortnight ago, writes Mr. H. Barber (Southwell), brought me no less than sixteen replies in four days.

Money spent on advertising in the columns of your capital paper, CAGE BIRDS, brings returns, and is therefore well spent.—JACK FRANCIS (hon. secretary Carmarthenshire A.S.)

CAGE BIRDS is the best advertising medium and the best alround paper in existence for fanciers. I have bought it since the first number and advertised in it for years.—P. JACKSON (St. Helens).

I had so many replies re the Norwich and Borders which I advertised in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. J. Speed (Cupar), that I could only reply to those who sent a stamped-addressed envelope.

The last advertisement I put in your paper, writes Mr. C. Barrett (Scholes), I had 34 replies to, and these came from all parts of the British Isles. I could only reply to those that sent a stamped envelope for reply. I am starting with British birds and Canaries and intend to take your paper for my guide.

I advertised in —— for two weeks just recently and only got one reply, and this wasn't any good. I thought I would try it for curiosity. When I advertised in CAGE BIRDS last year I got results, and I will continue to advertise in the future in your paper, as it stands alone as the best advertising medium for birds of all descriptions.—W. LANG (Lowestoft).

UNDER THE WHITE ROSE.

BINGLEY Society held a very successful washing exhibition on Nov. 24th at which Mr. W. A. Cowgill (Girlington) officiated. Mr. Cowgill put four birds through their "tub," all of which dried off in first class style, and his methods were very intently watched by those present. A varied assortment of questions was put to the lecturer, all of which were very satisfactorily answered, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him.

GREAT Horton Good Intent O.S. had a lecture on breeding, by Mr. W. Blakey, on Saturday evening last, which was greatly appreciated. Mr. Blakey had spent a lot of time preparing and gathering together information on his subject, one on which he has had good practical experience. No doubt many will find the hints he gave of great use in the coming season.

HUDDERSFIELD Society held their annual open show on Saturday, Nov. 28th, and were accorded a very decent entry, though several classes had only half prize money. The cup competition of the Y.C.C. and the competitions of the C.M.Y.C.C. were at this show and, of course, attracted the cream of the fancy. Leeds also held their show on this date, and the large variety of birds catered for always ensures a good gate there.

I HEAR two well-known Bradford fanciers have each suffered a severe loss amongst their birds. One winner of several firsts nearly departed this life during the washing process, while being prepared for the following week's show, and the other bird, also a winner, for which a very big price had been refused, has joined the great majority. Such is the Fancy, full of ups and downs.

"STRAIGHT-UN."

A FEW OPINIONS.

I think the plate this week is splendid.—F. G. JOINER (Portsmouth).

I beg to thank you for the grand plate of Yorkshires.—R. MCLAUGHLIN (Earlsfield).

Your coloured plate this week, "Extremes in Colour," is magnificent.—W. SCHOFIELD (Ipswich).

Delighted with this week's plate of Yorkshires. It is a splendid addition to my bird-room.—W. GOULDSON (Devonport).

Splendid plate last week; most life-like drawing of Buff and Yellow Yorkshires ever seen.—H. T. JONES (Walthamstow).

I must congratulate CAGE BIRDS and your artist on the production of the group of Yorkshires in this week's special number.—S. COOK (London, W.)

You have given us a great treat again in coloured plates; it makes us all wish that we had some birds like those depicted.—T. C. CRAWHALL (Newcastle).

Allow me to congratulate you on your coloured plate of Yorkshires; the birds are simply grand. Our friend, Mr. Norman, is going one better on every plate.—T. DAVIES (Narberth).

I am very much obliged to you for the plate of Yorkshires, writes Mr. A. Thomas (Loftus). The birds are very good in shape and style, showing their colour to perfection, especially the yellow and green.

I have taken CAGE BIRDS for a long time now, and find it a grand paper. I admire the recent plate, as the birds depicted are the lovely specimens. All my friends also admire the plate.—G. GIRLING (Hull).

I must compliment you on your last double number. It is certainly cram full of good things, and I consider the plate is absolutely the best I have ever seen. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—CHRIS. G. SHAW (Malvern).

I wish to congratulate you on your two recent coloured plates. I really don't know how it is done at the price. I am only a learner in the cage bird line, and I look forward to receiving CAGE BIRDS each week.—C. GARRETT (Scholes).

Just a word for your artist. The plate in this week's issue is a treat. As an old breeder of Yorkshires, and an exhibitor, I consider Mr. Norman can paint an ideal Yorkshire. With best wishes to CAGE BIRDS.—G. THOMSON (Cardiff).

I was much surprised when opening CAGE BIRDS this week to find such a splendid plate. I congratulate you on the production of such a work. The Green takes the fancy hereabouts I wish CAGE BIRDS the success it deserves.—J. ANDERSON (Liverpool).

I really think that of all the splendid plates you have given us from time to time from the pen of Mr. H. Norman, the one presented with the current issue is by far the best, and the Buff bird is, to my mind, absolutely life-like. Who can fail to admire such plates as these? Push on CAGE BIRDS.—H. E. TRINGHAM (Lambeth, S.E.)

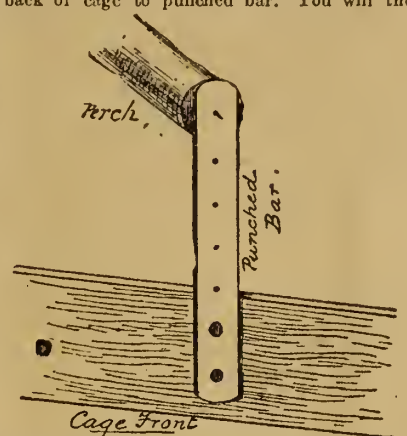
ILLUSTRATED IDEAS



Under this heading we shall illustrate weekly some ideas useful to the bird keeper. Readers are invited to send us particulars of any novel and practical appliance of use in our hobby, either in cage, bird room or aviary, with a rough sketch of some where possible. Every "Illustrated Idea" used in this column will entitle the sender thereof to a postal order for two shillings and sixpence

No. 262.

A METHOD OF FIXING PERCHES.

Sent by v. Freeman 83, Olivo Street, Kingsley Park, Northampton

The sketch shows an easy way in which to fix perches. All that is required is a piece of punched bar (such as is used for cage fronts) and two small pieces of wire. First of all tack the punched bar on the inside of the cage front (as shown). Then drive a piece of wire in each end of the perch. Have the perch about ¼ inch longer than the measure from back of cage to punched bar. You will then find the latter acts as a spring and presses the perch firmly to back of cage. It can be removed instantly by pulling the punched bars towards you.—V. FREEMAN.

No. 263.

A RED MITE DESTROYER.

Sent by T. Smith, 79, Astonville Street, Southfields, London, S.W.

Take an ordinary washing bath, or any thing large enough to hold cage. Get pennyworth of brimstone, which is enough to do twenty cages. Take a piece and put it in a tin or saucer, and put the latter in cage and light the brimstone. Cover the bath and cage over tightly, when the fumes from the brimstone will kill every red mite, also any disease that may be in cage. Leave the cage under cover about three hours, and well air it before putting bird in again.—T. SMITH.

CANARY QUERIES.

Not Moulting.

W.G.—Am afraid your general management is very bad, but you do not give sufficient detail for me to tell where your chief error lies. A diet of fruit, whatever that may mean, is certainly not an ideal one for any Canary. Try the following general treatment, and if things do not appear to be progressing favourably in, say, a month's time, write again, and refer to this reply. Keep the bird in a fairly warm temperature, but see there are no great variations between night and day heat, and that draughts are quite avoided. Feed on a staple of plain Canary only, and give half a teaspoonful of maw seed every other day, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of dry summer rape. If you still wish to colour feed, give half a teaspoonful of egg food with the colour food added every other day; not more, and no oftener, until you see the feathers beginning to drop freely, when you may increase it to the ordinary amount. On the whole, however, I would advise you to forgo colour feeding during the moult, in which case you may give a small teaspoonful of egg food or crushed sponge cake once or twice a week in addition to the above diet. A spray of watercress may be given occasionally, and a tepid bath, on fine mild days. Give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn in two tablespoonfuls of water for drinking for two consecutive days, and after that give twenty drops of whiskey, and half a dozen shreds of hay saffron in the water every second day for a week or so. Cease giving the latter when the feathers are dropping freely: a mealworm a day for a time would be very beneficial.

A Canary Quartette.

A. H. W.—(1) As you evidently bought the bird before the moult, it might have been a late-hatched one, and required to be with a singing bird a short time at the end of the moult to incite it to commence singing; or it might be an old bird, in which case it may not commence singing until the approach of spring. Again, your feeding and management may be at fault. A young bird well moulted and properly treated should certainly have made some attempt at singing by this time, if a cock. See what a few weeks' treatment as given below will do for it. In any case, a Yorkshire that can win a commended card in ordinary competition is not dear at 10s. 6d. (2) The above remarks in the main also apply to this bird. (3) You can certainly do much better than feed as you describe. This may be the cause of the bird's not singing. The seeds named will do nicely for an occasional rare tit-bit, but are not suitable as a regular diet. Feed on a staple of plain Canary only, and give separately half-a-teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, on two other days a few grains of hemp, and once or twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake. Every second or third day give a small spray of watercress. Keep cage clean; give gritty sand regularly. For two days give as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in the drinking water, and after that give three drops of tincture of steel and two of tincture of gentian in the same way every second day for a week. (4) No, there is no legitimate way, even if there is any way at all, of improving the faults you name in a show Yorkshire. Neither would I advise you to breed with them if you can avoid it. If you must breed with them be careful to mate them with birds that show nothing of the same fault, or with birds that show a tendency to be faulty in the opposite direction. For instance, mate the bird that is pinched in neck to one slightly too full in neck.

Breed for Singing.

Beginner—The German Roller is, of course, the first and foremost breed for singing purposes, pure and simple, and is also a hardy and prolific bird. In size and colour, however, it is one of the most insignificant breeds, its only qualification being its singing abilities. If you wanted a more stylish-looking and better-coloured bird, you could not do better than cross a Roller cock with a Yorkshire hen. This mating gives the most stylish shaped bird, and one with a very fair amount of natural colour, and a slightly better voice than the Norwich cross—that is, a Roller cock and Norwich hen—though the latter undoubtedly gives the richest tone of colour, and, in general, a rather stronger note than the Yorkshire cross. Either of these crosses make very nice song birds, and are very hardy, and easy to manage.

Kill or Cure?

"Straight-tip."—You are evidently one of the death or glory boys. The birds being good ones and 1907 bred, should be well worth treating, and I see no reason at all why treatment should not be successful. They have doubtless got a chill in some way, perhaps through being temporarily in a draught. Put them in the snuggest part of the room, where there is little variation in the temperature; see they are protected from draught, and withhold the bath until better, giving it afterwards only on fine, mild days. Feed on plain canary only as a staple, and give separately twice a week a few grains of hemp, on two other days half-a-teaspoonful of summer rape, and twice a week a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with five drops of sherry mixed with it. Three times a week give a small spray of watercress. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky, ten of syrup of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second ay for a fortnight, if necessary, and on the alternate days give twenty drops of chemical food, continuing the latter for a month. A small piece of fat boiled pork or bacon stuck in the wire, or a mealworm a day, for a week or two would also prove beneficial.

Those Avine Sneezers.

H.M.R.—If you are satisfied the bird is free from draught, see also that its cage is quite free from red-mites, that it is not hung over a lighted lamp or gas jet during the evening, and that it is not near enough to the fire to be very warm by day when a fire is burning, and proportionately cold at night when the fire is out. Keep it where the heat is fairly equable day and night, the air pure, and free from draughts. In addition to the staple of Canary seed you feed on, give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, a few grains of hemp twice a week, and, for the next month, a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with five drops of sherry mixed in it three times a week. Give all these alternately on different days, so that a different extra will be given each day. Keep the cage clean, strewn with gritty sand, and give a small spray of watercress three or four times a week. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight.

Roller's Strange Behaviour.

"New Reader."—Putting the Roller in the spare room with the two hens was doubtless the cause, to a great extent, of stopping its song. The "chirp-chirp" you describe as taking its place was in all probability his love calls to the hens, due to his premature desire to begin breeding. In addition to this, it is not unlikely the spare room is much colder than the one it had been used to. You should either remove it to another room, away from the hens, or else keep it in a box cage of just fair size, so that it will not be able to see so much of his future partners, and at the same time be protected from cold and draughts more efficiently. Alter the staple diet to two parts of Canary and one part summer rape, and in adition give separately a few grains of hemp twice a week, and on two other days half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, or a very small piece of bread soaked in milk, and squeezed nearly dry, as a substitute, and give a scrap of green-food two or three times each week. If it appears hoarse give ten drops of glycerine and five of mucilage of gum arabic in the water for a few days.

Only Waiting.

F. T. Parsons.—The Norwich cock is only waiting for the nearer approach of spring before breaking into full song. It is probably a few years old, and many birds after the first season or two do not resume their full song after moulting until the weather begins to get mild in spring. The advent of the Roller will doubtless help to draw out the Norwich. A dose or two of saline aperient would probably do it good, to be followed afterwards by four drops of tincture of steel in its drinking water for two or three days. Your feeding is not very suitable. The mixture you name would do nicely to give now and again as a change, but for regular use the plainer diet so often advised in this column is much more wholesome. The Hartz Roller should be in full song now, if a cock. It does not require any larger cage than any other Canary, as a matter of fact, the cage should not be too large if you want the bird to sing its best. At the same time, do not keep it in a poky little prison. You must not keep it in the same cage as the Norwich cock. This would only cause endless quarrels unless the cage was of more than ordinary size. I do not quite understand what you mean by asking if this bird can be trained on its notes. If you mean taught the Roller song, this should have taken place before this time. Their education should have been completed before they are offered for sale.

Right or Not Right?

"Anxious."—Not right, sir, by a long way. This applies to your query as to the bird's diet. I strongly suspect the bird is exposed to draughts now and again, which is the cause of the stray feathers being found in the cage. See its cage is kept quite out of reach of all draughts, and not in an extremely variable temperature, though it need not be a very warm one. Feed on a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape as a staple, and twice a week give a few grains of hemp separately. For the present stop giving egg and give instead half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of sherry mixed in it, every second day for a fortnight. If obtainable free from frost, give a small spray of chickweed, watercress, or groundsel, two or three times a week instead of the apple. In the drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days four drops of tincture of steel. Give the steel in the water on the days when you are not giving the sponge cake. If a young bird it should commence singing as soon as the health is brought up to concert pitch, but it will not begin until the moulting is quite stopped. When the above treatment is no longer necessary, the above seed diet, and a small teaspoonful of egg once a week, will be all that is required to keep the bird in good condition.

Rather Confusing.

Ernest.—You may safely dispose of the fear of your birds being in the first stages of septic fever, but it is a trifle confusing to quite follow your note. You say the birds have a black mark at the top of the beaks where you have marked, but the mark, if there, is almost beyond me. As you further on wonder whether it is only the feathers that are a little dirty, I think you must mean the base of the beak around the nostrils. The tiny feathers around the nostrils frequently become dirty if a bird is kept in a dirty, smoky atmosphere. Also when it has a dirty cage, or perches, dirty water, or dusty seed. In these cases if a bird gets a very slight temporary cold, or sneezing, the mere act of rubbing its beak to clear it blackens the short feathers across the forehead, as does also bathing the head in the drinker when the water is not quite clean. I think if you attend to these points and give the birds a clean bath two or three times a week in mild weather, and see they do not get chilled after, you will soon find the marks disappear. If they do not, write again and say whether the marks are on, or in, the horny substance of the beak.

After the Moult.

C. R. B.—I have no doubt that the condition of the Yorkshire is due either to being exposed to occasional draughts or to extreme variation of temperature. Perhaps in your case it is the latter, though it is not at all unlikely that the removal and taking the bird to a new house may be indirectly responsible for it. Keep the bird now in a fairly comfortable temperature, which varies as little as possible. Feed as advised to "A. H. W.," but for the next few weeks give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion and three of sherry well mixed in it every second day. Stop the linseed altogether, and also any other food you may be giving, and give only what is here advised. Give a pinch of Epsom salts in the water for one day only, and afterwards twenty drops of chemical food in the water every second day, and four drops of tincture of steel on the alternate days. Give this until the feathers have ceased dropping, and if the wheeziness has not disappeared or improved by that time, follow up the treatment by giving twenty drops of whisky, five each of syrup of squills and tincture of tolu, and a piece of gum arabic the size of a split pea in the drinking water every second day for another week, or fortnight if necessary. Shake the latter mixture, until the gum is dissolved. Your feeding is very faulty. Linseed should never form part of a canary's staple diet. Stop this altogether for all your birds, and feed as advised to "A. H. W.," except that the general stock of bird which are well and healthy need only have a small quantity of the sponge cake, or egg food instead, once or twice a week, and do not require any of the medicine therein named.

A Brace of Posers.

G. B. Ignorance.—I hope I have not misread your nom de plume. If I have, you must pardon my ignorance. To reply to your rather ticklish question:—(1) For all practical purposes it is quite safe to say that it is not possible to breed successfully with a Goldfinch-Canary Mule cock and a pure Canary hen. At the same time I would not go so far as to say the thing is utterly impossible. A case was recorded many years ago which I believe went to prove that fertile eggs, which failed to hatch out, had been produced from a mating of Goldfinch-Canary hen Mule to pure cock Goldfinch. This was the mating if my memory serves me right, but I cannot lay hands on the report to verify it. It is also the mating which, in my opinion, would be most likely to succeed, if systematically carried on for a length of time—that is, of course, if the cross is ever fertile. The Mules bred from Mules which we hear of almost every season are nothing more or less than pure Canarics bred from pure Canaries, either by accident or design. If by design, the owner has generally mistaken an uncommonly coloured hen Canary for a Mule. (2) Sorry I cannot single out any individual to advise you to get stock from. If you have no fancier friend who would assist and advise you in the selection, make a point of dealing only with a respectable firm with a reputation to keep up, or buy only on the deposit system, and thus see the birds before the vendor gets the cash for them. Your final question is making a distinction where no difference exists. The difference between a Goldfinch-Canary Mule and a Goldfinch-Canary Hybrid is absolutely nothing at all. The terms "Mule" and "Hybrid" are synonymous, though it has long been customary for fanciers to use the term "Mule" to distinguish crosses which had the Canary for one of its parents, and "Hybrid" to distinguish all other crosses.

A Lingering "Sib."

"Ajax."—A Sib.-bred hen in the condition of chronic ill-health you describe gives very poor promise of successful breeding. Unless she gets quite well to all appearances some time before the time for mating, you would be well advised not to waste time trying to breed with her. Remove her from the cold room, and keep her in one with a comfortably warm and equal temperature, but not necessarily overheated. Stop feeding her on so much variety, and for a staple diet give plain good Canary seed only. In addition, give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape twice a week, and every second day for the next month give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry mixed in it. Give a small spray of green-food every second day, when not giving sponge cake, as long as it is obtainable free from frost. A mealworm each day for a time would also prove of immense service. Limit the food solely to what is named above. In the drinking water give first as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every other day for a week, and for the next fortnight after that give twenty drops of chemical food every second day, and on the alternate days twenty drops of whiskey, ten of glycerine, and five each of syrup of squills and tincture of lobelia. Then, for the fourth week, give four drops of tincture of steel every second day. If the bird does not seem all right by that time, discontinue all medicines for a week, and then begin at the second week as above, and repeat the three weeks' course over again.

In a Bad Way.

"Anxious" (Birmingham).—Your birds appear to be in a bad way generally, so if you feed as advised in our paper, as you say, there is certainly something radically wrong with your management in other directions. The continual moulting, and birds going about with open beaks, and water coming out of the beak (remarkable enough in itself), shows a very bad order of things prevailing. Is the room subject to extreme fluctuations of heat at any time, or is it full of damp, and unventilated, having a stagnant atmosphere? Any or all of these causes that exist must be fully remedied as the preliminary step, or, failing this, the birds must be removed to another room, where the temperature is equable, but not necessarily high, the air dry, and the room well ventilated. Keep the cages quite clean and well strewn with clean gritty sand; the seed and water vessels sweet and clean. Feed on a diet of plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately twice a week half a teaspoonful of summer rape per bird, the same quantity of hemp seed on two other days, and three times a week give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of sherry mixed in it. Give these extras alternately so that a different one is given each day. Do not give green-food at present. In each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water give twenty drops of chemical food every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of whiskey, two of oil of eucalyptus, and five of mucilage of gum arabic, well shaken together. After the first week stop the latter mixture and give in its place four drops of tincture of steel alternately with the chemical food. Continue this for a fortnight, then stop all medicines for a week, and begin again and give another fortnight's treatment. Shall be glad to hear in a month how they are progressing.

Brevities.

Thanks Returned (Mrs. R. N. Murray).—Thanks also to you for letting us hear result of the operation advised. It is gratifying to hear result, though few take the trouble to send it. Am glad the operation has been so successful.

Samples of Rape (Potter).—Neither of the samples which you have sent for inspection is German summer rape. The latter is little more than half the size of these, and of a reddish-brown colour. I do not profess to know what the seed lately offered as German rape really is. Your samples appear to be identical in kind, but the one marked 25 is newer, and consequently rather stronger in flavour. I should prefer that marked 100, but should not care to use either as long as I could get the reddish-brown seed.

Three and One Over.

L.R.A.C.—1, I should think this bird must be either a hen Redstart or hen Stonechat. The former would be almost self-colour, dirty ash-brown, reddish at root of tail. The Stonechat is a "dumpy" looking bird—a huge head, set on a short, rotund body. 2, The Rock Pipit is not the Titlark—the latter is a name applied to both Tree and Meadow Pipits, though usually the latter. Your bird is more likely to be the Meadow Pipit. I think this species makes a most interesting pet. 3, The Greater White-throat is not so very much larger than the Lesser, but is a browner-coloured bird, more especially on the upper surface. The Lesser is a purer white on the throat. Extra 3. I don't quite understand exactly what you want to know here. A Robin would be entered in the class for small insectivorous birds, and shown in the same style of cage as used for Red-tarts, 'Gales and such like species, with swing-in inside feeders. All cage-makers will supply the latter.

About Bullie.

Rex.—1, Some Bullfee are not very free bathers, but the majority I myself have, delight in a tub. Many of my birds of all species I am compelled to spray because of their dilatoriness in entering the baths provided. It is a nuisance having to do it, but it can't be helped. You must spray your own bird. Perhaps in the spring-time he may take to the water if you hang him out in the sunshine; especially if in sight of a bird which enjoys its tub. 2, Individual birds differ so much in disposition that it is always a thankless task having to give an opinion on a question such as this. If you get two good-tempered cock Bullies they will probably agree all right in your cage; but should one be a bully in every sense of the word, then he will make the life of the other a misery. You can only try the experiment in the hope that it will turn out satisfactorily. In any case, put the two Bullies into the cage at the same time; don't let one get used to it, and then introduce the other, or the latter will be fairly certain to get a warm reception. You will soon see "how the wind lies." 3, I find my own Bullfinches eat a little plantain seed (but not artificially "dried" if this is what you mean), though they certainly prefer ripe shepherd's purse, chickweed, and groundsel. 4, The limit is a wide one; up to two teaspoonfuls won't hurt.

Mixture for an Aviary.

Novice—I do not think any seed mixture is "suitable" for an aviary. It will answer all right, true enough but it is invariably a very wasteful and consequently expensive method of feeding the birds. I have very frequently explained this in my replies, also said that the best method is to give the principal seeds (say canary, teazle, hemp, summer rape, charlock and sunflower—or, preferably, a mixture of half sunflower, half safflower) in separate hoppers or dishes, and throw a little of the other seeds in occasionally, by way of a change, or as "tit-bits," as fanciers say. You can't allow any definite quantity of seed per head each day. Birds differ remarkably in their appetites, and the amount of seed they will consume per diem; for instance, the average Siskin will beat a Linnet hollow as a trencherman, though considerably less in size. Again, birds in an aviary will eat appreciably more in the winter than in the summer. If you must have your seed-mixture, then for a mixed collection of Finches you will find it difficult to beat this: Canary and teazle three pints each, hemp two pints, summer rape and charlock one pint each, linseed half-a-pint, with about a half pint of mixed sunflower and safflower seeds, increasing or decreasing the quantity of these latter according to whether the birds eat it all up or not—it depends on the composition of the collection, as some birds like those seeds more than others. The other seeds—niger, maw, wild seeds, wild seed mixture, etc.—you can give now and again, as indicated above.

A Trio.

A.M.R.—1, One of the dodges described in the "Illustrated Ideas" column would answer quite well, I am sure, for keeping the temperature of your outdoor bird-room above freezing point. The one described a week or so ago (made out of a drain-pipe) I can well believe to be satisfactory. I used a somewhat similar device myself years ago, only constructed out of tin. The points to be remembered are that a supply of air must be arranged for around the lamp at the bottom, while the top must fit very tightly, so that any fumes or smoke from the lamp pass outside, and not into the room. 2, I have no means of answering this. You should send a stamped envelope for a copy of the Act as applying to your own district, to the town clerk of your county town. The list of protected birds varies very widely in different parts of England, and is frequently altered, according to the dictates of the local authority. 3, I do not know any bird other than the Yellow Bunting (commonly called the Yellowhammer) to which your description could apply. You should refer to the portrait of this species given on our coloured plate issued some three weeks ago.

Various Matters.

Paddy from Cork.—Your query seems to have been inadvertently sent along to my colleague, Mr. St. John, and has only just come into my hands. The best food for bringing up the colour of plumage and beak of a Blackbird is colour-food; they should, too, not be moulted in too light a place. I think personally that a pale blue is very hard to equal as the colour of inside and wires of show-cage for either Thrush or Blackbird. An excellent size for the stock-cage is 24 to 30 inches long, 16 high and 14 from front to back. The case of your Goldies puzzles me exceedingly, and I am afraid I could not give you any useful advice without first seeing them, this applying more especially to the one which you say has been queer for upwards of ten months. As a rule it does not take a Goldfinch anything like that period to "shuffle off this mortal coil." I must give him up as a bad job. You appear to have tried every possible remedy. The bird which you say seems to have some throat affection, I should try for ten to fourteen days with water tinged a light red by the addition of a few drops of Condy's fluid, changing same frequently. I do not, I may say, consider the seed-mixture you are using at all suitable for a Goldfinch. It contains much that they will not eat, and which consequently represents so much waste. Why not try the Finch mixture I am so frequently recommending in these columns?

Concerning a Skylark.

Thank You.—1, The present is just about the best time of the year for buying Skylarks, that is, fresh-caught birds. 2, The cage I prefer is an extra large edition of that popularly known as the "Lark runner"; still, a large one of the old bow-fronted type is not by any means bad. I prefer a door at each end of my "runner," and put a turf one end and fill up rest of bottom with sand and road-dust. Food and water I hang in front, at end where turf is situated. 3, I should never think of leaving any Lark of mine hanging out-of-doors all the year round, day and night, no matter what the weather. It would be absolute cruelty, in my opinion. 4, as regards the food, my own method of feeding and treating Skylarks is as follows: As a stock food, mix game meal (without grit) or crushed puppy biscuits, three pounds, finely ground silkworm pupae, half-a-pound, meat meal, good ants' eggs, and dried flies, a quarter pound each, by weight. It will keep a long time, and the ingredients are obtainable at most up-to-date food shops, or through our advertisement columns. A few mealworms and other insects should be frequently given; also a little seed (canary, for choice) in a separate dish. This food can be moistened with a little water (it should be made crumbly moist, not into a sticky mass). But a little finely-minced green-food (chickweed, lettuce, watercress, etc.), or grated raw carrot, or mashed cold boiled potato is by far the best. Clover grass (either a turf of it or some chopped fine and mixed in the food) is also one of the best possible things to give a Skylark to make it sing, and keep it healthy, and assist it during the moult. The game meal is practically identical with meals sold as pheasant and partridge meals, and either can be used. A dust bath is essential, or the birds will be pestered with parasites, one of the worst troubles of Lark-keepers.

Brevities.

Seeding Heads (Hussar).—The seed-heads you send are those of the knapweed. It is, as you say a favourite food with Goldfinches when in its natural state; and fanciers well realise this, for they give these heads freely to their caged Goldies, knowing them as "hard-heads," "hardines," "horse-nobs," etc.

Rare-Feathered (F. Parrington).—Many thanks for sending me the wings of the rare-feathered Linnet. It must have been a very pretty bird when alive. It is not easy to form an opinion as to the sex, but I should certainly think it was a female.

Wild Seeds (F. J. W. S.).—There is little else but "bird rape" (many similar seeds go under this name) in the sample you send—probably mainly charlock. I note also dock and persicaria. It is not possible to identify all. I have no doubt it would be picked over with relish by Linnets, Twites and Redpolls; doubtless also by Greenbirds, Siskins, Bullfinches, etc.
